CITY OFFICIALS HELD AS HOSTAGES AFTER 10 BELGIANS ARE KILLED

BLACK, HUNTER AND SHERIFF CENSURED FOR HERRIN RIOTS

ester, Mine Union Officers and Citizens of Town Also Blamed by Illinois House Commission — One Member Dissents, Charging "Political Attack."

ENATE DENOUNCED FOR ACTION ON BILL

Adjutant - General Declared to Have Been Derelict in His Duty in Not Taking Personal Charge of Situation.

y the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 30.—Denunciation of practically every one who had anything to do with the Herrin mine riots of last June in which 22 men were killed, is contained in a report filed today by the commission of the Illinois House of Representatives which has been investigating the killings.

With one dissenting vote, that of Representative Thomas Curran of Chicago, the commission agreed that state military officials might have prevented the massacre if they had acted promptly and efficiently. Curran refused to sign the report, which bore the names of five other members of the commission. He charged it was a "political attack on the Governor" and said it "apparently was written across the street," meaning in Attorney General Brundage's office. The name of Representative Pierce of Belvedere also was missing from the report, but it was said he would have signed it had he been in the city.

Where Blame Is Placed?

Blame is placed on Adjutant-General Carlos E. Black, on his assistant, Lieutenant-Colonel Samuel N. Hunter, who represented Gen. Black at Herrin; on W. J. Lester, owner of the strip mine where the rioting occurred; on officials of the miners' union, on Sheriff Melvin Thaxton and his deputies, on the mine guards, on the citizens of Herrin, and on the Illinois Senate for refusing to continue the life of the committee.

The committee, of which Representative Frank A. McCarthy of Elgin was chairman, deplored its inability to obtain the testimony of Deputy Sheriff Laymen, Policeman Jake Jones and Police Magistrate Dix of Herrin, who, they charged, left the state in order to evade subpena servers. The citizens of Herrin, the report charges, gave the commission absolutely no assistance in attempting to fix the guilt for the murders, but on the contrary, the "spirit of the majority of the citizens of Williamson County is in sympathy with the actions of the mob."

State's Attorney Commended.

State's Attorney Delos Duty alone of all the officials mentioned in the report escapes censure. The report gives him commendation for "doing his full duty even to the sacrifice of his health."

The action of the Senate in refusing to pass the bill that would have kept the committee alive for two years is criticised in caustic language. Charging that pressure was brought to bear to prevent the bill from coming to a vote in the Senate so the Senators would not be compelled to declare themselves, the report said: "The committee hopes that these Senators will be replaced by men of high moral stamina and courage, who will think more highly of the protection of the fair name of the State of Illinois than their own selfish ambitions."

Similar massacres are predicted unless there is prompt and efficient action by state officials.

The members of the committee, besides Representatives McCarthy, Curran and Pierce, were Representatives Igoe, Phillips, Rice and Flagg.

In reference to the principal individuals concerned, the report stated in part as follows:

Reference to Gen. Black.

"The committee finds that Adjutant-General Black was derelict in his duty in not taking personal charge of the situation and in or-

Sport Writers at Shelby Becoming Finance Experts, Heywood Broun Writes

"Dempsey-Gibbons Stock Opened Strong Today," He Says, With Prospect of Last $100,000 Installment Being Paid.

By Heywood Broun,
Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

SHELBY, Mont., June 30.—Dempsey-Gibbons stock opened strong today. The bonds were steady and there was a sharp rise in the common and both the first and second preferred. The technical position of the bulls is excellent for the moment although there is no assurance that the rise will be sustained.

Among the many tragedies engendered by this bout for the heavyweight championship is the ordeal suffered by a host of fight reporters who have suddenly found themselves forced by circumstances to assume the duties of financial experts. A grizzled veteran who has not missed a championship fight in thirty years sat inarticulate before his typewriter today for almost an hour as he racked his brains for just the proper manner in which to begin his tale of the impending chapter in the glamorous ring history of America. At last he looked up and cried out in exasperation "What's an underwriter?"

But today the fight is gradually edging its way off the financial page. It seems likely, although by no means certain, that there will be a fight. The promoters of Montana are not always quick to see the difference betwen "E Pluribus Unum" and "I. O. U." However, Mr. Kearns will do his best to set them straight. The final $100,000 is pledged but not collected, and the sponsors of the fight have announced that in view of their emotions toward Kearns they see no reason why he should have the advantage of two days interest on the money. He held them strictly to the contract, they say, and they will also abide by the letter of the contract. Dempsey's manager will get his money before midnight, July 2, but not much before.

Looks Like There'll Be Fight.

Still it seems pretty certain by now that there will be a fight and that it will be held on July 4, although there lingers a little talk about the desirability of July 14. At this point, curiously enough, a factor enters in which is not financial. Tom Gibbons wants to fight on the Fourth because he feels that he is now at the top of his powers. His training problem has been a difficult one. It has been necesary for him to develop as much speed as possible and still retain weight. Even with the greatest care he might easily go stale in another week while Dempsey is in no danger of burning out and might even be benefited by a little bit more polishing on his boxing. He seems as powerful as ever but also just a shade less accurate than when he faced Carpentier.

The fight on the Fourth will be almost wholly a Montana affair. The number of outsiders who have come to Shelby is comparatively small and the railroads have booked only an insignificant number from distant points. Cancellations have not been checked to any great extent by the announcement that the fight is on. There still remains the automobile. Citizens of Shelby will tell you when asked, and even otherwise, that 30,000 automobiles surround this town in a far flung circle and that the cars will make a concerted attack from all quarters at the last minute. The last minute approaches but not the automobiles. First came the rains to bog travelers and now the winds are upon us. To an Easterner a Montana gale is terrifying. At least it is to this Easterner.

"Come with me," said a friendly Shelbyite last night, "and I will run you up to Canada where the beer is better. It's only thirty-five miles." As we bumped out of the little cup of hills in which Shelby lies up popped a great red moon and then about in a minute the moon was gone. The telegraph poles were gone; the road was gone. A brown wind full of needle prints screamed around us. We might have been approaching all the machine batteries of the army of Lilliput. The scream rose higher and grew more horrid, the car rocked, and there was always the feeling that the wind had not even begun to fight.

A Montana wind has the freedom of the plains. Start out from Shelby and travel fifty miles in any direction and you will not see a tree. A child of Shelby once went up to upper Michigan and when he saw the forests, he cried out: "Oh, look at the funny telegraph poles." As the wind began to draw upon its unspent resources in the north we thought of telegraph poles. We could not see them but we had every reason to believe they were flying through the air. Already several minute particles which might have been

PRESIDENT REVISITS YELLOWSTONE PARK

Trip Interrupted as Party Tours From Gardiner, Mont., to Old Faithful Inn.

By the Associated Press.

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., June 30.—Yellowstone Park, one of nature's wonder lands, was viewed today by President and Mrs. Harding as they interrupted their Western trip to visit the national playground.

The chief executive and Mrs. Harding with members of their party rode miles through the park after arriving early in the day at the Gardiner, Mont., entrance, and tonight they rested within a stone's throw of Old Faithful Geyser.

The ride today followed the route from Mammoth Hot Springs, where breakfast was served, past the Golden Gate, Roaring Mountain, the Norris geyser basin, the lower and upper geyser basin to the inn at Old Faithful.

Secretary Work of the Interior, whose department administers the national parks, and Horace M. Albright, superintendent of the park, rode with Mr. and Mrs. Harding.

Neither the President nor Mrs. Harding needed a guide, however, as it was their third visit.

TWO-MILE STRETCH ON GRAVOIS ROAD TO BE OPEN WEDNESDAY

Has Been Closed for Year While Concrete Paving Was Laid.

Next Wednesday, besides being Fourth of July, is going to be Independence day for residents of a two-mile stretch of Gravois road and a special holiday for members of Sunset Hill Country Club.

The stretch of road from the Missouri Pacific branch tracks at Grant's Farm to a point west of Sappington, will be opened then, after having been closed more than a year for paving with concrete. In the meanwhile there have been muddy or dusty detours, or no driving, for the residents, and stretches of rough road, by other routes, for the club members.

Gravois road is now smoothly paved with concrete for about seven miles, from the city limits to a point at the bottom of Sunset Hill and east of Fenton. Gravois avenue, from Grand boulevard to the city limits, is brick. It is understood the Missouri Highway Commission, which has charge of this work, plans to concrete Gravois road for about three miles farther, to the Jefferson County line. From there the road is in good condition, save for some rather rough spots, about 20 miles to Morse's Mill, whence there is a good connection with Lemay Ferry road at Hillsboro.

ANOTHER CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT OF SHELBY FIGHT.

Wealthy Lewistown Merchant Named Trustee, Succeeding State Legion Head and Mayor of Town.

SAYS BOUT WILL TAKE PLACE AS SCHEDULED

Kearns Contributes Share in Movie Rights to 20 Men Who Subscribe to Last $100,000 Payment.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 30.—A complete reorganization of the business management of the Jack Dempsey-Tommy Gibbons heavyweight fight at Shelby, July 4, was effected tonight, with the selection of Major J. E. Lane, of Lewistown, one of the wealthiest business men of the State, as trustee of the bout and the retirement of Loy J. Molumby, of Great Falls and Mayor Jim Johnson, of Shelby, from further participation in the management.

Molumby and Johnson were among the original promoters of the contest.

Major Lane was chosen to represent the 20 business men of the State who contributed $5000 each to make possible the final $100,000 installment due Dempsey.

George H. Stanton, a Great Falls banker, Roy E. Aires, a former District Judge, and H. A. Templeton, a Great Falls business man, will be associated with Lane in directing the management. Molumby, State commander of the American Legion, has assigned his entire interests in the fight to Lane, the transfer including his moving picture rights.

Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, contributed his share of the moving picture rights, amounting to 33 1-3 per cent, to the 20 men who subscribed to Dempsey's $100,000 installment.

Major Lane said that the fight would take place as scheduled and that Dempsey's $100,000 would be paid Monday, when it is due. While no announcement was made, it was understood that $50,000 has been raised.

Major Lane stated that he had the pledges of 20 responsible business men of Montana that the $100,000 would be raised before it is due, and that a portion of the subscriptions are now available in cash.

TROTZKY SAYS AMERICA IS NOT OPEN TO SOVIET IDEA

Russian Leader Hopes for Europeans to Revolt Long Before U. S. Joins Bolsheviki.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 30.—The "revolution" in America is far distant and this constitutes a condition which can be combated only by the creation of a proletariat "United States of Europe," declares Leon Trotzky, soviet War Minister, in a lengthy article in the newspaper, Pravda.

"Closer economic co-operation among the European nations is necessary," he added, "as the only means of saving our continent from economic disintegration and enthrallment by the might of American capital.

"Having got what she wanted," he continues, "America withdrew her hands from the European mess and returned home, and she is now calmly awaiting the agony of European economy to reach a crisis in which Europe may be bought up, as was Austria, for little money.

"America emerged from the war not weakened, but strengthened. The internal power of the American bourgeoisie is still very great. The revolution in America, therefore, is in the distant future."

Trotzky declares the workers of Europe must be shown the way to revolution regardless of how the movement develops on other continents. Europe, he concludes, can no more wait for the American revolution than could Russia wait for the European revolution.

WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL OR DROP FROM ROOF

Mrs. Pearl White Taken From 3607 Page to Hospital After Plunge of 35 Feet.

Mrs. Pearl White, 26 years old, was seriously injured at 11:15 last night when she fell or dropped 35 feet from a second-story roof at 3607 Page avenue to a brick walk at the side of the house.

She and her husband rented a room on the third floor of the rooming house at that address a week ago. At 11:15 last night, Herbert Coe, a roomer on the second floor, heard a commotion in the Whites' room and soon afterward saw Mrs. White plunge from the roof, the rear of the house being two stories high and Mrs. White having descended to the roof from a window of her room. She was taken to the city hospital, where it was found she was internally injured.

Policemen found Mrs. White's room in disorder, an electric bulb having been broken and clothing been scattered about. A jet on a two-burner gas stove was turned on, but not lighted. No trace of White could be found. Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, who conduct the rooming house, said Mr. and Mrs. White went out yesterday afternoon at 1:30 and no one in the house had seen them return.

DE HART STATE DRY CHIEF; NATIONS OFFERED NEW JOB

DeKalb County Man Says He Will Enforce Volstead Law to Limit of His Ability.

WIFE AN OFFICER OF THE MISSOURI W. C. T. U.

New Director Has Tendered Gus O. Nations of St. Louis Appointment as His Legal Adviser.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—L. F. de Hart of Maysville, De Kalb County, newly appointed Federal prohibition director for Missouri, today announced his purpose to enforce the Volstead law in that State to the limit of his own ability and that of his working force. He expressed personal sympathy with the law, and mentioned the fact that Mrs. de Hart was a vice president of the State W. C. T. U. "If I don't do my best to enforce the law, I'll have to get another wife," he remarked.

A more detailed and even more emphatic statement as to the degree of enforcement which may be expected from De Hart, was made by his political sponsor, E. Mont Reily, former Governor of Porto Rico, who successfully pressed De Hart's candidacy as against Gus Nations, now in charge of the field force of prohibition agents at St. Louis, or B. F. Beazell of Chillicothe. Senator Spencer had asked that either Nations or Beazell be appointed.

Reily's recommendation has prevailed over Spencer's in two previous appointments of the first importance, those of Albert L. Reeves as Federal Judge and Charles C. Madison as District Attorney at Kansas City. Another appointment credited largely to Reily is that of former Congressman Hukriede as United States Marshal at St. Louis.

Nations Offered New Job.

De Hart has offered Nations the appointment as his legal adviser and head of the field force. If he accepts another man probably will be placed in charge of the work in St. Louis. De Hart's salary will be $5000 a year and the position which he offers Nations will pay $4000.

Speaking of Nations, who led the raiding party at Hotel Chase in St. Louis last New Year's eve, the raid resulting in a riot and the wounding of a guest, and of his own plans for his office, De Hart said:

"Nations is a good man, and I want his support and help. I feel that I have some familiarity with the work, as I was in the internal revnue service 12 years and have had a good deal of experience with moonshiners.

"I am not going in with a brass band, but I will be on the job all the time. There will be nothing spectacular, but I am going to enforce the law if I have a good working force. My views on law enforcement are those of President Harding. I am dry personally, and I have always voted dry, and have never been accused of being wet in any respect"

Vouched for by Reily.

Reily, when asked about the political phase of the appointment, replied to all questions by telling how thoroughly DeHart was going to enforce the law in Missouri.

"These fellows in Missouri that have got thousands of dollars' worth of booze in their cellars, and are fooling the people by screaming their heads off over dry enforcement, will get their satisfaction before DeHart gets through."

"I have been a dry all my life," Reily continued. "I never went in a saloon and took a drink of liquor in my life. We Presbyterians are usually considered dry, and I would not have supported DeHart for this

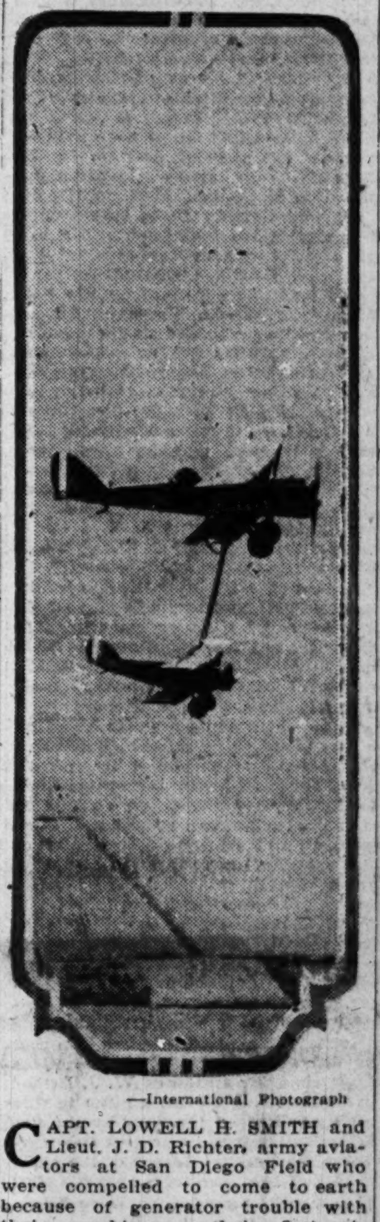
Army Plane Taking on Fuel in Flight



—International Photograph

CAPT. LOWELL H. SMITH and Lieut. J. D. Richter, army aviators at San Diego Field who were compelled to come to earth because of generator trouble with their machine on their first attempt to create a new world's record for continuous flight by remaining in the air 96 hours, made a second start the next day, but were compelled to come down again because of a heavy fog. To make this record they had arranged to refuel in midair, which action is completed by means of contact in flight.

This has been done previously by the fliers, as shown in the above photograph. The relief machine flies over the other plane, makes contact by means of hooking the wings of the two planes, and passing a gasoline feed tube to the lower machine. Smith and Richter did this successfully on both their flights.

THREE MEN IN TAXICAB ROB THREE PLACES INSIDE HOUR

Chauffeur Notifies Police After Passengers Holdup First Store; They Get $5.

Three robberies inside of an hour last night are believed to have been the work of one group of three men.

At 10:30 p. m. three men boarded a Dollar taxicab at Twenty-second and Montgomery streets and demanded to be driven to Twenty-fifth and Dodier streets, where they got off and held up Clarence Whitney in his confectionery store at 2500 Dodier street, obtaining $5. Getting back in the car they commanded the chauffeur to drive to a store near Fourteenth and Clinton streets, where they dismissed the taxicab.

While the chauffeur was on his way to a police station to report the robbery, three men believed to be the same three, entered the restaurant of Mrs. Bessie Kilgore, 2005 North Fourteenth street, and, lining Mrs. Kilgore and Charles Garrison, 1228 North Vandeventer, his wife and daughter, against the wall, took $28 from the cash register. At 11:25 apparently the same three men drove up to the saloon of Harry Brake, 2915 North Twentieth street, in a stolen Ford automobile. One man remained at the wheel and the other two entered and held up Brake and nine customers, taking $60 from the cash register and $17 from the customers.

GERMAN PRESS BITTER IN ATTACK ON FRENCH

Proposals to Go to the League of Nations Calling for Self-Determination and Independence of Ruhr Region Immediately.

By the Associated Press.

DUISBURG, June 30.—The burgomaster of Duisburg, 12 other city officials and four prominent citizens were arrested this afternoon by the Belgian military authorities as hostages in connection with the explosion of a bomb on a Belgian troop train crossing the Rhine bridge here this morning.

Nine Belgian soldiers were killed outright by the explosion, one died later of his wounds and 43 persons, nine of them Germans, were injured.

The latter, who were on their way to work, were in a car adjoining that occupied by the troops and were hit by splinters of wood and metal. Army surgeons tonight said three of the wounded would probably die.

The first penalties imposed upon Duisburg by the Belgians after the explosion include the closing for an indefinite period of all cafes, restaurants, theaters and motion picture houses and public gathering places. Street cars, automobiles and motorcycles are forbidden the use of the streets, and pedestrian traffic except in the cases of doctors, is prohibited from 10 p. m. to 5 a. m. In addition, no Germans in this district will be given traveling permits.

Berlin Dispatch Tells of Bridge Blown Up.

(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co., the New York World, and the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, June 30.—Dispatches to German newspapers this evening from Essen declare a big bridge across the Rhine between Duisburg and Hochfeldt was blown up just as a freight train reached the middle. Sixty persons are reported killed and scores of others wounded. As a result of the outrage, French troops are pouring into the vicinity, fearing the explosion presages more violence. Retributive measures by the military authorities are expected.

The bridge was one used by the French for the transportation of coal from the Ruhr to the Rhineland. It is said destruction of the span will seriously hinder their work.

All indications point to constantly increasing sabotage in the occupied territory. Most of it has been done, it is charged, by members of Lieut. Rossbach's secret organization. These Nihilists are accused of the bridge explosion.

Despite last minute efforts of the Government to mediate, the 300,000 metal workers will strike Monday. If the strike continues for even a few days, it is expected their number will be swelled to 1,250,000. The workers are receiving 25 cents a day, and demand half a dollar. They have refused an offer of 30 cents.

FISCAL YEAR ENDS WITH $310,000,000 SURPLUS FOR U. S.

Final Balance Exceeds Estimate and Comes as Gratifying Surprise to Budget Bureau Officers.

DECREASE SHOWN IN OPERATING EXPENSES

Customs Receipts and Internal Taxes More Than Last Period — Three and Half Billions Spent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Federal Government closed its books for the fiscal year 1923 tonight with a surplus of approximately $310,000,000, it was announced at the office of Brig. Gen. H. M. Lord, Director of the Budget Bureau.

This is $110,000,000 in excess of the estimate of surplus made by President Harding and Lord at the last business meeting of the Government two weeks ago and the results shown by the final balancing of the books came as a gratifying surprise to Budget Bureau officers.

Three major factors operated to create this surplus in place of the deficit of $823,000 indicated a year ago by estimates of receipts and expenditures. They were a decrease in operating expenses and an increase in customs receipts and internal taxes.

Despite the reduction of approximately $366,000,000 from early estimates of the Government's running expenses, the Federal establishment still is a $3,500,000,000 business. Actual cash withdrawals from the Treasury for the year were $3,695,000,000. Appropriations made by Congress for all purposes for the year totaled $3,946,000,000.

Result of Executive Pressure.

The actual decrease in operating expenses this year, as compared to those a year ago, was $265,000,000 and it was stated that this was the result largely of executive pressure on the departments for the holding down of all expenditures. There was an even greater decrease in the ordinary operating expenses than is reflected by this figure, the total being $297,000,000. This figure was reduced by increases in expenditures on account of capital outlays, the war finance corporation, the emergency fleet corporation, refunds on taxes and the like.

Receipts from all sources for the year exceed by $767,000,000 the estimates made a year ago. Customs receipts advanced $213,000,000 to $568,000,000; internal revenue receipts increased $423,000,000 and miscellaneous receipts went up $131,000,000.

The difference of $366,000,000 in total estimated expenditures was the result of a reduction of $151,000,000 in general expenditures; $45,000,000 in interest on the public debt, and a net decrease of $170,000,000 in capital outlays, operations in special accounts and the retirement of the public debt required to be made from ordinary receipts.

Postal Service Deficit.

The figures on operations include the payment of a deficit of $32,000,000 in the postal service and the refund of approximately $28,000,000 in customs taxes collected on sugar and other articles brought into the country in the raw state and prepared here for export.

The surplus this year is only slightly less than that of $313,000,000 at the close of business last year. An even better accomplishment is looked for by officials during the fiscal year beginning tomorrow. They feel that there is better co-operation now in all branches of the Government in effecting economies and in addition there will be a reduction in public debt interest charges through payments to be made by Great Britain on account of its war debt of nearly $5,000,000,000.

Nothing will so contribute to your Summer and Fall pleasure like owning and driving a motor car. Reasonable, too—as a look through the Classified "Automobiles" columns in the Post-Dispatch will prove. Good used cars are matters of daily offering in the dering out the troops; that the conditions reported to Gen. Black were of such a serious nature as to warrant any reasonable person to believe that trouble was sure to come. The committee believes that the responsibility of the situation rested with the Adjutant-General; that if he was satisfied to take the judgment of one of his inferior officers instead of being on the ground himself, he therefore assumed that responsibility and the actions of that officer, and is chargeable with any misjudgment or misconduct on the part of such inferior officer. We believe that if Gen. Black had gone to the scene of this trouble when the seriousness of it first came to his attention, that he would have called troops and averted the massacre."

Concerning Col. Hunter, the report said:

"The committee finds that the action taken by him was entirely out of keeping with the facts and the circumstances. No sufficient excuse is shown in the record and none can be shown for his failure to call for troops to handle the situation. We believe that he was absolutely incompetent, unreliable and unworthy to perform the duties assigned to him. We believe he is not qualified to hold his present position in the National Guard and especially a position in the Adjutant-General's office, where he might be called upon to exercise his judgment under like or similar circumstances." * * *

Sheriff Censured.

"The absolute failure on the part of Sheriff Melvin Thaxton and his deputies to make one single move to prevent this trouble or to try and ascertain those responsible for the killings after the massacre led to the conclusion that both the Sheriff and his deputies, if not actually participating in the trouble, had full knowledge of the situation and sympathized with and acquiesced in the actions taken by those responsible for killings." * * *

"We find that Melvin Thaxton and his deputies, John Shaffer and S. D. Storm, are absolutely irresponsible, incompetent and unqualified to hold any office of trust or confidence in that or any other county in the State of Illinois. They were criminally negligent in the discharge of their official duties." * * *

"The committee believes that Hugh Willis, State board member of the miners' union, could be convicted of this murder in any other county in the State and his actions in refusing to appear before the committee more firmly convinces us of the truth of our stand in this regard." * * *

Lester Condemned.

"The committee was unable to locate W. J. Lester, but got in touch with his attorney in Chicago. Every effort was made to induce Mr. Lester, who was out of the State, to appear before the committee, but his attorney refused to produce him and he did not appear. The committee finds that the action of W. J. Lester in undertaking to run a mine in this highly unionized territory by the use of armed guards to protect the non-union workmen, was one of the chief causes of the massacre; that his plan to operate the mine when a strike was in progress was most foolhardy and unwise. We condemn in every particular his actions in this regard and recommend that some legislation be enacted to prevent a recurrence of another such foolish and incompetent action by mine owner or employer."

The report explains the members desired to keep the committee alive in order to obtain the testimony of Deputy Sheriff Layman, police officer Jake Jones and Police Magistrate Rix, who had avoided subpoenas.

Criticising the action of the Senate, the report stated:

"The committee deplores the unwarranted action on the part of certain members of the Illinois Senate in preventing the bill filed and passed by the house from being voted on the last day of the present session. By their acts in this regard they have passed reflection upon the people of this great state and by their passive action have approved and acquiesced in the act of the police magistrate, police officer and deputy sheriff in departing from the state to wait until the legislature adjourned."

splinters from the poles had struck us. We groped to find the driver who sat in the seat in front of us. He had stopped the car in order to give the wind a chance. Even our lights had been beaten back by the rush of wind and the dust. At last our groping hand found an ear and we held on to it.

Satisfied With Prohibition.

"About that beer," we said, "after all prohibition is the law of the land, and anyhow there's no use putting you to so much trouble." Back in the valley it was not so bad, but there was enough wind to drive the stragglers indoors and whip the habitations of the tent shows about in such a manner that none of the jokes went very well. In the middle of Main street we found a new attraction—Mary Ellen, the marvel of the century, the horse with eight horns. But when we tried to confirm the report we found that Mary Ellen had gone to bed and this morning she has disappeared. Evidently Shelby was apathetic. Shelby is like that.

"Official souvenir badges of the fight for fifty cents," cried the lame beggar in front of the Red Onion Cafe. There was no response. He tried a new tack. "For twenty-five cents I'll play three selections on the banjo," he offered. Nothing happened. 'All right," he ventured, "I'll auction off the banjo. Who'll start the bidding with a nickel?" There was a long and protracted silence and the beggar went back to the beginning and started off all over again with "Official souvenir badges of the fight." Shelby is an orderly town and we wonder what would happen if anybody appeared wearing a souvenir badge of the fight which was not official.

The local apathy includes betting. There seems to be none at all around here. Most the people like Gibbons and hope he will win, but their conviction is not passionate. The only gambling which we have seen was a friendly game of pinganini in the back room of a soft drink saloon. We have no idea of the nature of the game except that it is played with seven packs of cards and is, we are informed, a combination of rummy, 500, euchre and bridge. Undoubtedly it has its fascinations, for we are also informed that it was invented in the cities of the Northwest "to keep highwaymen off the streets."

Like everybody else in Shelby, we think Tom Gibbons is a most agreeable man, but we don't see how he can possibly win. Before this we have been surprised by the outcome of sporting events, but for us this would be the most startling upset of all. He lacks power. It is conceivable, although in our opinion not likely, that Gibbons may stay 15 rounds, and in that case he would probably have a lead on points, but we do not think the referee would be very likely to let the heavyweight championship change hands on points. Gibbons will need a knockout.

The only disturbing factor in our calculations is the very obvious fact that Gibbons himself honestly and sincerely believes that he can do it. That doesn't prove it. Gibbons may be defeated, but at any rate not until he gets into the ring. But here the fight must again give way to finance. A hard riding messenger has just arrived at press headquarters with the news that the Pup Cafe has just gone into bankruptcy.

HARDING REBUFFED BY GOMPERS' STATEMENT

Helena Speech Asserting Friendship for Unions Outweighed by Official Acts, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The American Federation of Labor today rebuffed President Harding's declaration of friendship for labor unions contained in his Helena (Mont.) speech.

Samuel Gompers, the federation head, in a statement, declared that "labor requires more than a speech to balance against the acts of the administration that have gone before."

Gompers asserted that while "labor is glad that the President records himself as totally out of sympathy with the plutocratic war on the organized effort of wage earners for common protection and advancement," the federation is not inclined to withdraw the charge that the Harding administration lent aid and comfort to the campaign to kill and crush unions with an open-shop campaign.

The statement contains bitter references to the injunction obtained by Attorney-General Daugherty during the railroad shopmen's strike and declares that the sentiments expressed by the President at Helena are diametrically opposed to the attitude of the administration during the strike. That attitude, he insists, "was to prevent the strike from becoming effective and to prevent the unions from destroying the open shop."

Injunctions a Sore Spot.

"It is difficult," Gompers says, "to find in the injunctions brought by the Harding Department of Justice against the miners and railroad workers any great effort to conserve the forces of organized labor.

"Those whose memories are not too short will recall that when the President's Attorney-General secured his injunction, he declared that 'as long as I can speak for the Government I will use the power of the Government to prevent the labor unions of the country from destroying the open shop.'

"The President would doubtless be glad if he could expunge Mr. Daugherty's speech and the Daugherty injunction from the record."

Gompers sees in the President's speech a confession of the truth of labor's charge that "big business was engaged in an effort to crush voluntary organizations of wage earners through their so-called open shop campaign" and in support cites the President's statement that "on capital's side of the line were those who hoped that the administration would lend itself to their program of breaking down organized labor."

Says Unions Stood Alone.

"We are glad to have the President's emphatic declaration that his administration has tried to prevent the destruction of organized labor," Gompers continues, but insists that "we cannot help but observe that the only thing that has prevented the destruction of the labor movement has been the solidarity, determination and intelligence of organized labor itself.

"We cannot indulge in any tumult of applause over this late profession of faith because the unions themselves have saved the day in spite of the official acts of some of the President's leading officials and advisers. For their existence today they owe no thanks to the administration.

"At the proper time the whole career of the administration must pass in review. Obviously this is not the time, but this is the time to say that a declaration such as the President has made is welcomed for itself and for what it may mean in the future, but it cannot erase a record of performances and omissions."

DE HART STATE DRY CHIEF; NATIONS IS OFFERED NEW JOB

place if I had not known that he was dry, and has always been a prohibitionist, his wife being vice president of the W. C. T. U.

"I have been in Porto Rico, and do not know how the law has been enforced in Missouri, but I know it will be enforced from now on. Prohibition has come to stay. Reforms never go backward. If the Volstead act is changed it should be strengthened, not weakened."

Senator Spencer Not Pleased.

The appointment of DeHart is to succeed W. H. Allen of Clinton, resigned. The state enforcement office is at Kansas City.

Senator Spencer said today that either Nations or Beazell "would have been better fitted to carry out the policy of the administration in the enforcement of the prohibition amendment than Mr. DeHart, but I will be glad to co-operate in every possible way with Mr. DeHart in making his administration a success."

De Hart Opposed by Anti-Saloon League as an "Extreme Wet."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 30.—Bitter disappointment over the appointment of L. F. de Hart was expressed here today by the Rev. W. S. Foreman, assistant State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

"De Hart was known to us as an extreme wet," Dr. Foreman said, "and we fought him hard at every turn."

The Rev. Mr. Foreman also assailed the sincerity of the Republican administration and its leaders.

"They are blowing wet and dry, apparently," he commented, "they are blowing dry with President Harding in his speeches, and working wet. The Anti-Saloon League, the W. C. T. U., the Church Federation and the moral element of the State most humbly requested the President not to name De Hart. We were very anxious, after what had transpired in this State in Mr. Allen's administration, to have a dry man named, and we were given to understand a dry man would get the place.

"The friends of prohibition will not be fooled. We are greatly disappointed and prophesy that the party will suffer the consequences for this act."

A prediction was made by Dr. Foreman that the administration would attempt to placate the "drys" by having Ben F. Beazell, unsuccessful candidate for the directorship, made assistant director or chief clerk.

De Hart Shared in Lowden Campaign Money Distributed in Missouri.

De Hart has been employed recently as a deputy in the State Marketing Bureau, by appointment of Gov. Hyde. He was active in gathering material for the Governor during an inquiry into the official conduct of State Auditor Hackmann, under whom he formerly worked as a county examiner. De Hart was a delegate to the Chicago convention of 1920, and received $100 of the $38,000 Lowden campaign money distributed in Missouri.

A dispatch from Kansas City a few days ago said that Anti-Saloon League workers were objecting to the proposed appointment of De Hart. They favored Nations for the place.

DeHart is the fifteenth Missourian affiliated with the political group which figured in the Missouri Lowden fund scandal, said by many politicians to have made possible the nomination of President Harding, to receive Federal or State appointment. DeHart is one of the chief lieutenants in Third District of "Liv" Morse, who was known as the "Lowden paymaster."

Others Who Have Landed Jobs.

Appointments under the Harding administration include: T. W. Hukriede, Warrenton, United States Marshal; Allen Curry, Poplar Bluff, United States District Attorney; Louis M. Hall, St. Louis, Collector of Customs; Arnold J. Hellmich, St. Louis, Collector of Internal Revenue; Louis Alt, St. Louis, Postmaster; Roy T. Davis, Columbia, minister to Bolivia; William P. Elmer, Salem, counsel for the prohibition director of Missouri; William H. Allen, Clinton, prohibition director; Carr Hartshorn, Elvins, a prohibition enforcement officer; W. H. Hallett, Nevada, Assistant United States District Attorney; W. L. Cole, Union, special assistant to the Attorney-General of the United States, and M. E. Rhodes, Potosi, counsel for the Comptroller General of the United States.

OVERTURES BY FORD TO JEWS REPORTED

Agent Said to Have Sounded Out Leaders in New York City Regarding Recantation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—On top of the warning by Charles D. Hilles, against the menace of Henry Ford's presidential candidacy, which appeared today, came an apparently well authenticated report that Ford has recently been trying to make his peace with the Jews of New York City.

The information that Ford was attempting to rid himself of the burden which he acquired three years ago when he launched a series of attacks against the Jews, in the Dearborn Independent, comes from two independent sources, each a man of unquestioned standing in Jewish circles.

Agent Reported Active.

As they related it today, a man representing himself as an agent of Ford recently called on one of the Jewish leaders in New York City and sounded that man out as to the effect which recantation by Ford and a public apology would have on Jewish voters. The agent was assured, it was said, that there was not a chance; that the feeling against Ford was so strong among all the people of the Jewish race that they would never offer anything except the most active opposition to any plans which Ford might have. They would refuse to treat him otherwise than from a racial standpoint It was said, however, that despite these assurances, the attempts of the agent were continued and that there were at least two conferences which came to nothing. Hearst's name, it was said, did not enter into the conversation.

Nevertheles, it was recalled that about two months ago Hearst's own newspapers quoted him as favoring the Ford candidacy and that the matter was then put up to him so strongly by the Jewish representatives that the publisher switched over to James A. Reed as his presidential selection. Politicians are agreed that if Ford could make any sort of a deal with the Jews, there is an excellent chance that Hearst would switch back again.

Local leaders of both parties assert that the chances of Ford's getting a nomination by either of the major parties are so remote as to be negligible. They are far from agreement, however, on the effect that a third party nomination might have, and it is this element of uncertainty which has brought about the desire of both to stave off a third party with Ford at the head. Republicans were quick to fall in behind the leadership of Hilles.

County Chairman's View.

Samuel S. Koenig, Republican County Chairman, some of whose district leaders are already engaged in a campaign to head off a Hearst-Ford third party, said today:

"I agree with the analysis which Mr. Hilles made of the Ford candidacy. I believe, however, that Ford is formidable in spots only. If he should be nominated he would be overwhelmingly defeated in New York City, certainly not getting more than 200,000 of the city's 1,300,000 votes. In other sections he is weak.

"Nevertheless, his candidacy should not be underestimated. There is not the remotest possibility of his nomination by either the Democratic or the Republican party. As a third party candidate he would develop considerable strength and might be a source of worry to both parties. I believe that he would draw from the Democratic party rather than from the Republican, because he would get the dissatisfied element, and these do not belong to the Republican party. But he would be weaker on election day than on the day of his nomination. He would be weaker on election day than any candidate who was ever named. He could not stand up under a campaign nor would be stand analysis. His personal qualifications alone would be sufficient to defeat him."

German City Officials Held Hostages After Bombing

Berlin of the bomb explosion at Duisberg.

Frontier Closed for 15 Days By Commissioners.

By the Associated Press.

COBLENZ, June 30.—The Rhineland High Commission and the Belgian and French military authorities have decided to suspend for 15 days, beginning Monday, all crossings of the frontier between the occupied and unoccupied territory by Germans, except for food transport and urgent reasons. The commission has also adopted as its own the Belgian penalties already imposed on Duisburg.

German towns near which sabotage occurs in the future will be held responsible for the damage in every way, under the terms of a decree issued this afternoon by Gen. DeGoute, commander of the occupational forces.

The decree gives the families of the victims legal claims for damages upon the municipalities. According to the French the decree has been prepared for some time, but was proclaimed immediately effective upon receipt of the news of the troop train bombing at Duisburg.

The explosion is regarded in military circles here as the German reply to the stiffening of the occupation regulations in the Belgian zone since the killing of two Belgian soldiers at Marl several days ago and is thought to have been carried out by the same organization that arranged the explosion that killed two Germans in the waiting room of the Weisbaden railway station this week.

The train, which was carrying 300 men on leave, had just left Duisburg, shortly before 2 o'clock. The bomb exploded as the train was crossing the Rhine. It demolished the car, killing or badly wounding every man in it, and mortally injuring the sentinel who was guarding the bridge.

Several of the wounded are not expected to live.

Investigation tends to show the bomb was placed in the car at Duisburg either in the lavatory or in a suit case which was mixed with the soldiers' baggage.

The nature of the explosion seems to indicate that the bomb was of the same kind as that which a well dressed German now is known to have brought to Weisbaden before the explosion there, this leading to the belief that two outrages were arranged by the same organization.

Papal Letter on Reparations Leaves France Unshaken.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 30.—M. Jonnart, French Ambassador to the Holy See, was received in private audience by Pope Pius today and was closeted with him for more than an hour. He left the Vatican without the customary call on the Secretary of State.

The impression prevails in Vatican official circles that the papal letter concerning the reparations question and the occupation of the Ruhr will not develop serious consequence in Franco-Vatican relations. Further explanations of the significance of the communication are expected soon from the Holy See.

The Giornale d'Italia, in an article on the letter today, emphasizes that its language was clear and explicit, conforming to the teachings of the church; that it was not meant to be hostile to any nation, nor intended to cast doubt on France's right, but only to offer a suggestion for reaching the desired ends by other means.

Both Pope Pius and Cardinal Gaspari, the papal secretary of state, the newspaper says, are in complete accord on the letter.

Resentment Over Attack on Former Captain of U-Boat 53.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 30.—France wants to "drown in German blood the resistance to which we have been forced in peace time on the Rhine, the Moselle and the Ruhr," says the Allgemeine Zeitung today, joining in the general storm of indignation expressed by the German press over the sentencing of seven Germans to death for sabotage by a French courtmartial in Mayence.

The Germans are being executed in an effort to strangle the passive resistance campaign, the newspaper charges, but France will not be victorious, and "this blood will not have flown in vain." It concludes with the quotation:

"May some avenger arise from our ashes."

The other newspapers comment in a similar strain.

Capt. Hans Rose, the former German submarine commander, whose arrest by the Belgians in the Ruhr was announced recently, was taken into custody while trying to leave the Ruhr for a visit with his wife on an estate in Mecklenberg, according to details received here. Capt. Rose was commander of the submarine U-53, which appeared off Newport, R.I., late in 1915. His papers are said to have been in order and he had traveled from Essen, his home, as far as Sterkrade, where he stopped for a brief visit before continuing his journey.

On his way to the railroad station in Sterkrade trouble arose between him and a Belgian soldier on patrol to whom he showed his passes. During the discussion, the soldier, it is alleged, suddenly aimed his rifle at Capt. Rose. The latter sprang forward and swept the rifle aside. A fight followed, and 15 or 20 soldiers hurried up on the patrol's call for assistance.

These troops, according to this account, beat Capt. Rose unconscious with their bayonets and gunstocks. He suffered wounds on the back of the head and on the arms and a bayonet gash under the thigh. Later he was set free, according to telegrams to relatives here.

Cuno Urges Continuance of Passive Resistance.

By the Associated Press.

BREMEN, June 30.—Reiteration of his previous warnings against "premature" abandonment of the passive resistance campaign marked the address of Chancellor Cuno before the Bremen Chamber of Commerce in his swing around the country.

"Every man and woman in the border districts," he said, "knows from the bitter experiences of 1918 what would result in suffering for the occupied area and the entire fatherland from premature laying down of the weapon of passive resistance."

The Chancellor declared he had planned at first to proceed on a purely practical and economic basis in the reparation question, but the German offer made to London and Paris in this spirit had not achieved the desired goal. It was primarily essential that the people and the nation be kept on their feet until the passive resistance program was brought to a successful conclusion.

Tiny Yacht on Trip Across Atlantic.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The 14-meter yacht Sowitasgoth left Thursday night for New York in the first attempt to cross the Atlantic ever made by a vessel of that size from a German port. The trip is expected to take six weeks, but the craft has provisions for three months. The yacht's name, in an old German dialect, means "As far as it will go." She has a keel reinforced with concrete. In English measure the boat is about 50 feet long. The three navigators plan to travel by way of Funchal, France, taking the northeast trade wind to the Florida coast, where they expect to pick up the Gulf stream and proceed to New York. The yacht flies the Austrian flag in honor of the nationality of her builder, F. Plunder, who is aboard.

Wilson explained that closing the department meant that no automobile tags would be issued and no information would be given out from any other division of the department.

U. S. VIEW ON FRENCH ARMS TREATY STAN

Naval Observers Say Propos Reservation on Submarine Conforms With Text.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—On th strength of reports reaching Wash ington, American naval authorit have found no indication that th reservation proposed by France the Washington conference subm rine treaty will seriously impair t effect of the covenant.

As understood here the Frenc reservation conforms with the att tude of the French delegation du ing the conference and is design to prevent a possible misunderstan ing over clauses of the treaty whic French observers always have mai tained were contradictory.

The treaty sets forth "as an e tablished part of international law, certain restrictions on operations o submersibles, including the oblig tion to order merchant ships to su mit to search before seizure or a tack, and the prohibition again destroying merchant ships unless th crew and passengers have been fir placed in safety.

French spokesmen during an since the conference have insiste that the clear authority for subma rine operations conveyed in the ap proval of these regulations wa definitely offset in article IV whic reads:

"The signatory powers recogniz the practical impossibility of usin submarines as commerce destroyers without violating, as they wer violated in the recent war of 1914-1918, the requirement universally accepted by civilized nations for protection of lives of neutrals and noncombatants, and to the end that th prohibition of the use of submarine as commerce destroyers shall be universally accepted as a part of th law of nations, they now accept tha prohibition as henceforth bindin between themselves and they invit other nations to adhere thereto."

The French reservation would declare the treaty should not be interpreted as modifying rules previously established between signatory powers concerning surface ships, o as imposing upon submarines navigating in conformity with such rules a regime other than that applied t surface ships.

BOND SALE LIKELY TO BRING ALDERMEN TOGETHER SHORTLY

Mayor Indicates He Will Call Session of Board About Middle of Month to Pass Appropriations.

WILL EXPEDITE CONSTRUCTION WORK

Bills Carrying Funds for 15 Projects in Big Public Improvement Program to Be Presented.

Recall of the Board of Aldermen from its summer vacation to pass appropriation bills for several bond issue projects, for which money became available through the sale last Friday of the first $2,500,000 in bonds, is proposed, to expedite construction work on the public improvement program this year, Mayor Kiel said yesterday.

The Mayor indicated this call may be issued about the middle of this month. The session probably would not require more than two or three days, as the more important bills held up had been introduced in the board, referred to committees and sent to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for approval, when the Board of Aldermen adjourned, June 15, to reconvene Sept. 14.

Mayor Kiel has been ill at his home for more than a week, and was seen there yesterday by a reporter. He said that it was his desire to speed up the construction work as much as possible and this could be done only by early passage of the necessary appropriation measures.

When the Board of Aldermen adjourned, bills carrying appropriations for 15 projects in the $87,372,500 public improvement program, voted last February, were being held in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, or had not been sent to the Board of Aldermen by the Board of Public Service. Each of the proposals had been approved by the Citizens' Supervisory Committee, which has approved bond issue work, in ordinance or tentative form, aggregating $3,509,776.

$2,500,000 Available This Year.

These bills could not be passed at that time, as the charter prescribes that no appropriation measure may be passed unless money for it is available in the city treasury. Sale of the first block of bonds made $2,500,000 available for this year.

The board passed 16 appropriation ordinances for bond issue work, by agreement of the Board of Estimate to the appropriations being made temporarily from current revenue funds, which were to be reimbursed when bonds were sold. These appropriations totaled $956,076, of which $135,225 was drawn from balances of bond issues voted in 1920 and already sold.

The principal bills among those being held up provide appropriations of $94,500 for remodeling the main building at Koch Hospital; $70,000 for a kitchen building and equipment at Koch Hospital; $208,000 for a new morgue (including $68,000 from a bond issue voted in 1920); $85,000 for a women employes' building at Koch Hospital; $45,200 for roads and paving at the St. Louis Training School for Feeble-Minded; $130,000 for a hospital for tubercular insane patients at the sanitarium; $500,000 for a section of the River des Peres sewer and storm water channel, and $115,000 for a bridge over the River des Peres at Gravois avenue.

Other Important Proposals.

Other proposals being held in the Board of Public Service, and for which no ordinances have been introduced in the Board of Aldermen, include $105,000 for a men's dormitory at the St. Louis Training School; $850,000 for engine pits and intake tower for the waterworks; $100,000 for railroad switches and other construction at the waterworks; $150,000 for construction of public sewers; $500,000 toward construction of the $1,000,000 municipal mechanical and service building, and $16,000 for a clinical building at the Girls' Industrial School at Meramec Hills.

The course of a bond issue project involving construction and an appropriation is as follows: Preparation of plans and bill in Board of Public Service and their presentation to the Citizens' Supervisory Committee for approval; return to the Board of Public Service and introduction of bill in the Board of Aldermen; reference to aldermanic committee, which sends it to the Board of Estimate for approval, before reporting on it to the Board of Aldermen; final action [illegible] passage and transmission to the Mayor for approval.

Amounts drawn from six of the 20 separate bond issues making up the $87,372,500 are included in the first $2,500,000 in bonds sold, as follows: Reconstruction of sewers, $150,000; River des Peres sanitation, $900,000; improvement of parks and playgrounds, $125,000; hospitals and institutions, $760,000; mechanical and service building, $500,000; Fire Department purposes, $65,000.

STORY OF FORTUNE FOR HER SILENCE IS MYTH

Attorneys Say Divorced Wife of J. L. Nugent Got $1,500,000 As Legal Share.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The story of Mrs. Frederick Trenkman of 530 West End avenue receiving $1,500,000 because she was able to keep secret the marriage of her uncle, William E. Smith, to an actress, was punctured today by Smith's attorney, I. T. Flatte.

According to papers recently approved by Surrogate Foeley, the receipt by Mrs. Trenkman of $1,500,000 ends long negotiations and threatened suits on her part to obtain this money, which she has claimed from the will of her grandfather, William Van Rensselaer Smith.

Mrs. Trenkman in the spring of 1913 eloped with Julian L. Nugent of St. Louis and it is believed incurred the displeasure of her grandmother, the widow of William Van Rensselaer Smith, who, putting aside her husband's will granting his niece half his fortune after the death of his wife, created the smaller trust giving the bulk of the estate to her son, William E. Smith.

It became current, after the death of the grandmother, that Mrs. Nugent—who had become the wife of the former Princeton football star, Fred Trenkman—was to receive from her uncle, William, half his fortune because she had kept his secret, namely, that of his marriage to Clair Staley, an actress. But Mr. Smith's marriage was known to Roxy Smith, the grandmother, and approved by her, according to Flatte, and the story of a woman keeping a secret was merely a romantic myth.

"The truth is this," said Flatte. "Mrs. Trenkman was legally entitled to half the estate of her grandfather under his will, and Mrs. Roxy Smith, the grandmother, in creating a trust was putting aside her husband's will which would not stand a legal test."

Mrs. Trenkman was a granddaughter of William Van Rensselaer Smith, who amassed his fortune in the Arbuckle Coffee Co., and who died in Brooklyn in 1912. She married Julian L. Nugent, son of the late Byron Nugent, wealthy St. Louis merchant, at Wilmington, Del. In December, 1917, Mrs. Nugent was granted a divorce here by Judge Vital W. Garesche, and given custody of their two children. She married Frederick Trenkman several years later.

Her grandmother, Mrs. Roxy Maria Smith, died Aug. 18, 1921, and her will, it was stated, left her granddaughter the income on $600,000 and bequeathed $5,000,000 to her son, William E. Smith.

A contest was filed by Mrs. Trenkman, who alleged it had been the desire of her grandfather that she share generously in the estate, and charged Smith with exerting undue influence on his mother. The alleged agreement by which she was to receive half the estate, by keeping secret Smith's marriage, was introduced in the contest.

Smith married Mrs. Clair Staley Smith, widow of his uncle, Nicholas J. Smith, while his mother lay on her deathbed, it was stated in the court hearing.

MAN KILLED IN FREEPORT, ILL., NOT TONY MASSUD, POLICE FIND

No Resemblance Between Photograph and Finger Prints, Officers Say, After Comparison.

The St. Louis police established last night that the young man killed in a motor cycle accident Friday in Freeport, Ill., after having murdered a policeman there, was not Tony Massud, wanted here as one of the participants in the Cuckoo gang murder of Patrolman W. E. Griffin at a county roadhouse June 10, and the subsequent murder of John L. Surgant, a witness to the Griffin killing. A reward of $1000 has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Massud. Seven men are now held in the same case.

The photograph and finger prints of the dead criminal sent from Freeport, were compared last night by Supt. Shea of the Bertillon Bureau, and Chief of Detectives Hoagland, with those of Massud, which were in the police records. They said there was almost no facial resemblance, and that the finger prints in no way corresponded. It is now believed that the Freeport murderer was from Chicago, as a Chicago address was written on a slip of paper in one of his pockets.

AMUSING ANSWERS MADE BY WOULDBE TEACHERS

Examination at Jefferson City Discloses Funny Instances of Lack of Knowledge.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 30.—Examination of applicants for teachers' certificates, just completed by the examiners in the office of Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Schools, discloses that not all of the amusing answers to questionnaires are by students.

The question was asked: "What beverages should children drink?" One answer was: "Children should drink no beverages at all, but a dose of castor oil now and then won't hurt them."

Every State in the Union except Nevada and Delaware was named as belonging to the Corn Belt. New York, Omaha and Baltimore were classified as states by one would-be teacher.

In the agricultural examination, the question was asked: "What is a nurse crop?" One young woman indignantly wrote that she refused to answer any such question.

NEGRO ARRIVALS HERE THIS YEAR LISTED AT 4300

Urban League Gives Out Figures on Influx From South; 80 Per Cent Remain in City.

TOTAL FOR JUNE IS MORE THAN 1000

Families Finding Room for Hundreds Arriving Each Week and Employment Bureau Is in Operation.

Investigation of the recent influx of negroes to St. Louis from Southern States by the Urban League of the St. Louis Provident Association, which keeps in close touch with all activities of negroes, resulted in announcement yesterday that approximately 4300 negroes have established residences here since Jan. 1. It is also estimated that about a thousand others remained here a short time and then moved on to other industrial centers.

The 1920 census placed the number of negroes in St. Louis at 69,603, which was an increase of 25,643, or 58.3 per cent in 10 years. Analysis of the 1920 census reports showed that the percentage of gain of negro population in other industrial centers during the preceding 10 years was: 148.5 per cent in Chicago, 30.3 in Kansas City, 244 per cent in Youngstown, O., 47.1 in Pittsburg and 1283.6 per cent in Gary, Ind.

The influx here since Jan. 1 is somewhat heavier than the average for the last decade.

Representatives of the Urban League, of which Gordon H. Simpson is executive secretary, closely observed trains from the South during January, February and March. It is estimated that 1500 negroes arrived here during that period. During April, the number estimated to have arrived increased to 700; the estimate for May is placed at 1000 and for June, slightly more than a thousand. The Urban League estimates that 80 per cent of the arrivals remain in St. Louis and vicinity, the other 20 per cent going to Northern or Eastern industrial cities.

Negroes Wanted in Other Cities.

"A recent visit covering Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburg, New York, Brooklyn and Washington showed that in each of those centers there is an increasing demand for negro labor in practically all lines of work far beyond the present available supply," Simpson said yesterday.

"Housing presents a really acute problem and overcrowding of already congested districts is general. However, it is also true that in St. Louis, as in other cities named, many families are still finding room for the hundreds of newcomers arriving each week.

"In none of the cities named was there any report of increased sickness or disease due to the overcrowding.

"That there is a real problem of housing for negroes in St. Louis cannot be denied. Those conversant with the situation state that there are more demands for houses than can be filled. Rents have increased and prices for the sale of houses have advanced in keeping with the growing demand. However, it should be remembered that the housing problem is not peculiar to the negro section of the population. It is, on the other hand, not only a city-wide problem in St. Louis, but exists generally throughout the whole country."

Inquiry among negro real estate men has shown that the rental increases and increased prices demanded for houses not been proportionately greater than increases on property occupied by white tenants.

Opinions differ as to the cause for the migration of the negro northward. Many contend it is caused almost entirely by fear of mob violence in the South and the social and political barriers against the race there. Others contend high wages in the industrial cities are the chief factor.

Population 10,463,131 in 1920.

The negro population of the nation was 10,463,131, according to the 1920 census, an increase of only 635,000, or 6.5 per cent over the census of 1910. In 1910 negroes formed 10.7 of the total population as compared to 9.9 per cent in 1920 and 19.3 in 1890.

In an analysis of the 1920 census reports concerning the negro, Prof. Walter F. Wilcox of Cornell University recently announced the following conclusions:

"In every one of the Northern States negro deaths outnumbered births; in the Southern States, in general, the conditions are reversed.

"The difference between city and country is at least as influential upon race increase as the difference between South and North, which in this case closely parallels it. Throughout the North and in cities in the South, negro deaths are more numerous than negro births; in fact, Southern cities are even more unfavorable than those in the North to nature increase."

Simpson said the demand for negro labor here, as in other cities, exceeds the supply. He said many of the negroes arriving from the South have previously arranged for jobs through friends and others are received here by relatives who preceded them.

POLICE OPEN DRIVE AGAINST TAXI WRECKERS

City Divided Into Two Districts With Squads of 30 Men in Autos With Captains in Command.

MAN SOUGHT SINCE JUNE 18 IS ARRESTED

Charles Gerber Identified as Driver of Car From Which Bricks Were Thrown Into Yellow Cabs.

The police drive against wrecking gangs that have been attacking Yellow and Brown taxicabs with bricks, stench bombs and other missiles, subjecting chauffeurs and passengers to the hazard of serious injury, began in earnest last night, when Police Inspector Vasey divided the city into two districts and assigned a commanding officer and 30 men to patrol each district in automobiles and with riot guns to wreck the wreckers.

Inspector Vasey talked to the men at 7 o'clock, assigning Capt. McDonald to command of the special detail south of Olive street, and Capt. Maupin to the district north of Olive, and telling them that they would be held personally responsible for the arrest of any perpetrators of sabotage against taxicabs.

Taken Man Sought Since June 18.

One of the fist acts of the detail was to arrest Charles Gerber, 29 years old, of 3546 Pine street, who has been sought since June 18 for attacks that night on Yellow cabs in which a chauffeur and a woman passenger were injured. He was found at the telephone switchboard of the Diamond Cab Co., 4400 Finney avenue, and after being taken to Police Headquarters was identified, the police say, by two chauffeurs as the man who drove a Packard service car from which bricks were thrown the night of June 18 at two Yellow cabs. The chauffeur who drove the woman passenger who was injured could not be found last night to ascertain if he could identify Berger as the man who threw bricks at his car.

Berger emphatically denied that he had attacked any taxicabs and said the chauffeurs were mistaken in their identification. He said he had disposed of a Packard service car he had driven and has been employed for some time by the Diamond company. He is a member of the chauffeur's union.

At 5:45 p. m. yesterday William S. Clark, 22, of 1445 Nebraska avenue, chauffeur of a Yellow cab, stopped his cab and assaulted a negro with a jack handle for calling him a "scab" and was in turn beaten with the weapon by a white man who wrested it from him and escaped.

Chauffeur's Version of Trouble.

Clark was driving west on Chestnut street when he observed the negro, Bruce Tannie, 28, of 2925 Park avenue, crossing at Fourteenth street. As Clark passed the negro, the latter, he said, applied the name. Clark said he stopped his car and with the jack handle avenged the insult by beating Tannie on the head with it.

Before he could return to his car, Clark said, an unidentified white man wrested the jack handle from him and beat him into insensibility. He later was found by another Yellow cab chauffeur who took him to the Missouri Sanitarium, where he was found to be suffering from severe lacerations of the scalp. He was arrested there on a charge of assaulting Tannie, who was treated for lacerations of the scalp and alcoholism at a first aid station.

Free Beer on Ship to Dry It Up Before Reaching U. S.

"Drink Your Fill," Reads Sign on Steamer From Naples; Some Boats to Unload and Stock Up at Bermuda.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—"Beer free, drink your fill!"

Words as strange as these stand out on a sign that hangs today in the saloon of the Cosulich liner, President Wilson from Naples due to dock tomorrow, according to wireless messages.

The placard was hung by the captain, Stuperich, following receipt of a message from New York managers of the line informing him that the beer would be confiscated when the ship arrived and directing that it be done away with.

The ship has 1096 passengers aboard and a lot of beer, so Captain Stuperich tonight sent this message to shore:

"Consuming all beer possible. Giving it to passengers gratis. But even their capacity is limited. Will have to destroy 20 barrels or more before reaching the three-mile limit."

As the message from the President Wilson came in a real wet ship, its liquors undepleted by confiscations left port. The Tempert and Holt liner Vandyck which sailed from Buenos Aires, prior to the date when the ship dry law went into effect sailed on the return trip.

The Vandyck, it was announced, would stop at Hamilton, Bermuda, on this trip, inauguratinig a new service for all ships of the line. Hereafter Holt liners will make Hamilton a port of call, leaving their liquor stocks there when enroute to American ports, and restocking on the southern trips.

The Cunard Liner Saxonia sailed today with an angry crew of Britishers, indignant at the prospect of being deprived of their ale and porter during the trip to Plymouth and Cherbourg. Their anger was not abated when it was learned just before sailing that the ofifcials who seized the Saxonia's malt beverages had allowed the Caronia of the same line to go with a large supply of beer. A medicinal supply of 89 gallons of wine was all that the Saxonia had in her hold. This supply will be administered to passengers on prescription from the ship's doctor.

Government Feels Ships Will Abide by Liquor Rules.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—That stocks of liquor in excess of medical needs will continue to be seized by the enforcement authorities in New York and other ports is certain. The belief expressed here is that very few ships will continue to bring in supplies that can reasonably be classed as excessive and that no more drastic steps will be taken than to remove the excess and place it in storage.

The fact that the Lord Chief Justice of Great Britain and a special jury recently fined the owner of a German vessel 500 pounds sterling for having brought within British territory a consignment of liquor in less than nine-gallon containers although the liquor was destined for Antwerp does not incline officials here to start proceedings in our courts with a view to having fines assessed against foreign ships which bring in beverage liquor under seal.

In fact, the policy seems to be to go through the motions of enforcing the Volstead law against foreign ships and let their owners seek relief in the courts if they so desire. So far as disclosed, the Harding administration has no intention of appealing to the Federal courts, the explanation being that the Supreme Court already has construed the law.

Unless foreign shipping companies or their Governments can devise some relief measures, none are in sight until Congress reconvenes.

TABERT CASE DEFENSE SEEKS TO IMPEACH STATE WITNESSES

Wife Testifies Man Who Says He Prepared Victim's Body Was at Home That Day.

By the Associated Press.

LAKE CITY, Fla., June 30.—Attacks on the characters of State witnesses by more than a dozen witnesses representing the defense consumed the entire session today of the trial of Thomas Waller Higginbotham, convict whipping boss, charged with the murder of Martin Tabert of North Dakota.

The impeachment efforts were centered on J. W. Jackson, J. M. Tyson, Graham Ward and Walter Lyles, State witnesses who have testified to having prepared Tabert's body for burial after he had been lashed by Higginbotham more than 75 times. Jackson's wife and his son, Solomon, testified against him, declaring he was at home the day he is alleged to have prepared Tabert's body for burial at the stockade of the Putnam Lumber Co.'s logging camp at Clara, Fla. His wife asserted that the defense counsel had called on her at her home to get her to testify against her husband, and that she was summoned here by the "Judge of Dixie County and assured she would get $2 a day and expenses."

Charles H. McCarthy, 35, Dies of Fracture of Windpipe—Companion Injured.

2500 WHIPPINGS IN YEAR CAUSED USE OF TROOPS

Oklahoma Governor's Secretary Tells of Reports After Placing of County Under Military Control.

ADDITIONAL TROUBLE FEARED AT HENRYETTA

More Guardsmen Sent to Town When Preacher Threatens to Make Expose in Sermons.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 30.—Explanation of why Governor Walton is determined to put an end to mob outrages in Oklahoma and is is ready to use military force, if necessary, was made today by the executive's secretary, Aldrich Blake, who declared "whipping parties" throughout the State during the last year have numbered at least 2500.

Blake said the estimate of the total whippings was based on reports received by the Governor, some from his official representatives, and others from victims of mobs.

Since the Governor, last Tuesday, placed Okmulgee County unde control of troops, letters telling of mob activities have been pouring in on the executive, Blake said.

Disclaiming any intention to leave the impression that cases of mob violence over the State have been the work of "any one organization" the Governor's secretary added that while the outrages could not be traced "directly" to one organization, he believed most of them could be traced "indirectly."

Tulsa County has averaged one whipping a day, while Oklahoma County has had about one a week, reports indicated, the secretary said.

Letters Tell of Violence.

Further information was received today in regard to the seizure of a miner at Picher, in Ottawa County, who was subjected to an operation by members of a mob, Blake said. The Governor is awaiting a complete report before taking action in that county. The day also brought to the Governor a letter detailing alleged masked violence in Logan County.

The situation in Henryetta, the only portion of Okmulgee County still remaining under military control, became more tense today as a result of announcement by the Rev. C. Bowles, Baptist minister, that he would deliver two sermons Sunday on local conditions. In an advertisement yesterday the pastor stated that 'on Sunday morning he would "preach a sermon vital to every member of the church, and any who may wish to hear us."

"Sunday evening," the announcement said, "our message will be to 'Sheriff Russell and his deputies, and who is who in Henryetta.' Does the Governor know the real facts in Okmulgee County? The people of Henryetta have been mistreated by a self-appointed committee and the Governor of this State, and have been for some time by a lawless element. I speak as a minister and a taxpaying citizen."

More Troops to Henryetta.

A National Guard company from Okmulgee was sent to Henryetta today to reinforce the few guardsmen already on duty there, after Sheriff Russell and James Sturmont, Henryetta police chief, advised Adjutant-General B. H. Markham they could not persuade the Rev. Bowles to call off his sermons, and that more troops were needed for a possible emergency Sunday.

However, after a two-hour conference during the day with Col. E. L. Head, in charge of the troops at Henryetta, the Rev. Mr. Bowles said that he had prepared his "message" and allowed the understanding to go out that he would deliver it after the military rule had been lifted and there was no longer any danger of military censorship.

It was Rev. J. C. Curry, Methodist minister; Chief Sturmont and a Henryetta garage owner, who called upon Gov. Walton for action in the county last Tuesday, alleging that members of Sheriff Russell's force had been abusing their authority.

QUAIL IN DANGER OF EXTINCTION

Pinnated Grouse Likely to Become Decimated Like Heath Hen Family.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Extinction within a decade or two of the quail and the pinnated grouse or prairie chicken, unless radical protective meaures are taken by the various states, was predicted today by Dr. William T. Hornady, direction of the New York Zoo and trustee of the Wild Life Protection Fund, in confirming reports that the heath hen already had become practically extinct.

Recent investigations by Prof. A. O. Gross of Bowdoin College, disclosed only 29 of the heath hen family in the entire United States and all of these were males. As soon as these last survivors die, the species will be extinct, Dr. Hornady said. The heath hen had been decimated by hunters, but the final blow to the family came in 1916 when brush fires swept over their 2000-acre sanctuary at Tisbury, Mass., destroying practically all the females on their nests.

FORMER SHERIFF WHO IS DEAD

JOSEPH F. DICKMANN.

METZ DID NOT GIVE TESTIMONY INVOLVING NAME OF DIETERS

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 30.—Statements carried in these dispatches on June 26 in the report of the testimony in the suit of the Government against the Chemical Foundation, Inc., that the cross examination of H. A. Metz developed that E. W. Dieters had been indicted on charges of being a spy for German chemical interests and later fled the country and that Metz had engaged him to gather information to be used by United States Senator Moses in connection with a senatorial investigation of dye interests were erroneous and no testimony to that effect was given. Metz gave no such testimony.

Statements that the cross examination had revealed that Dieters had obtained information to discredit the War Department and that Metz had placed the responsibility for the employment of Mr. Dieters on Senator Moses, also are untrue as no such testimony was given.

The erroneous statements herewith corrected were obtained from the Wilmington News which has itself isued a retraction. The News states it had no representative in court, and that the misinformation was assembled from statements made by others.

Joint Service Will Be Held Today.

JOSEPH F. DICKMANN DIES FROM APOPLEXY

Former Sheriff Falls Dead at His Desk in Real Estate Office.

Joseph F. Dickmann, 67 years old, who was elected three times to the office of Sheriff of St. Louis, serving two two-year terms and one four-year term, died suddenly in his real estate branch office, 3123 South Grand boulevard, at 4 p. m. yesterday.

He was sitting at his desk, where he had been writing, when he fell to the floor. His secretary, Mrs. Nellie Pierce, called a physician, who said death had been caused by apoplexy.

Four sons and two daughters survive him, Mrs. Dickmann having died three years ago. The family home is at 3446 Halliday avenue. The sons are Joseph F. Jr., a lawter, Bernard F., Otto J. and Charles W., who are in the real estate business. The daughters are Miss Mayme Dickmann and Mrs. George Huth.

The funeral will be held at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday at St. Margaret's Catholic Church, followed by interment in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetary.

Came to St. Louis in 1876.

Dickmann was a native of Prussia, and came to St. Louis in 1876. He was first in the grocery business, then in the grain and seed business, in which he operated on the Merchants' Exchange. In the fall of 1900, he was Democratic candidate for the office of Sheriff, and was elected, at the same time that the late Joseph W. Folk was elected Circuit Attorney. Dickmann was re-elected in 1902, the office of Sheriff having a two-year tenure at that time.

During Folk's boodle crusade, Dickmann had the task of making arrests on bench warrants, following numerous indictments by the grand jury on charges of bribery and perjury. At one time, when a number of bench warrants were about to be issued, and Folk had asked that an extra number of deputiy sheriffs be on hand to serve them immediately, Dickmann and a group of his deputies walked together out Market street from the Courthouse toward the Four Courts building. The flight of one of the indicted members of the House of Delegates, who went to France, was attributed to this inadvertent indication of what was about to happen.

Brought Kratz Back.

When Councilman Charles Kratz, indicted here in the Folk crusade, was arrested in Guadalajara, Mex., Dickmann and the late William Desmond, then Chief of Detectives, went to Guadalajara with the intention of bringing him back. Kratz for a time resisted extradition successfully, and Desmond returned to St. Louis, but the sheriff remained. Later the Mexican Government gave Kratz up. Desmond made a second trip, and Dickmann and Desmond brought Kratz back here, only to be acquitted in his subsequent trial.

Dickmann was elected in 1912 to a four-year term as sheriff. Five of his nephews were in the German army during the war, but two of his sons, Bernard and Otto, enlisted in the United States Marine Corps after this country entered the war. Another son, Joseph Jr., who was his chief deputy, was later an assistant circuit attorney and a candidate for the office of sheriff.

After retiring from office, Dickmann gave his time to his realty business, which he first established in 1905. He had a downtown office at 623 Chestnut street.

MOVEMENT TO GET JENNINGS TROLLEY LINE IN OPERATION

Residents of District Formerly Served by It to Hold Mass Meeting Tomorrow Night.

Residents of the West Walnut Manor and Jennings district, northwest of the city, will hold a mass meeting at Owls' Hall, 5540 Partridge avenue, at 8 p. m. tomorrow, to consider ways and means for having the former Jennings trolley line put in operation again. The line, unable to meet competition of "jitneys," ceased operations recently and its property was sold. Twenty-nine merchants, manufacturers and professional men signed a poster announcing the meeting, which contains the statement:

"Every property owner, every business man served by this line, fully realizes the absolute necessity of securing adequate and permanent transportation—without it our property and business will suffer an irreparable loss, not considering the personal inconvenience. Every foot of property in this district is depreciating at a rapid rate. We must start the car line. Your interest is at stake. Don't fail to come."

269 Births, 221 Deaths in Week.

Two hundred and sixty-nine births and 221 deaths were recorded in St. Louis last week. There were 6 accidental deaths, 3 homicides, 3 suisides, and 3 deaths from other external violence.

WESTLICHE POST MOVES

German Language Paper Now at 1128-30 Pine Street.

Late last night and early this morning the "Westliche Post" and "Mississippi Blaetter" moved from the Times Building to their new home at 1128-30 Pine street.

The oldest daily in St. Louis, founded 66 years ago, severed its connection with the "Times" in July, 1919. The Pine street building was secured under a long time lease, and has been remodeled. Modern presses have been installed. The first floor has been fitted up for the business and executive offices, the mezzanine floor for the advertising department, and the second and third floors for the editorial department and the composing room.

TEXAN SUES KU KLUX KLAN FOR $100,000

Dallas Resident Also Wants Receiver to Make Accounting of Order's Funds in State.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., June 30.—Additional litigation against officials of the Ku Klux Klan in Texas by a man who says he is a member was started here this afternoon when Preston P. Reynolds of Dallas, sued for $100,000 damages, and asked that the officials he named be ordered to account to a receiver for monies they have received in their official positions.

Those sued today were H. C. McCall of Houston, named as "grand dragon of the Realm of Texas;" Z. E. Marvin, "Great Hitan of Province No. 2;" George K. Butcher, secretary-treasurer of Dallas Klan No. 66; J. D. Van Winkle, "exalted cyclops" of the Dallas chapter, and M. M. Minton, chairman of the "Klokan" committee of the Dallas Klan.

The suit follows one filed by Reynolds against H. W. Evans, "Imperial Wizard," in Federal court here yesterday.

Reynolds avers he does not know the amounts the defendants may have received, but believes it to exceed $250,000. He alleges they have usurped control of the Dallas Klan, and wield great influence throughout the organization in the State. He also says that the defendants have attempted to make a political organization of the Klan and have spent large sums in furtherance of their plans, which he declares were contrary to the purposes of the Klan.

According to the petition Reynolds held a life membership in the Klan, granted him by William J. Simmons. He alleges that the defendants circulated reports that he was unfaithful to the organization and issued an order attempting to suspend him. For those reasons, he declares, he had been damaged greatly. The petition declares that Simmons is the supreme head of the Klan and that H. W. Evans declared himself the head without lawful authority. While Dr. Evans' name is mentioned in the petition filed today he is not named as a defendant.

Letters From St. Louis Urge Organization of "County Church Clans."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 30.—Pastors of Protestant churches in this county are receiving letters postmarked St. Louis, calling upon them to organize against Catholic and the Jews.

They are believed to have been inspired at this time from the wide publicity which has been given the fact that Justice Arthur S. Tompkins is to give an address on the evening of July 4 in the Presbyterian Church at Goshen under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, the pastor of the Catholic church officiating. The letters read as follows:

"To the Protestant pastors of New York:

"Now that the Jews and Catholics are making every effort to keep the Protestants in subjugation which they have been controlling for a number of years, as by controlling New York they have had control of the nation whether Republican or Democratic, for as New York went so went the nation, you are requested to organize a county clan in the church of every county seat by bringing the pastors together in each county seat and form a county organization. Then organize in every church in every county into precinct clans. Rules, vote Protestants, only who have no marriage affiliations with Catholics or Jews or who are not in the employ of Jews or partners with either. Stage meetings day and night, take up collections for the purpose of organization. No mask, no rules; just bring them into the church, saint and sinner alike as supporters if not communicants.

"Save the country and your state from Jews and Catholics. Have a roster for supporters and along with the regular members.

"A. P. A. and K. K. K. organizer of C. C. C. of A. County Church Clans of America."

TWO 'INDICTED' FOR EFFICIENCY

Gifts Presented U. S. Marshal Lynch and His Son.

John E. Lynch, United tSates Marshal for this district, and his son, George T. Lynch, chief deputy for nine years, "indicted for efficiency in office and devotion to duty," were presented with respectively, a gold watch and fishing tackle by attorneys and attaches of the Federal Building yesterday at the close of their nine years in office.

Federal Judge Dyer, presiding, recalled the elder Lynch's four years' previous service as Marshal under President Cleveland. Judge Faris, naming the "charge," entered a plea of guilty for both defendants, sentenced Pohn Lynch to otium cum dignitate—dignified leisure—for life, and suspended sentence on the younger man. Former Congressman T. W. Hukriede of Warrenton, incoming Marshal, was introduced.

MELLON REORGANIZES TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Bureaus and Divisions Regrouped—Office of One Assistant Secretary Abolished.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Secretary Mellon has ordered a sweeping reorganization of the Treasury Department, effective with the beginning of the new fiscal year tomorrow. Bureaus and divisions will be shifted about and regrouped and the the office of the Assistant Secretary in charge of public health, public buildings and the coast guard abolished.

Col. Edward Clifford, who has held this place, has resigned. His friends insisted today his decision to quit public life had no connection with the departmental changes, being based solely on his desire to return to private business in Chicago.

The absence of Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Gilbert from Washington prevented any official explanation of the rerganization, which is regarded as an efficiency move.

Nature of Changes.

An Assistant Secretary is placed in charge of the fiscal offices, including the office of the Commissioner of the Public Debt, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the Mint, the Secret Service and the Treasury disbursing clerk. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the disbursing clerk formerly were under Assistant Secretary Wadsworth, in charge of foreign loans. Undersecretary Gilbert had charge of all the other offices of the new assignment.

The office of the Undersecretary retains supervision over the finances, budget bureau, commissioner of accounts and deposits, treasurer of the United States, comptroller of the currency, Federal farm loan bureau section of statistics and government actuary.

The public health service, formerly under Assistant Secretary Cl ford, is transferred to the assista secretary in charge of foreign loa who has other miscellaneous b reaus. The coast guard and supe vising architect's office, forme under Col. Clifford, go to the assi ant secretary in charge of the c lection of revenues, McKenzie Mo who has also the internal reven bureau, prohibition unit and c toms service. The transfer of t coast guard to Moss gives him supe vision over all treasury agenci dealing with prohibition enfor ment.

Col. Clifford has been Assista Secretary of the Treasury sin President Harding took office. H resignation leaves two vacanc among Mellon's assistants, as Und Secretary Gilbert will leave the trea ury after the Secretary returns fr Europe.

BROWNS LOSE TO DETROIT, 7-3; CUBS NOSE OUT CARDS, 3-2

Tigers Pound Danforth Off Hill in First

Assault on Southpaw Nets Five Runs — "Rip" Collins Holds Fohl's Batters to Four Safeties.

By Joseph F. Holland.

The hits that fall just outside the reach of fielders are just as dangerous as those which crash against the outfield walls. Dave Danforth learned that yesterday. Dave started against the Detroit Tigers and the first six batters knocked him out of the box and the Browns out of first division. It wouldn't have been so bad if they had merely knocked Dave out of the box. There is nothing to be associated with calamities in that. But in applying the punch to Dave they extended it to his team and dropped the Fohlmen from fourth to sixth place. Even Dempsey lacks that kind of a punch.

The attack came up like a typhoon and subsided just as suddenly. Six of the first seven batters hit safely and five runs were over the plate. They were not all real hits, but they were hits and they sent in runs. Five runs were plenty for "Rip" Collins, who allowed the Browns only four hits and won easily. The final score was 7 to 3.

Thus, in ten minutes the Browns tumbled two places in the standing. The most reckless Alpine climber cannot hope to equal that. Detroit went into fourth place and the Chicago White Sox, who defeated Cleveland twice, took over fifth position.

Heilmann Raps Out Double.

Haney opened the game with a neat bunt down the third base line for a hit. Jones also attempted to bunt, but fouled to Severeid. That was the only man Danforth retired. Then Dave got his first lesson about the hits that loop over the infield. Fothergill hit under a ball and dropped it too far out for the infielders and too far in for Jacobson. Harry Heilmann, leading hitter of the major leagues, followed with a liner down the foul line that kicked up a bit of dust to prove that it was fair by inches and Haney and Fothergill scored. Del Pratt followed with another on much the same order and Heilmann scored. Then another of those lucky droopers over the infield looped its way to the outfield from Veach's bat and Pratt scored, while Veach took second on the throw home.

That finished Dave and, as events proved, the Browns. Elam Vangilder came in and Rigney followed with a slow bounder over second base that permitted Pratt to score the fifth and final run. Six hits and two of them good ones. But they all counted and sent in runs.

The Browns had no such luck. They pounded the ball hard in the first inning, but each drive went straight into the hands of a Tiger. "Rip" Collins had something to do with it after that. He held the Browns hitless until the seventh, when with one out, Gerber lined to right center for a single that shattered the Tigers' no-hit hopes.

Tigers Make Five Errors.

"Rip" pitched well despite his team's poor support. Detroit made five errors and each one of them permitted a Brown hitter to reach first base. It was of no avail, however, as Collins refused to falter.

A typical instance of the Tigers' infield collapse is found in the happenings of the Browns' fifth. McManus was safe on Rigney's error and took second when Collins threw out Gerber. Severeid hit to Rigney who tossed to Jones to eliminate McManus at third. But Jones dropped the ball and both men were safe. Schliebner sent a sacrifice fly to Manush, and McManus scored. Then Root hit to Rigney who again fumbled. Collins took matters out of his infield's hands then and struck out Johnny Tobin to end the inning. That gave the Browns a run without one hard hit ball, to say nothing of a hit.

They scored two real, untainted runs in the eighth. With one out, Tobin singled, took third on Robertson's single and both men scored on Williams' double to right. That was all for the Browns.

Root Pitches Well.

If a bright spot is to be found in a game that drops a team two places in the standing, it is well to consider the relief pitching of Charlie Root. Charlie relieved Vangilder to open the third and for six innings the Tigers made four hits and scored one

Disputed Decision by Umpires in Eighth Gives Chicago Victory; Manager Rickey to File Protest

Despite Interference at Plate O'Farrell Is Allowed to Score, While Miller Is Ruled Out at Second Base — Doak Hurls Well—Four Hits Off Keen.

By Harry Neily,
Baseball Writer, Chicago American.

CHICAGO, June 30.—The Cubs managed to slip over a win on the Cardinals today ,by what might be questionable methods. They scored the winning run in the eighth inning on a play that retired the side for interference and lent itself to argument, which eventually will be referred to Prtsident John Heydler of the National League. Score, Cubs 3, Cardinals 2, and not so much credit to either side.

Errors and everything mixed up to make the so-called contest not much of a game. Each side erred thrice, but the misplays of the Cards were distributed in such manner that they did not figure in the scoring.

Old Bill Doak pitched quite well, but the Cubs earned two of their runs and received the other through a comical decision on the part of the umpires. On the other hand, "Parson" Keen held the Cardinals to four hits and they would have made no run save for errors. Keen, by the way, engineered the play that resulted in the loud squawking and the Cub "victory."

Double Steal Is Worked.

The strong domestic and foreign nines were tied in the last end of the eighth canto. O'Farrell singled. Friberg sacrificed. Hack Miller, the son of Sebastian, the strong man, sent a lusty single to right. O'Farrell kept his head down and progressed only to third. If he had been alert he would have scored and a big argument would have been avoided.

Being on third, O'Farrell attempted a double steal with Miller. He scored when Ainsmith dropped the ball. Miller also attached himself to second base. In due course of time most of the Cardinals assembled about the plate and let up howls to high heaven. Sensing a critical situation, the three umpires formed a hollow square about the plate and endeavored to appear profound. They succeeded to the extent that the official announcer yowled through the megaphone that Miller was out "for interference and the run scores."

Now, then, the interference was made at the plate when Pitcher Keen

FREEDMAN READY FOR BOUT WITH TENDLER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 30.—One hundred and fifty members of the rate men's club of Chicago, comprising representatives of a number of large railroads, were guests at the training camp of Sailor Freedman here today and saw the Sailor work out in preparation for his fight with Lew Tendler here, July 4.

Freedman went nine fast rounds today, three with Cummings, three with the amateur bantam champion of Illinois and three with Herbie Schaeffer. Tonight he was on edge and in perfect condition, but planned a hard workout tomorrow and ten rounds of boxing Monday. On Tuesday he will taper off work. Tom Jones, a former manager of Freedman, says the Sailor is in perfect condition.

GANS KNOCKS OUT WALKER IN NINTH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Panama Joe Gans tonight successfully defended his title of negro middleweight champion by knocking out his challenger, Willie Walker of New York, 39 seconds after the opening of the ninth round. Up to that time Walker had a shade the better of it. Gans weighed 151¾ and Walker 159¼ pounds.

BOWLERS WILL HOLD MEETING TOMORROW

A meeting of the St. Louis Bowling Association will be held at the Washington alleys tomorrow night, when plans to bring the next rolling of the Middle West Bowling Association tournament to this city will be made. It is expected that a tournament company to handle the details will be organized at the gathering.

Giants' Winning Streak Is Broken By Jess Barnes

McGraw Castoff Shuts Out League Leaders, 1-0, With Four Hits.

BOSTON, June 30.—Jess Barnes recently given to the Braves in the Watson-Gowdy deal, pitched one of the best games of his career in the second game of the double-header against the world champions today, holding them to four hits and enabling Boston to win, 1 to 0. The Giants won the opener, 3 to 2, so stretching their string of straight wins to 11.

It was "Jocko" Conlon day. His friends gave him a green-gold diamond ring. In the first game he was inserted as a pinch hitter in the ninth with Ford on first and two out and the score 3 to 2 in favor of the Giants. Jocko singled to right center, only remarkable fielding by Young keeping the ball from going for a homer.

In the second game Conlon played a brilliant game at second. He singled to left with out out in the eighth, advanced to second on Barnes' infield out and scored when Nixon singled to left.

Jack Dempsey Rugged, But Not as 'Fine' as in The Past, Wray Writes

Gibbons in Fine Physical Condition and Morale Seems to Be Good—Neither Has Trained as Whole-Heartedly as Might Be Expected.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor Post-Dispatch

GREAT FALLS, June 30.—The off-again, on-again financial Donnybrook which yesterday assumed the character of a battle royal, appeared to have stabilized this afternoon when statement No. 69,370 was given out by Major J. E. Lane, who is trustee for the promoters.

In a brief statement to newspapermen, Major Lane stated that all the wrinkles had been ironed out and that the promoters and Manager Kearns, acting for Dempsey, were in perfect accord.

Major Lane stated that 20 Shelby and Montana citizens were now behind the promotion with pledges to raise the $100,000 and that it would be paid as promised in the contract on July 2 and not on the day of the fight. Part of the amount was already raised and the rest would be, he told newspaper men.

Kearns, he said, in order to further the interests of the promoters and to show his eagerness to have the fight take place as scheduled, had agreed to turn over Dempsey's share of the motion pictures. This share, 42 per cent, it was stated, had an estimated cash value of $50,000, Major Lane said.

No attempt will be made to dispute the validity of Kearns' contract, as was threatened last night by interested local capitalists.

Dempsey in Pleasing Workout.

Jack Dempsey's workout today, the next to last of his training period, pleased hundreds of fans who crowded in to the indoor gymnasium. He punched the big bag and shadow danced; then sparred with Jack Burke and Bermondsey Billy Wells, two rounds each.

The recent arrivals among the critics were very much impressed with his showing, especially as he displayed more pep than hitherto. He is boxing better and altogther he made the best impression since starting his training here.

Tomorrow he will put on his last public boxing and probably will take it very easy for fear of suffering a cut or minor injury that would handicap him during the fight.

The city is filling up with arrivals here to see Dempsey's final workout. Tomorrow will see the end of the training campaign of Challenger Tom Gibbons and Champion Dempsey. Preparation for their July 4 fight has not at all times been satisfactory in the meticulous eyes of the untrained observers here in the interest of newspapers from California to Massachusetts.

Both Men Fit Physically.

Dempsey, has been on the job for six weeks and Gibbons for a week or two less. At times both men have gone slowly. Neither has attacked training work with the whole-hearted vigor usually seen in camps of champions and challengers. But, in the main, it can be said that both fighters today are in fine physical condition.

Gibbons has not been in better physical condition for some time and is boxing with all his well-known shiftiness and skill. His morale seems to be good.

Dempsey, in physical condition, is not as "fine" as he has been in the past and not as ambitious in his efforts against his sparring partners. However, he is rugged, powerful and at times brilliant. He will have no excuses on the ground of indifferent physical preparation for the coming contest. His co-ordination in boxing is slightly off and he lacks the fire that he showed at Toledo and Atlantic City. Furthermore, his sparring mates have been poor—not to compare with the men who have prepared Gibbons.

Dempsey's manner toward the fight has been rather indifferent as if it were "all in," although he always speaks in complimentary terms of Gibbons.

Gibbons' Condition in Contrast to Physical Shape Before Recent Bouts

Gibbons' present good condition is in contrast to his physical shape just before and during two of his important contests, within the last two months. When Harry Greb beat him he was ill and not fit to go through with the bout, but insisted upon going forward with it, to his detriment. At New Orleans where he not long since flattened a good light heavyweight "Chuck" Wiggins, he entered the ring with an abscessed ear. His manager wanted to call off the contest but Tommy would not let him. Gibbons won, but his showing was wretched, critics say. He could not put his foe away, but his victory was on a technical knockout. Friends did not like his performance then.

Gibbons Occasionally Looks 34.

Today Gibbons is in perfect health and in the pink of condition, at least for a man of his years—34. And don't forget he is not 29 but 34 and at times looks it in the ring. He will be a considerably better Gibbons than the one who faced either Greb or Wiggins.

He will have to be, if the consensus of observers now here spells anything. Despite the general agreement that Dempsey is a shade below par, the difference in size, strength, aggressiveness and probably morale is all in favor of the champion. Dempsey at times has flashed evidences that he still has the old fire and power in leash and that he is not batting the partners around savagely because he is older and perhaps sympathetic.

As an evidence that he is not hitting with the same accuracy, correspondents who have been on the ground for some time relate that once, in an effort to crush big George Godfrey he missed him so widely that he hit one of the ring stanchions instead. On another occasion with "Big Ben" Wray in front of him, seven feet 2 inches of helpless target to shoot at, he missed six terrific whangs at Big Ben's jaw. When he landed, however, Big Ben folded up like a hall hat rack, vintage 1888.

As to what fighting styles the men will assume, questioning is wasted. No fighter changes his style on the eve of an important battle. It would merely handicap him to do so. Stories of new blows and planned campaigns are all balderdash.

Dempsey's Plan of Attack.

Dempsey's only plan is to sock the unfortunate gentleman in front of him somewhere between the belt and the crown of his head, and eke behind the head—with the well-known rabbit punch. His system is to take what he has to and then reach the enemy's vitals with one of those terrific hooks with either hand. After which nature will take its course. His equipment for producing this result is very little impaired, so that there is no need for him to alter his methods.

Gibbons' practice work has shown that he intends to pursue the safety first methods of other days. Pugilistically without that 42-centimeter punch Dempsey would be considered "made to order" for Gibbons. Tom likes them to step into him whereupon he meets them with very solid left handers and a few rights. He his not practiced fighting in clinches and it is plain that Dempsey will not get him into many of these if Tom can step away from them. He hopes to wear out his foe and then come on and outpoint him.

That is Gibbons' style with all foes, especially those whom he has reason to fear are dangerous. Dempsey with his dynamite in either hand will probably make Tom step backwards a little faster and counter

Eddie Held Shoots Brilliant Golf to Defeat Bockenkamp For Trans-Mississippi Title

Former National Municipal Champion Conquers Fellow St. Louisan in Final, 5 and 3 — Sinks Eagle 3 and Birdie 3 on Last Two Holes of Match.

By the Associated Pres.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., June 30.—Eddie Held, 20 years old, of St. Louis, carried the title of trans-Mississippi champion tonight, winning the honor this afternoon in a match with Richard E. Bockenkamp, another St. Louis entry, two years his senior, over the Minikahda course. His deadly chip shot, combined with long tee shots, many of which were for 275 yards, and a firm putting touch gave him a 5 and 3 win.

Held, former National municipal course champion, was never down after the first nine holes, when Bockenkamp had him one down twice, only to have him square the match on the next hole. He ended the morning round two up, and virtually repeated his performance of yesterday against Harry Legg of Minneapolis by winning two out of the next three holes.

Held's success in the early part of the afternoon play did not shake Bockenkamp's nerve for the came back with a rush after halving the fourth and won the fifth and sixth, but the unvarying accuracy of the youngster's chip shot, which time after time put him dead to the pin for a certain putt, caused Brockenkamp to attempt to run out long putts, the great majority of which refused to drop.

Held's Eagle Three.

The two made the turn in the afternoon round fighting every inch of the way. Held with a 36 and Bockenkamp with a 37. On the tenth Held was in trouble and Bockenkamp took the hole and was only two down. They halved the eleventh and then Held went to work. He played a perfect four while Bockenkamp tried to run out a long putt and was over the cup, missing his next.

The thirteenth was halved, and then came Held's eagle 3 on the 475 yard fourteenth.

His tee shot was well down the fairway and his brassie second was ten feet from the pin, while Bockenkamp was taking three to reach the green. He tried gamely to sink a long putt, which might have disconcerted Held, but the ball slipped over one edge of the cup, stopping 18 inches away. Held was careful with his putt, which traversed a slight rise, dipped into a roll of the green and plunked into the cup for the second eagle of the tournament. J. A. Kennedy of Tulsa having made an ace on the par three 125 yard third.

The eagle left the match a dormie four, but Held's winning streak was still with him and he was down on the fifteenth with a birdie 3, while Bockenkamp needed a five.

The first nine holes of the scheduled thirty-six did not indicate strongly that Held would be champion. His tee shots, while long, were off the fairway, but he was fortunate in escaping serious trouble. His putting blade, however, was keen and his chip shot saved him time after time, taking away whatever advantage Bockenkamp might have had by running the ball inside in many instances a partial stymie.

Bockenkamp Weakens.

Coming in on the first round Held picked up the first two holes, when Bockenkamp's game broke, and he found the rough or traps with both his firsts and seconds. Held dropped the fourteenth and fifteenth before par golf when his tee shots failed him and he had trouble with his brassie, but he saved himself on the next hole when he ran a ten-foot putt for a half, and downed his opponent with a par four on the seventeenth.

On the way out in the afternoon Held was putting for birdies on the first three holes forcing Bockenkamp's play to such an extent that he won two of the three. The failure of Bockenkamp's putt to fall was enough to shake his nerve, but he only fought harder, getting back two of the holes.

No Luck on Putts.

On the 190-yard sixth, Bockenkamp putted for a birdie which slipped from his grasp when his ball hit the back of the cup and turned to one side. On the 440-yard seventh he was on in three but again fortune turned her head as his bid for a half rimmed the cup, costing him the hole. Again on the 220-yard eight his bid for a win was refused, while his long putt from the edge refused to find the cup, just by a hair's breadth line.

with a trifle less force than ever before in his career.

It is, therefore, reasonable to suppose that the fight will, in the opening rounds at least, find Dempsey crowding in, missing perhaps at first, taking some nasty counters, trying to get close enough to get in some of his punishing body work.

How long Gibbons can elude Dempsey or how many rounds Dempsey will keep his "pep" and stamina under running fight conditions are questions the fight itself will have to answer.

Mike Gibbons Almost Blind in One Eye

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, June 30.—Mike Gibbons, middleweight brother of Tommy Gibbons, challenger for the heavyweight crown, known in ring circles around the world as "The Phantom," and Baph McKenna, the bantamweight who was a pocket edition of the elder Gibbons, will never box again because of defective vision.

In his last few starts the Phantom collided with punches which in other days would have whizzed harmlessly by, been blocked with elbow or shoulder, or have been picked off with a glove before well started. It was not until he visited an eye specialist that Mike learned that the sight of one eye was virtually gone, due, it is believed, to a loose lace of a glove striking it.

McKenna was recently dismissed from a hospital where he was taken following his last bout with Johnny Ertle, former bantamweight title claimant in which Ertle shaded him and landed a blow which definitely put out of the ring one of the cleverest little boxers ever developed in this section. Physicians declared McKenna's eye would never regain its usefulness.

McKenna, who worked with Gibbons in training, had Mike's style to the last detail. He was not as inclined as the Phantom to stay in close, but showed as well in flashy footwork and speed.

Iowa U. Wins Meet.

OMAHA, Neb., June 30.—Athletes from the University of Iowa easily won the second annual track and field meet of the Mid-Western Association of the Amateur Athletic Union here this afternoon, piling up 60 points compared to 30 for the University of Nebraska and 19 for Drake. Omaha Athletic Club scored 9 and Des Moines University one.

RING WINS NINTH GAME; FOURNIER GETS HOMER

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—Jimmy Ring turned in his ninth victory of the season by defeating Brooklyn, 6 to 2 in the second game of the double-header. The Dodgers won the opener 10 to 4. Ring's triumph made the series 3 to 2 in favor of Brooklyn.

Jimmy Johnston of the Dodgers established a record by hitting consecutively four times in the first game and the same number in the second. He had a home run, three doubles and four singles.

Fournier's home run in the eight inning with Johnston on base saved Brooklyn from a shut-out against Ring.

Texas Stars Win College Net Title

White and Thalheimer Defeat Yale Team in a Five-Set Match.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 30.—Carl Fischer, the southpaw star of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, today won the intercollegiate tennis championship by defeating Gerald Emerson, of Columbia, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2.

In one of the greatest doubles matches ever seen in college tennis here, the University of Texas stars, Lewis N. White and Lewis Thalheimer, defeated Lucien Williams and Arnold W. Jones of Yale, in five sets, 11—9, 6—3, 9—11, 5—7, 6—1.

For nearly three hours and a half the two college doubles teams waged their battle for the national college crown and it was sundown before the winner was decided. At the end of the match, all of the players were on the verge of a collapse.

Both matches were of championship caliber but Emerson, unused to the left-hand slants of Fischer in the singles contest, was unable to cope with his delivery and proved easy for the Philadelphia racquet wielder. Numerous errors by Emerson aided Fischer.

Yale's players in the doubles, after staging a great uphill fight in the third and fourth sets to even the score with the Texans found the pace too fast and had to bow in the fifth set.

Different styles of play came into action in the last set, each team trying hard to outguess the other. Thalheimer, who appeared one of the greatest players of the tourney, kept up a rapid fire line of chatter during the match. This helped to unsteady the Yale players.

The deciding set started as a real battle, but wound up with an easy victory for Texas. With Thalheimer serving, the Yale players forced Texas to deuce twice before losing the opening game, while the second required 26 points.

The Texans were forced to deuce again in the third, but finally won at 6-4, while Yale took the mourth for their last game victory. Texas then rushed through three games in a row to win the title.

The point scores:

run off him when Tobin dropped a fly ball. The first inning handicap was too much. Lucky hits are just as dangerous as those that bound off the outfield walls.

The final game of the series will be played today. "Dixie" Davis will attempt to recover some of that lost ground for the Browns. If Cleveland wins from Chicago, the Browns can go back into fourth place by beating the Tigers. Even with two defeats in three games, the Browns are only three and one-half games out of second place.

Ty Cobb tries something new every day. He was an expert on the matter of public relations yesterday. The crowds have given Ty the gentle "razz" since it was rumored that he was riding a good team out of the pennant-contending class. There was nothing to indicate that he was not a Jimmy-Burke yesterday. He patted each man on the shoulder, exuded words of encouragement from his position on the first base line and, in general, gave the impression that he was an all-around good fellow.

Off the field, Ty is just that sort. But a baseball uniform and a tight ball game can work a gigantic change in him. It is just an instance of a desire to win at all hazards. It is the spirit that made him the greatest ball player of all time.

"Rip" Collins came to the Tigers in a trade for Howard Ehmke during the winter. Ehmke has won 11 and lost five for the Red Sox, and "Rip" has won two and lost eight.

GLENNA COLLETT WINS FROM CANADIAN WOMAN IN MATCH FOR TITLE

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 30.—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, national women's golf champion, today defeated Miss Ada MacKenzie of Toronto in the final round of the invitation tournament over the course of the Buffalo Country Club, 2 and 1.

Miss MacKenzie matched the champion's performance with strikingly good golf throughout. At the eleventh hole the contestants were even. The Toronto girl, however, was unable to keep pace with the titleholder when Miss Collett struck her stride. Miss Collett was not at any time during the tournament pushed to her best golf.

Francis Hunter Experiences Difficulty With English Opponent.

By Herbert L. Bourke.

(Copyright, 1923.)

LONDON, June 30.—This was an exceptional day at Wimbledon, what we term the great democratic day, our Saturday afternoon holiday. The people, mostly club players, came down to make a record crowd despite the fact that yesterday's great match between Johnston and Richards was supposed to be the climax and would knock the stuffing out of the meeting.

I confess the scintillating struggle left me limp and all that happened today, although very good, seemed most tame in comparison.

All the talk was about Johnston and Richards and by the way of showing how intense their battle was, both confessed today they were feeling the strain. However both appeared successfully in the mixed doubles, Johnston and Miss Sears beating Major Moss and Mrs. Harvey, 6—4, 10—8. Richards and Mrs. Mallory beat P. C. Chase and Miss Lidderdale, a famous hockey player, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2. Richards told me early in the week he would withdraw from the mixed doubles, but apparently changed his mind after losing in the singles.

In the men's singles, Francis T. Hunter, who is menaced in his half of the draw by Gordon Lowe, did not impress me greatly today while he was beating Capt. Dicks. Hunter won 9—7, 6—4, 8—6, this being a travesty on their comparative form, although Hunter, knowing he would win, possibly kept well within himself.

Before meeting Lowe, Hunter must conquer Count DeGomar of Spain or D. M. Greig who have yet to settle the issue. Lowe has an easy task in his next round.

Johnston Meets Campbell.

In the upper half, Campbell, the Irish Davis Cup player, qualified to meet Johnston by beating LaCoste of France in a great rally after losing the first two sets. Campbell relies mainly on ground strokes but no doubt Johnston is his superior in this respect and much better at volleying.

If Johnson survives he will probably meet B. I. C. Norton in the semi-final. Today Norton beat Jean Borotra of France by supreme tactics and no one knows what this erratic youngster has up his sleeve. The South African's next opponent is Max Woosnam, a great all round athlete, but Norton should win with something to spare.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Goss both won in singles, the former beating Miss Lidderdale, 6—3, 6—3, in a match not showing her at her best. Mrs. Mallory now meets Mrs. Beamish and the winner plays Mlle. Lenglen. The French woman had an easy victory over Mlle. Vlasto of France 6—1, 6—0. Miss Goss in the lower half of the draw beat Miss Beckingham, a young player, 6—2, 6—3 and next plays Miss McKane, the winner being a probable semi-finalist against Miss Ryan.

DISPUTED DECISION IN EIGHTH INNING WINS FOR CUBS OVER CARDS

picked up the ball that Ainsmith dropped. Miller was standing idly around second base. The side was out. Manager Rickey was in a lather. He will write to the president of the league. Everybody hopes he wins—except officials of the Cubs. How a man can be out at second base on interference at the plate is one of those oddities of so-called human experience accountable only by figuring the comindal mental processes of the average umpire.

Keen Figures in Scoring.

The Cubs counted in the third when Keen reached first on a force-out and finished the circuit on singles by Statz and Hollocher. In the fifth Keen beat out a bunt to Stock, went to second on Statz' single and took third on Hollocher's sacrifice. He scored when Grantham lifted a sacrifice fly to Blades. The third Chicago run was scored as already noted.

Despite the comical decision of the assembled umpires, the Cards refused to quit in the ninth. Mueller doubled after one was out. Ainsmith tapped to Keen and, Mueller, who very foolishly left second base, was run down. Toporcer walked for Freigau, but Smith, pinch hitting for the hard working and worthy Doak, took three futile swings.

The final game of the series will be conducted tomorrow. Aldridge and Pfeffer are likely to work

How to Use the Mashie-Niblic And When It Is Unwise to Use It

Gene Sarazen Tells How Shots Should Be Made — When Way to the Green Is Open Take a Straighter-Faced Club —How to Get Out of Sand.

By Gene Sarazen,
(Copyright, 1923.)
World's Champion Golfer.

The mashie-niblick or niblick shot is not really very difficult, yet many golfers make this shot much harder than it is. If you can only get into the habit of allowing the club-head to do most of the work on it you will find it quite simple in its execution. And if you once learn to play this club correctly and efficiently you will find it a great stroke-saver.

While discussing the use of the mashie-niblick I think that it is well to point out when it should be used and when it should be left in the bag.

For one thing, if you have a straight shot into the green, and you are within easy pitching distance, never use the mashie-niblick. Use either your mashie or, if you are quite close to the green, take a straighter-faced club such as a mid-iron. There is less chance for error with either of these clubs than with the mashie-niblick and the shot is simpler.

But there are occasions when only a mashie-niblick or niblick can be sued. If you have to pitch over a trap or if you have to get out of a pit you will, of course, have to resort to the niblick although there are some traps out of which you can emerge easier and get greater distance with a mashie or iron.

All of this will, of course, depend on the lie and the distance of the trap from the green. But to take a mashie-niblick for a chip from just off the green is suicide!

Don't quit on the Stroke.

In playing a mashie-niblick from off the turf it is well to take a fairly open stance. In addressing such a shot I generally stand with the feet about 20 inches apart and with the right toe about 17 inches from the ball, the left being 20 inches away.

Grip the club very tightly, with the hands well on top, and on the back-swing take the club very straight and high. And above all be sure to swing back very slowly. You should never hurry the swing with a niblick, because that kind invariably means a topped shot.

Avoid all body sway. This is one of the main reasons why so many players miss this shot. The body should always be held rigid when playing this shot, and pivoting, too, should be avoided. All of the work in swinging the club is done with the arms.

Another reason why so many fail on this shot is because they quit on the down-stroke. In other words they fail to hit through; consequently there is no firmness or character to the shot. The height of the back-swing will regulate the distance of the shot but in each and every case you must hit through, taking turf and finishing with the hands well out in front.

For Getting Out of a Trap.

In addressing the ball you should stand well over it and be in fixed position before you swing. Needless to say the eyes must be glued to the ball throughout the swing.

This is one of the shots in golf where the less body action there is, the better will be the shot.

Now when you come to play out of a bunker be sure first of all to take a good look at the lie. The cardinal rule on all trapped shots is make sure to get out. But there are times, as I said before, when you might use a mashie or an iron to better advantage than your niblick.

When playing out of the sand do not keep the eyes on the ball but on the sand an inch or two behind the ball. Unless the trap is shallow and hard always take sand in playing this shot. It is the only safe and sure method of getting out af a trap. Lay the face of the club well back and cut across the ball.

Another point to remember about playing bunker shots at an angle is to make sure you are standing firmly on your feet before you swing. Many players play this shot somewhat carelessly and when they swing the club their feet slip from under them, spoiling the shot.

CINCINNATI'S FAMOUS BASEBALL FAN DIES

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 30.—"Al, the Milkman," long famous as an ardent rooter for the Reds and known by all National League teams playing here, died in a hospital late today. "Al" had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Perched in the bleachers at Redland Field, "Al" gained his reputation as one of the most faithful of fans. "Al" always had his own seat there and the other bleachites always saw to it that the seat was reserved for him. Patrons of Redland Field came to know "Al" as the result of his practice of rewarding with floral pieces Reds who hit home runs.

"Al's" name was Albert Schoensleben.

JOHNSON GETS RESULTS IN WAR ON "POOLS"

NEW YORK.—While Commissioner K. M. Landis is decrying baseball pool selling in his speeches at banquets in various cities, President Johnson of the American League is getting actual results in his fight to suppress this evil. Through Johnson's influence the Illinois Legislature is about to enact a drastic law. The lower house, by a vote of 100 to 1, recently passed a bill making baseball pools unlawful and prescribing penalties ranging from $200 to $1000 in fines or imprisonment for one year. The bill now goes to the Senate, where, it is said, there will be little or no opposition.

Meanwhile Johnson has been conducting a vigorous campaign against the pool sellers in the city of Chicago, where they have boldly carried on business for many years. He has received hearty co-operation from the Police Department and others.

Teddy Eggman of East St. Louis retained his title as junior tennis champion of the St. Louis district by defeating Mac Smith in the final round of the tournament at the Triple A yesterday afternoon. The match was decided in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 10—8.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, June 30.—Five former champion racing drivers of America will be among those at the starting line when the 250-mile automobile race gets under way at the board racing bowl here July 4. Prizes range from $9000 down to [illegible] for the first 10 cars to finish. Each accepted entrant will be guaranteed $500.

The time set at the opening of the speedway last year is expected to be broken July 4. In a preliminary heat recently Jerry Wonderlich sped around the bowl in 38 seconds, or at the rate of 118.5 miles per hour.

Among the 30 drivers entered is Tommy Milton, victor here last year, winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race and national champion in [illegible]. Jimmy Murphy is another entrant. He was awarded the national championship by the American Automobile Association last year and is leading the field of racing drivers this year. Other drivers entered who are former champions are Eddie [illegible], Ralph De Palma, and Earl Cooper.

The cars in this year's race are to be single seaters, with motors of 122 cubic inches piston displacement. Cars entered last year seated two persons, the driver and his mechanic. Because of the lighter weight of this year's cars, it is expected the time of 108.6 miles per hour made last year will be superceded.

DREWES WINS MATCH

Defending Champion Brown Will Play Cooper Today—Kansas City Stars Are Here.

By Davidson Obear.

The singles event of the Central States tennis tournament started yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Triple A Club in Forest Park. Play in the doubles will start today.

Owing to good weather and almost perface conditon of the courts, the tournament had a good opening, a number of first round contests being decided during the afternoon's play.

There were 12 matches in the first round of the men's singles. All of these were decided in straight sets which is unusual for the opening round of a Central States championship.

Ted Drewes, former Central States champion, and Allen Bucknell, the East St. Louis star, were the first to start the singles. Drewes won this match by the score of 6-2, 6-4. Wray Brown did not play his first round encounter, but will oppose L. B. Cooper today.

New Yorker Eliminated.

The first visiting player to participate in the play was Lewis Hopkins Rogers of New York. Rogers is a West Side Tennis Club player, but he was eliminated by Karl Hodge in the first round. The score was 6-3, 6-2. Considering his age, the New Yorker plays a very steady game, but was not quite fast enough for his opponent yesterday.

In the feature match of the first round, W. C. Johnson Jr. defeated W. F. Davie. These two players battled for 20 games before a decision was reached. Johnson won by a 6-4, 6-4 score. Although losing, Davie surprised by his uphill playing against Johnson, who is one of the leading Tower Grove Park players.

Herbert Weege had a hard time with Robert Lueders in another singles match. Lueders forced him to a 7-5, 6-4 score before the contest was decided. Dr. George Rice, the veteran, won four games in each set before losing to Karl Kammann, the Municipal champion.

Kansas City Stars Here.

The two Kansas City stars, Phil Bagby and John Hubbell, arrived last night and will probably get into action today. They will play in singles and doubles. Bagby is the ranking player of Kansas City, while Hubbell is in the first ten in that city.

John Barr of Dallas and S. A. Fitch of the Rice Institute team in Texas have telegraphed their entries and are expected here this morning. Barr is one of the leading players of the Southwestern territory, while Fitch has been competing in the National Intercollegiate event at Philadelphia during the past week.

First round matches in the doubles will start today. There are 28 teams entered. A number of other matches in the singles will be played this morning and afternoon.

Yesterday's Results.

Men's Singles.

First round, upper half—E. R. Koster defeated J. K. Goodwin, 6—3, 6—4. H. W. Weege defeated Robert Lueders, 7—5, 6—4. E. A. Rice defeated E. H. Kieselhorst, 6—2, 6—1. K. H. Kamman defeated Dr. G. H. Rice, 6—4, 6—4. R. M. Cantwell defeated R. Hereford, 6—4, 9—7. W. J. Skrainka defeated H. M. Sarason, 6—1, 6—2.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Larry Brown, former captain of the University of Pennsylvania track team, recently attested his fitness for consideration for the 1924 Olympic team. Brown's hat is in the Olympic ring. This means that if Allan Helffrich of Penn State and the N. Y. A. C. is to go across the Atlantic next summer as America's half-mile ace, he's got to do some rare stepping on the cinders. The former Penn captain's feat of running 600 yards in 1 minute 13-10 seconds two weeks ago shows him to be as good as he ever was. And so Uncle Sam appears assured of still another great performer at Paris next summer—a lad who should show around 1 minute and 54 seconds for 800 meters.

Brown defeated Helffrich in the 1922 Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. half-mile championship in 1:56 1-5, but lost a decision to the Huntington, L. I., boy at the National Collegiates, a fortnight later, in 1:58 1-10.

Perhaps the most encouraging in the long string of fine performances that were accomplished at the Yale-Harvard dual games on June 16, was that of Capt. Tommy Campbell of Yale Blue, who won the half-mile run in 1:55.

Will Referee July 4 Title Bout

JAMES DOUGHERTY.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—James F. Dougherty, referee for the Dempsey-Gibbons bout at Shelby, Mont., July 4, has been interested in the boxing game for about 35 years. He has been engaged in the business in almost every capacity, having started as a welterweight wrestler and in later years he was promoter, matchmaker, manager, trainer and referee.

The most important of matches in which Dougherty, who lives at Ridley Park, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, and known as the "Baron of Leiperville" was the third man in the ring, were two in which Champion Dempsey was a participant.

He officiated in the Dempsey-Battling Levinsky contest in Philadelphia in 1918, counting out the Quaker City heavyweight in the third round.

On Labor Day, 1920, Dougherty was referee in Dempsey's match with Billy Miske of St. Paul at Benton Harbor, Mich. The Baron counted out the Minnesotan in the third round.

Manages Two Boxers.

Dougherty has been a booster of boxing virtually all his life. Originally a Philadelphian, Jimmy left the Quaker City and moved to Leiperville, where he opened a boxing club after the game had been killed in Philadelphia. At Leiperville, Dougherty staged 15 and 20-round matches to decisions and while his promotion of bouts in such an out of way place did not prove a financial success, he continued arranging bouts until the game came back in Philadelphia.

Dougherty at present is managing Bobby Barrett and Alex Hart, lightweights. Hart is matched to meet Champion Benny Leonard in Philadelphia, July 9.

Dougherty is 53 years old.

Yankees Again Win From Athletics, 6-1

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Yanks made it three straight over the Athletics today before 30,000 fans by a score of 6 to 1. But for Witt's misplay on a drive by Welch in the second inning Herbert Pennock would have had a shutout. Witt let an ordinary single bound over his head for a home run for the only score made by the Athletics.

The Yanks had trouble with Harris, but clinched the game in the eighth at the expense of Bob Hasty after Harris had retired for a pinch hitter.

NATIONALS NOSE OUT BOSTON SOX 2 TO 1

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The Senators defeated the Red Sox in the tenth inning of an exciting battle today, 2 to 1. It was a stand off in pitching between Quinn and Johnson until the latter retired in the fifth with an injured leg and Russell held the Chancemen at bay thereafter. The decisive tally developed in the overtime frame from singles by Bluege, Peck and Goslin.

WHITE SOX WIN TWO; SPEAKER HITS HOMER WITH THREE ON BASE

CLEVELAND, O., June 30.—The Chicago White Sox made it three in a row over the Indians by winning both ends of today's double-header, 3 to 1 and 5 to 4. Urban Faber was in rare form and had the Tribe buffaloed from the start. Guy Morton also pitched well in the first game, but George Uhle petered out after six good innings and allowed four runs in the seventh. Blankenship helped to win his own game with a single to center with the bases full. Hooper followed up with a drive off the wall that scored the other two.

The four runs scored off Blankenship were the result of Speaker's home run in the ninth with the bases full, "Spoke" driving over the right field screen.

The club championship will start July 4, and there will be matches between the Oxford-Cambridge team and one from Princeton and Leland Stanford, on July 6 and 7, and the anual invitation starting off on July 30.

White Is Named Coach of Piker Basketball Five

New Washington Mentor Was Star in Big 10 While Member of Purdue Quintet.

Don S. White of Purdue University has been named coach of the Washington University basketball team for next season, it was learned yesterday. White this summer is coaching at Winona Lake, Ind.

White was regarded as one of the leading floor guards of the Middle West during his college career at Purdue, and is undoubtedly one of the greatest basketball players the Boilermakers ever owned.

White began his basketball career as a member of the Lebanon (Ind.) high school team, which was at that time coached by Ward Lambert, now head basketball coach at Purdue. Under Lambert's direction, and mainly through the brilliant playing of White, the Lebanon team for two cousecutive years won the high school championship of Indiana and was runner-up for the honor a third year. For three years the great Purdue star was the unanimous choice for a guard position on the mythical all-state high school five.

Was a Star at Purdue.

Following his graduation from high school, White entered Purdue and easily won high honors as a member of the freshmen varsity squad. The following year the Lebanon youth starred as a member of the regular varsity, which finished second to Chicago, after winning eight straight Big Ten conference games. White received an honor position on many mythical Big Ten fives.

White continued as an outstanding star during his junior year here, in which Purdue finished in a triple tie for first place. He was the unanimous choice for all-conference guard his third year, and led the conference in free throwing, while he was one of the leading scorers. His final year saw him playing more wonderful basketball.

After his graduation from Purdue he starred as a member of the Indianapolis Omars, one of the State's leading professional teams, composed entirely of former college stars.

White Knows the Game.

White is a typical product of the game of basketball as first taught by Ralph Jones, at Illinois, and later by Ward Lambert, the Purdue coach. As a roving guard, he has seen few equals in the conference. He was a sensational dribbler and shot during his college career, and holds a record of 12 out of 13 free throws made in a Big Ten conference game. His defensive qualities were as excellent as his offensive during his career at Purdue.

White is the possessor of a pleasing personality, and has numerous qualities which will stand him in good stead now that he has picked out a coaching career. The former Purdue star knows basketball as taught by Jones and Lambert, from one end to another, and what is more, can teach it.

BABE ADAMS BEATS REDS FOR 8TH STRAIGHT WHEN ENS SINGLES

PITTSBURG, June 30.—The Pirates took the odd game of the present home series from the Reds, 4 to 3, when Jewel Ens singled with the bases loaded in the ninth, with one out.

It was "Babe Adams Day" here, and the veteran celebrated his eighth straight victory of the season after the fans presented him with an auto before the game. The presentation was made by President John Heydler of the National League.

Rixey, who twirled for the visitors, was hit hard, but good fielding kept down the score.

"Pie" Traynor was forced to leave the game in the seventh inning when Roush spiked him on the arm. Roush spiked Catcher Schmidt on the next play, but he continued in the game. Score:

Union Electric Nine Takes Lead In Commercial

Nine Runs in Eighth Inning Clinches Verdict—Butlers Defeat Bakers.

The Union Electric team went on a hitting spree at the expense of Pitcher Blech and defeated the Grahams, 14 to 4 in a battle for the Commercial League lead at Fairground Park yesterday. Victory gave the Electrics the league leadership.

Until the eighth inning, neither team had gained a commanding advantage. The Union Electric batters clubbed Blech's offerings for 9 runs in the eighth and removed all doubt as to the outcome. Glore pitched tight ball for the Electrics, yielding 9 scattered hits and striking out 5.

The other Commercial League contests were slugging matches.

Cummings Beats Knepper for Title

By the Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., June 30.—Playing golf worthy of a champion, Dexter Cummings of Yale won the intercollegiate title today by defeating Rudolph Knepper of Princeton 2 up and 1 to play in the 36-hole final match of the annual tournament at the Siwanoy Clubs.

The 20-year-old Yale student took the lead at the first hole and never was headed. In defeating Knepper, Cummings accomplished something that few other golfers have been capable of doing. Making the early round in 74 Cummings retired for the intermission 2 up.

Considering that he had made several bad drives that got him into trouble Knepper did well to keep as close to his opponent as he did. The afternoon session was practically a repetition of the earlier round. When Cummings did weaken it was only for a hole or two. He always had enough reserve to come back and take advantage of his opponent's slips.

The Clown Beats Field of Five in Latonia Classic

Hopeless Finishes Second, Two Lengths Behind, With In Memoriam Third.

WINNER GETS $15,650

Eastern Horses Fail to Place — Victor Plays $7.50 to $2 in Mutuels.

By the Associated Press.

LATONIA, Ky., June 30.—Under a beautiful cloud-flecked sky, over a good track and to the plaudits of probably 30,000 race fans, The Clown won the Latonia Derby this afternoon in the last few jumps from Hopeless. It was a great race, with In Memoriam third. Rialto and Martingale, the Eastern entrants, were unplaced.

This forty-first running of the classic was a brilliant event. The fact that the field was cut to five did not detract from the class of the event. So great was the caravan of automobiles speeding to the track that thousands found the 15 minute journey from Cincinnati, taking more than an hour. There were acres and acres of automobiles parked around the great oval. More than a score of States were represented in the vast throng that saw the West win again over the East in the highly prized event. There was keen interest in this event, when it it was first run in 1883, when Leonatus won and received a bit over $2000 for doing it, but the crowd then was but a handful compared to that which saw The Clown take the honor today.

The Clown paid $7.50 for a $2 ticket to win, $4.30 place and $3.10 show. The price on Hopeless was $6.90 for place and $4.30 to show. In Memoriam paid $5 for show.

The time for the mile and a half was 2:32 3-5.

The start of the derby could not have been better. The five thoroughbreds were off in a tightly clustered bunch. In Memoriam was off the quickest, but was overhauled by Martingale at the mile post, with Rialto and The Clown next. In the stretch The Clown took the lead by a head with Hopeless second, two lengths ahead of In Memoriam and Martingale trailed. The Clown finished two lengths ahead of Hopeless, which was three lengths ahead of In Memoriam. Rialto finished fourth and Martingale last.

By winning the classic, The Clown took down $15,650 for his owner. The owner of Hopeless, the second horse, received $2000, while In Memoriam by finishing third enriched his owner $1000.

MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS MUST PLAY OUT STRING WITH MEN ON ROSTER

NEW YORK.—The time limit for transferring major league players has expired and the clubs will now have to fight out the pennant race with the talent they have on hand. In past seasons the two New York clubs aroused much criticism among the other clubs by making late transfers to strengthen their playing forces. The opposition will have to hunt up some new excuses if the New York clubs come through this season.

The new rule should have a quieting effect on the players, for during the past few weeks there has been considerable gossip about trades and sales. Rumors of trades and sales disturbed the members of the Giants during their recent slump. Of course, they were also disturbed by erratic pitching and numerous errors. The trouncing the Giants received on the swing around the circuit should teach them not to believe all the favorable things they hear about themselves.

FAST PLAYS AT FIRST WORRY THE UMPIRE

The face of "Beans" Reardon, Coast League arbiter, is a painful sight whenever anyone mentions the names of Claude Cooper, Clarence Twombly or Merlin Kopp. "Beans" personally likes all three of these athletes, but out on the ball field he glares whenever he sees one of them.

"All the close decisions I ever have are caused by those three fellows," complained Reardon recently. "All three of them are fast going to first base, and the play is always close. Umpiring would be easy if it wasn't for fellows like Twombly, Cooper and Kopp."

Arrests Made at Hawthorne Track

Bettors as Well as Those Receiving Wagers Taken Into Custody.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Raiders from the State's Attorney's and Sheriff's offices swept into crowd of 25,000 fans at historic Hawthorne race track today as the Illinois Jockey Club opened its 25-day meeting.

A dozen arrests were made before the races had fairly started and scores were warned, that betting would mean sure arrest. The proceedure had a quieting effect on anxious betters.

The proceedure at the track was unexpected. Despite the fact that Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, had issued repeated warnings that violation of the State laws against betting would result in wholesale arrests and possible closing of the tracks. It had been thought that only those receiving bets would be arrested. Instead the bettors as well were taken into custody.

Aside from the activity of the law officers, the second season of racing in Chicago after a lapse of 18 years opened to an auspicious start.

There was scarcely standing room in the grandstands when the first race started.

BEN MILLERS BATTLE EAST SIDERS FOR LEAD

The Trolley League schedule for today calls for a double-header to be played at Carlyle, Ill., between the Boosters and the Wiles-Chipmans of St. Louis.

At East St. Louis, the leading Tri-City Packers will battle the Ben Millers in a single game. A victory for the Hatters will put the team in first place.

At Alton, the Blues oppose the Kuhs-Wiemeyers of St. Louis, a club recently admitted into the circuit.

THREE AMERICANS TO PLAY IN FRENCH OPEN GOLF TITLE TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

DIEPPE, France, June 30.—Three Americans and three holders of French or British championship titles are among the 67 entrants for the French national open golf championship, play in which will begin here tomorrow.

The American entrants are Tommy D. Armour of New York, S. S. Allen of Brookline, and G. A. Dixon, living in France, and attached to the St. Cloud club.

The other strong contenders include Arthur G. Havers, the British open champion; Michael Scott, the French amateur champion; Aubrey Boomer, the French open champion, and Pierre LaFitte, who tied with Walter Hagen for the French open championship in 1920 and lost in the play-off. Angel de la Torre of Madrid is the only Spanish entry.

Eighty players are entered for the French amateur championship, following the open, beginning Wednesday.

Jones and Mails Alike.

Oakland players are solid in the opinion that for sheer ability and absolute lack of stability, Walter Mails is in a class by himself, but members of the Los Angeles club entertain the same opinion of Percy Jones, who is almost an exact counterpart of Mails. Like the Oakland southpaw, Jones has a world of ability, and equally like the Great Walter, he knows it. Mails is eccentric, and so is Jones. When Walter is on the slab, his main idea is to squeeze every last ounce of strength from his elastic arm; Jones is swayed by the same impulse.

Bill Killefer did everything humanly possible to reduce the Jones ego and inculcate a little pitching reason into his head, but without success.

Unlike the Great Walter, however, Percy has little to say.

Midland Valley Tourneys.

Midland Valley Country Club golfers will participate in special tournaments, July 4, it has been announced. In the morning, there will be a flag tourney for men, while the women will compete in a putting contest in the afternoon. Other features also have been arranged by officials.

Dean and McHale To Meet July 4.

Pair Matched to Battle in Semi-Windup of Flanagan and Sandow Contest.

Ora Dean and Bud McHale, middleweights, have been matched to box in the eight-round semi-windup of the Patsy Flanagan-Sammy Sandow bout under the auspices of the Business Men's A. A. at Battery A, July 4. In the last meeting between the pair, Dean was judged the winner. This battle took place last March.

Matchmaker Cook also has arranged two four-round preliminaries. In one of these, Bill Johnson and Lester Martin, last season stars in the 135 pound division in the amateur ranks are scheduled to battle, while "Daredevil" Dan Taylor of Belleville meets Urban Grobel, former amateur heavyweight champion, in the other.

The weight for the Flanagan and Sandow bout will be 124 pounds. Flanagan, in his last match here, won from Peewee Kaiser, when the latter was disqualified for holding.

Walter Heisner has been selected to referee.

NATIONAL OPEN NEXT BIG GOLF TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK.—The big golfing events abroad having been concluded, Inwood, the scene of the open championship here, will be the center of the mashie universe for a time. All the professionals who have been playing abroad and all the other good ones at home will compete, together with many of the best amateurs who had valuable experience on the British and Scottish courses this spring.

The event will be held from July 9 to 13, and the Inwood course will remind the players of the seaside courses abroad. It has been lengthened and trapped and may be regarded as difficult as any championship course should be. There is an abundance of trouble to the square inch.

Zev Has Won $143,000 In Two Years; Out for Record of Man o' War

NEW YORK.—Zev, king of the 3-year-olds, is rolling up a money-won record that bids fair to equal Man o' War's great record of $249,465. Zev has performed six times this year and has been returned winner in five races, while in his other effort he finished next to last.

Zev has won the Paumonok, Rainbow, Kentucky Derby, Withers and the Belmont Stakes, which total $117,500, and with his 2-year-old earnings brings his total to $143,000. He is just $106,000 behind the Riddle champion. The Rancocas colt is engaged in stakes worth more than $150,000 and if he has no mishaps should land well over the $200,000 mark. The Rancocas Stable horses have won more than $196,000 to date, of which the 3-year-old Zev is the biggest contributor.

While the racing public believes this is a great amount of money, it is not a drop in the bucket to what is needed to defray the expenses of the stable and the breeding farm. To campaign a stable of 30 or more horses on the New York circuit means an outlay of more than $33,000 per month, which in six months' racing makes a total of $208,000. Then the expense of the breeding farm will total another $150,000, making a grand total of $358,000. That is why the Rancocas Stable must have the best in order to break even on the year. The profits of the stable lie in winning bets.

Ponder Is Injured.

Elmer Ponder, of the Los Angeles team, who was a pitching sensation the early part of last season, is getting very little work lately, aside from pitching to the batters in practice. Ponder injured his shoulder last year and has done very little pitching since. He did not work at all against the Oaks last week.

Krug is giving Ponder plenty of rest. The Angel skipper denies the reports that have been circulated to the effect that Ponder is to be sold or traded.

Facts in Cases of Sacramento Political Prisoners Showing They Were NOT GUILTY of Overt Acts

Webster Defines Term as "an Outward Act Done in Pursuance and Manifestation of an Intent or Design—the Mere Design or Intent Not Being Punishable."

Review of Indictment Shows That of 50 Charges of Hindering the War, 45 of Them Related to Distribution of I. W. W. Pamphlets; Comment on Dynamiting Count.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Washington Bureau.

ONE often hears, from opponents of the movement to free the 23 remaining "political prisoners" of the United States, that some, at least, of these men are serving terms not alone for the expression of opinion, but for various "overt acts" designed to thwart America's war effort against Germany.

This is the view promulgated by the Department of Justice and passed up to the President for his guidance. In the official opinion of the department, there are no "political prisoners" in the United States. Speak of "political prisoners" in the offices of those who reflect the administration attitude, and you are likely to encounter the retort that there is nothing "political" in the burning of a barn or the dynamiting of a bridge. You will be told that "overt acts"—not necessarily just those things, but offenses of similar character—were proved against certain of the men who were sent to jail under the espionage act.

A White House statement, prior to the granting of amnesty to 28 of the prisoners, made it appear that the President was engaged in classifying the prisoners in two groups—those who did and those who did not commit "overt acts." He was, so to speak, separating the sheep from the goats.

What Is an "Overt Act"?

In view of the President's position, it is pertinent to inquire more closely than has hitherto been done in this series of articles into the question of "overt acts" as related to the men who are still being punished under special war-time laws.

First, what is an "overt" act? Webster defines the term sufficiently. It means, in criminal law, "an outward act done in pursuance and manifestation of an intent or design—the mere design or intent not being punishable without such act."

Second, what is the case for and against the contention that the commission of overt acts sets certain of the offenders off as common criminals, punishable under the ordinary as well as the war-time laws of the country, and makes the term "political prisoners" inapplicable?

More briefly, the question is: Do the facts justify the President's stand against general amnesty—his division of the prisoners into sheep and goats?

Any discussion of this subject at this time must come down to the Sacramento I. W. W. case. We may dismiss at once the Chicago and Wichita cases. In the Chicago case, as has been related, the Circuit Court of Appeals, on a review of the evidence, threw out the sabotage counts; on the count charging interference with the draft the prisoners all served their two-year terms; so that, beyond any question, the prisoners still held are now confined only because of conviction of the espionage act count, which had to do solely with the written and oral expression of opinion. The Chicago prisoners were not in jail for any acts of violence, and if "political prisoners" means men who have been jailed for opposition to a temporary policy of government, these men fall properly under that description.

Judges Asked Clemency

All that has been said of the legal status of the Chicago case applies to the Wichita case, with the addition that the Judge who sentenced the Wichita defendants and the District Attorney who prosecuted them joined in recommending clemency.

This brings us to the Sacramento case, with its unique feature of the "silent defense" offered by 43 of the 46 defendants.

The question—the same in another form as that which has already been posed—is whether a valid distinction can be drawn between the Chicago and Wichita cases on the one hand and the Sacramento case on the other.

The I. W. W. prisoners themselves, and, generally speaking, persons who have interested themselves in the amnesty cause—the cause, as they see it, of free speech—assert that no proper distinction can be drawn between the various groups of I. W. W. defendants, nor between the I. W. Ws. as a class and others convicted under the espionage act.

The legal or moral considerations exist for making a distinction between Socialists and I. W. Ws. convicted of political offenses," said Otto Christensen, an attorney for the I. W. W. prisoners, in a brief submitted to the Attorney-General.

Setting Fires Charged to Some of Men Who Were in Jail at Time

A POINT to be remembered that the prisoners (in the Sacramento case) were all prosecuted under a blanket indictment, a general verdict of guilty was returned and a general sentence imposed * * *. All the Sacramento prisoners were charged with responsibility for all the fires, though some occurred while some of the men were in jail, all were held accountable for the "Broken Nose" poem, the transportation of the nine sticks of dynamite and all the rest of the alleged overt acts.

But the point chiefly stressed by the friends of the prisoners is that the star witness against them were two former members of the I. W. W., Elbert Coutts and John Dymond. Attention is called to this fact by Senator Pepper, in a digest of the Sacramento evidence which he recently sent to the Department of Justice, along with his recommendation that the prisoners be freed. Dymond and Coutts, according to the I. W. W., have become "professional witnesses" against that organization. At the Sacramento trial they exhibited a remarkable memory for details.

The assertion that the Sacramento defendants, equally with the others, were "political prisoners" confined only for the expression of opinion, is grounded on the action of two separate appellate courts, one for the Seventh and the other for the Eighth circuit, in throwing out the sabotage counts when passing, respectively, on the Chicago and Wichita cases. These counts, which charged a conspiracy to obstruct the war by force, were the same as the corresponding counts in the Sacramento case, with the exception that additional overt acts were alleged in the latter.

The conclusions of the two appellate courts, one of which had before it, on a bill of exceptions, the entire record of the Chicago case, should, it was argued, govern the status of the Sacramento case. If, under this interpretation, the counts charging force and violence had been ruled out of the Sacramento indictment, the prisoners were, manifestly, serving time only under the espionage act count.

On the other side it is pointed out that the conviction of the Sacramento defendants was sustained on appeal, by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, on all four counts. The reply to this was that the Sacramento appeal, because of tardy filing, was not heard on a bill of exceptions and therefore the evidence in the case was not before the higher court for review. The decision affirming the convictions was only on the validity of the indictment. It is also to be noted that all but three of the 46 Sacramento prisoners refused to employ counsel or make any defense in court, on the ground that the preceding Chicago trial, in which a jury convicted 100 defendants on all four counts in 55 minutes, demonstrated that it was impossible for members of the I. W. W. to get a fair trial.

Let us assume, for the sake of argument, that count 1 of the Sacramento indictment—the count charging conspiracy to use force against the prosecution of the war—must still, despite the decisions in the Chicago and Wichita cases, be given weight in considering the Sacramento case. The alleged overt acts—burnings, etc., under this count reached the impressive total of 50—and considerably more than that if the burnings were counted separately.

Charges Sound Serious.

Surely, one might say, men who conspired together in 50 or more ways to hinder the war were not entitled to leniency! That would be a natural first reaction to the bald statistics of the indictment. On examination, however, it is found that no fewer than 45 of the charges relate to the distribution of I. W. W. newspapers or pamphlets, the sending or receipt of letters or telegrams, or other forms of the expression of opinion.

"Said defendant caused to be circulated a certain newspaper called and known as 'Solidarity' "—this charge, varied only by changes in the date of the newspaper, recurs with monotonous regularity in the recital of overt acts. Twenty-five of the acts consist in the distribution of this I. W. W. organ, of which Ralph Chaplin, the poet, was editor.

One of the acts was the composition of a poem by Miss Theodora Pollok, a member of the Sacramento group, entitled "To a Young American Soldier With a Broken Nose." It is in free verse, beginning:

> "How out of taste of you
> To have a broken nose!
> I am conscious of an inexplicable
> Feeling of disgust with you."

The soldier with the broken nose was told that he ought to have been more careful of himself, so that he might go into battle "at the behest of The Industries unmarred." It is a pacifist piece of writing, but how it could have been construed as part of a malign conspiracy of 45 men and one woman to hinder by force the execution of the war program is difficult to understand.

Another of the overt acts of the conspiracy was the receipt of a letter by Miss Pollok which said: "There is a good chance to get the appeal of all the Workers of the World to Holland through a delegate of the Syndicalist Union, who is on board the Rembrandt. You should get a hundred or more and he will see that they reach their destination."

Another act was the preparation and sending of the foregoing letter by the signer, B. Saffores, one of the defendants. Saffores received a short sentence, which he has long since served out.

Fetter Protested Treatment.

Several other charges were based on the sending or receipt of letters containing personal or organization news. One act complained of was the dispatch of a telegram by two of the prisoners, A. L. Fox and Frederick Esmond (the latter an Oxford graduate who went insane) to Assistant District Attorney Johnson, at Sacramento, protesting against the treatment of the Sacramento prisoners. Others were the sending of a similar message by the same defendants to the Sheriff and to the Sacramento Bee, a newspaper which, according to the I. W. W., had a great deal to do with stirring up prejudice against the Sacramento prisoners and preventing a fair trial of their case.

The dynamiting bugaboo dwindles down in the indictment to four "overt acts," and all of these have to do with one man and one transaction. Act No. 1 was the presentation of nine sticks of dynamite by William Hood to a common carrier for shipment. No. 2 was the delivery of this dynamite to the carrier "under false and deceptive marking." No. 3 was the carrying of this same dynamite on a vehicle in interstate transportation. No. 4 was the receipt of the dynamite from the carrier by Hood without a Federal license. It is not charged that the dynamite ever was used; it was, in fact, taken into court as evidence.

Hood, according to a statement about the case put out by the I. W. W., had taken the dynamite from a construction camp, where he had been working as a cook, to use on a prospecting trip.

Three of the acts in the Sacramento indictment, all relating to organization activity of the I. W. W., were alleged against men who were defendants not at Sacramento but at Chicago.

Fires Laid to Men.

The final overt act, or series of acts, of the 50 was the alleged starting of incendiary fires in various California towns. Thirteen of the defendants were named as having set fire to "certain buildings, haystacks and other property" in California. A shed was burned here, a haystack at another place, lumber and other materials somewhere else. There were some 30 fires. In most cases, it appeared, the fires had been put out before causing much damage and in no case had anybody been hurt. The great majority of the owners had ample insurance.

A procession of ranchers, fire chiefs and police officers testified. Small twists of phosphorus-soaked rags had been found. There was much repetition—so much that on one occasion

Lloyd George Says French Plot Against Treaty of Versailles

Wartime Premier Asserts Powerful Faction Regards Treaty as Treasonable Pact in Which Clemenceau Gave Away Country's Right Under Pressure.

Declares He Is Surprised at Number of Persons Who Do Not Know What Is in Treaty; Recites That French Tried to Set Up Rhine Republic.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War-Time Premier of Britain

Copyright, 1923, by United Feature Syndicate. Copyright in Great Britain by London Chronicle. Copyright in Australasia by Australian Press Association. Exclusive World Rights Held by United Feature Syndicate. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited. All Rights Reserved.

LONDON, June 30.

I HAVE recently had special opportunities for appreciating the extent to which the treaty of Versailles has not been read by those who have formed very definite opinions concerning its qualities.

There is no justification for failure to peruse this great international instrument. It is the most important document of modern times. It has reshaped for better or for worse much of the geography of Europe. It has resurrected dead and buried nationalities. It constitutes the deed of manumission of tens of millions of Europeans who up to the year of victory, 1918, were bondsmen of other races. It affects profoundly the economics, the finance, the industrial and trade conditions of the world, and it contains clauses upon the efficacy of which may depend the very existence of our civilization.

Nevertheless, there are few men who can tell you what is in the treaty of Versailles. You might have thought that although men differed widely as to its merits there would have been no difficulty in securing some measure of agreement as to its actual contents. Every endeavor was made to give full publicity to its draft when it was first presented to the Germans, and to the final document when signed. Even before the form of the draft was ever settled, actual decisions were reported from day to day.

Never was a treaty so reported and so discussed in every particle of its constitution, and now you can procure an official copy from any bookseller for the moderate price of 50 cents.

In spite of that, no two men who happen to profess diverse opinions as to its justice or injustice can agree as to what is contained in it.

Arguments Over Misconceptions

A visitor to England in the year 1713 probably experienced the same perplexity in seeking information from a Whig and a Tory respectively as to the treaty of Utrecht. So this treaty has become one of those fiercely debated subjects as to which the contestants firmly refuse to regard any testimony or recognize the existence of any fact which is in the least inconsistent with their particular point of view. Thus it has come to pass that the real treaty of Versailles has already disappeared, and several imaginary versions have emerged, and conflict rages around these.

In France there are at least two or three schools of thought concerning the Versailles treaty. There is one powerful section which has always regarded it as a treasonable pact in which M. Clemenceau gave away solid French rights and interests in a moment of weakness under pressure from President Wilson and myself. That is the Poincare, Barthou, Pertinax school. That is why they are now, whilst in form engaged in enforcing the treaty, in fact carrying out a gigantic operation for amending it without consulting the other signatories. This has come out very clearly in the remarkable report from the High Commissioner of the Rhineland, which was recently disclosed. It is obvious from this official paper that whilst the French Government have worked their public into a state of indignation over the failure of Germany to carry out the treaty of Versailles, they were the whole time deliberately organizing a plot to overthrow that treaty themselves. Their representative on the Rhine was spending French money with the consent of the French Government in promoting a conspiracy to set up an independent republic on the Rhine under the protection of France.

Attempt to Rewrite Clauses

It was a deliberate attempt by those who disapproved the moderation of the treaty of Versallies to rewrite its clauses in terms of the militaristic demands put forward by Marshal Foch at the peace conference. Marshal Foch, being the soul of honor, wanted to see this done openly and straightforwardly. What he would have done like the gentleman he is, these conspirators would have accomplished by deceit—by deceiving their allies and by being faithless to the treaty to which their country had appended its signature. That is one French school of thought on the treaty of Versailles. It is the one which has brought Europe to its present state of perturbation.

There is a second school which reads into the treaty powers and provisions which it does not contain and never contemplated. These critics maintain stoutly that M. Briand and all other French Prime Ministers except M. Poincare betrayed their trust by failing to enforce these imaginary stipulations. They still honestly believe that M. Poincare is the first French Prime Minister to have made a genuine attempt to enforce French rights under the treaty.

Misunderstanding of Treaty Is Due to Ignorance of Its Contents, Says Lloyd George

"IN France there are at least two or three schools of thought concerning the Versailles Treaty. There is one powerful section which has always regarded it as a treasonable pact in which M. Clemenceau gave away solid French rights and interests in a moment of weakness under pressure from President Wilson and myself. That is the Poincare, Barthou, Pertinax school. That is why they are now, whilst in form engaged in enforcing the treaty, in fact carrying out a gigantic operation for amending it without consulting the other signatories."

"It was a deliberate attempt (proposed setting up of independent Rhine republic under French protection, by those who disapproved of the moderation of the Treaty of Versailles, to rewrite its clauses in terms of the militarist demands put forward by Marshal Foch at the Peace Conference. Marshal Foch, being the soul of honor, wanted to see this done openly and straightforwardly. What he would have done like the gentleman he is, these conspirators would have accomplished by deceit—by deceiving their allies and by being faithless to the treaty to which their country had appended its signature."

"In America there are also two or three divergent trends of opinion about this treaty. One which regards it as an insidious attempt to trap America into the European cockpit so as to pluck its feathers in order to line French and English bolsters. If anything could justify so insular an estimate it would be the entirely selfish interpretation which is put upon the treaty by one or two of the allied Governments."

"Take all these variegated schools together or separately, and you will not find one in a thousands of their pupils who could give you an intelligent and comprehensive summary of the main principles of the treaty. I doubt whether I should be far wrong in saying there would not be one in 10,000."

"Controversialists generally are satisfied to concentrate on articles in the treaty which are obnoxious or pleasing to them, as the case may be, and ignore the rest completely, however essential they may be to true judgment of the whole."

There is in the background a third school which knows exactly what the treaty means but dare not say so in the present state of French opinion. But perhaps they think it is better to bide their time. That time is coming! When it does arrive let us hope it will not be too late to save Europe from the welter.

Divided Thought in America

In America there are also two or three divergent trends of opinion about this treaty. One regards it as an insidious attempt to trap America into the European cockpit so as to pluck its feathers in order to line French and English bolsters. If anything could justify so insular an estimate it would be the entirely selfish interpretation which is put upon the treaty by one or two of the allied Governments. The other American party, I understand, defends it with vigor as a great human instrument second only in importance to the Declaration of Independence. There may be a third who think that on the whole it is not a bad settlement, and that it is a pity a little more tact was not displayed in getting it through the various stages of approval and ratification. These are not as vocal as the rest.

In England there are at least three schools. There are critics who denounce it as a brutal outrage upon international justice. It is to them a device for extorting incalculable sums out of an impoverished Germany as reparation for damages artificially worked up. Then there is the other extreme. The "die hard" section—more influential since it became less numerous. They think the treaty let Germany off much too lightly. In fact, they are in complete agreement with the French Chauvinists as to the reprehensible moderation of its terms. In Britain, also, there is a third party which regards its provisions as constituting the best settlement when you take into account the conflicting aims, interests and traditions of the parties who had to negotiate and agree.

But take all these variegated schools together or separately, and you will not find one in a thousand of their pupils could give you an intelligent and comprehensive summary of the main principles of the treaty. I doubt whether I should be far wrong in saying there would not be one in 10,000. Controversialists generally are satisfied to concentrate on articles in the treaty which are obnoxious or pleasing to them, as the case may be, and ignore the rest completely, however essential they may be to true judgment of the whole.

About the League Covenant

Most of the disputants are content to take their views from press comments and denunciatory speeches. Unhappily, the explanatory speeches have been few. Some there are who have in their possession the full text, nominally for reference; but you will find parts of the reparation clauses in their copies black with the thumb marks which note the perspiring dialectician searching for projectiles to hurl at the object of his fury. Clauses which ease and modify the full demand are treated with stern neglect and the remainder of the pages are as pure as untrodden snow. You can trace no footprints of politicians, publicists or journalists in the whole provinces of this unexplored treaty. The covenant of the League of Nations is lifted bodily out of the text and it is delivered to the public as a separate testament for the faithful so that the saints may not defile their hands with the polluted print which exacts justice. They have now come to believe that it never was incorporated in the treaty of Versailles, and that it has nothing to do with that vile and sanguinary instrument.

And yet the first words of this treaty are the following:

"The high contracting parties, in order to promote international co-operation and to achieve international peace and security by the acceptance of obligations not to resort to war, by the prescription of open, just and honorable relations between nations, by the first establishment of understandings of international law as actual rule of conduct among Governments, by the maintenance of justice and scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations in dealings of organized peoples with one another, agree to this covenant of the League of Nations."

Then follow the articles of the debated covenant.

Few Debaters Quote Treaty

A speaker who took part recently in a university debate on the subject told me that the undergraduates exhibited the greatest surprise when he informed them that the League of Nations was founded by the Versailles treaty. A few days ago I had a similar experience at the Oxford Union. I was speaking against a motion framed to condemn the principles of the treaty as unwise and unjust. In its defense I recalled some of its outstanding features. But as most of my narrative had no bearing on reparations, it was greeted with impatience and cries of "Question" from a group of anti-Versaillists.

They honestly thought I was traveling outside the motion in giving a short summary of other sections of the treaty. To them it is all condensed in Mr. Keynes' book and other hostile commentaries. Anything which is inconsistent with these, or supplements the scanty or misleading statements they make, is deemed to be tainted and biased. To refer to the text itself they regard as unfair and as playing into the hands of the defenders of a wicked and oppressive pact. The actual treaty has been already put by them out of bounds, and you wander into its forbidden clauses on pain of being put into the guardroom by one or other of the intolerant factions who patrol the highways and byways of international politics.

In all debates on the subject in the House of Commons I have only once heard the treaty itself quoted by a critic, and, strangely enough, that was by way of approval.

I have indicated one important section of the treaty to which is accorded something of reverence due to a holy writ by an influential section of the public. This section would be shocked if they were reminded that their devotion is given to a chapter in the hateful treaty.

Treatment of Labor Troubles

Take another large and important section which is completely ignored by the critic—that which reconstructed Central Europe on a basis of nationality and free choice of people instead of on a basis of strategy and military convenience. This is the section that liberated Poland from the claws of three carnivorous empires that were preying on its vitals and restored it to life, liberty and independence. It is a section that frees the Dane of Schleswig and the Frenchman of Alsace-Lorraine. For these oppressed provinces the treaty of Versailles is the title deed of freedom. Why are these clauses all suppressed in controversial literature?

Here is another of the ignored provisions—that which sets up permanent machinery for dealing with labor problems throughout the Eternal Vigilance Is the Price.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

TRUE to the cause for which your paper was founded, as stated in the Pulitzer platform, we again, as in the past, see the Post-Dispatch fighting aggressively for that which is really American, for that which is founded upon justice, and that which our forefathers so fearlessly chartered in the Constitution of our United States.

Clemency should take the form of complete amnesty—not conditional commutations.

The political prisoners were sentenced in the time of war, when free speech and the freedom of press was curtailed to prevent harmful propaganda which might hinder or prove detrimental to the successful execution of the plans of war. The writer believes that this temporary curtailment of free speech and freedom of the press may have been necessary in those days.

But now, nearly five long years have elapsed since the successful termination of the war; the espionage act has been repealed, and still we find in Federal penitentiaries 30 men who are serving terms for the violation of a dead law, a law which in the time of war was appropriate, but which was in reality, then as now, unconstitutional. Article 1 in the amendments of the Constitution states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for redress of grievances."

These men did not commit burglary, murder, arson or any other criminal act, yet they are in a Federal prison for an act which today you and I may duplicate without fear of being molested because of our constitutional rights.

We who are not suffering from this injustice are prone to let it go at that; but, sir, there may be a time when someone, some organization, or some political party may challenge our constitutional rights.

Liked Our Picture of Prison Life.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE just read, with interest, the story published in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, entitled "Aspects of Prison Life Where Our Wartime Offenders Still Are Held," by Paul Y. Anderson. This is, I think, one of the best newspaper stories I have read in a long time, and I want to commend you and Mr. Anderson on its publication.

K. K. K. Intolerance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE growth in influence of societies like the K. K. K. is not indicative of the steady development of true American principles. Catholics are likely to imagine from the excessive heat of Fourth of July speeches, that American ideals as exemplified in the Declaration of Independence and Constitution are the inspiration of every man who calls himself a citizen. Not so. While we have faith in the common sense and fair-mindedness of the majority of our fellow-countrymen, still it must be confessed that until such secret organizations as the K. K. K. find it impossible to live on our soil, there is ground for suspicion that democracy is far from being welded into the makeup of the country.

Catholics live in the open and have the right to open treatment from others. Religious freedom was a hard-earned right, gained only after much fighting at the time of the adoption of the Constitution. Surely it is too late in the day to revert to pre-revolutionary days of intolerance and distrust. Public defenses of American principles and our right as Americans ought to be on the program of Catholic activity, so long as our peace and pursuit of happiness is menaced by intolerant secret societies.

RICHARD WAGNER.

Letting the People Know.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT to add my voice to the many which are coming to you of appreciation and gratitude for the great public service you are performing in bringing the facts in regard to our political prisoners before your large circle of readers in the splendid articles appearing in the Post-Dispatch.

The publicity given these facts by a leading newspaper should be a powerful factor in bringing about the removal of this, our reproach among the nations, and the restoration of the principles on which this republic was founded. When a sufficient number of people know the truth, there will be a demand for the release of these men which cannot be resisted.

That one of our great dailies should so ably and courageously espouse the cause of constitutional liberty brings courage and hope for the future to those of us who have been doing our bit toward the same end.

VIRGINIA BESTOR,
Washington, D. C.

REFORMATION OR REVOLUTION?

Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge fails utterly to grasp the implications of the World Court—the beginning of a world order organized on a basis of law rather than of force—but his views of our domestic situation are so sound that he can almost be pardoned his erroneous opinions as to the international. In his Bunker Hill day address at Boston he uttered a ringing message to the people of this country which cannot be circulated too widely or dinned too repeatedly into the ears of thinking citizens who still love liberty. He said:

> Consider the appalling fact, one adult person out of every 20 persons engaged in business or industry in this country is a government agent, official or employe—I mean, of course, all government, county, city, state and national. . . . Today all the gold known to exist in the whole world would barely pay the total cost of government in America for only a single year. . . .
> Another astounding fact, twin sister of the first, is that Americans are forbidden by law to do more things, and by law forced to do more things, than were the Russian people under the Czar or the German people under the Kaiser. Moreover, nearly all of these repressive, oppressive, and autocratic laws and regulations have been forced on the statute books by selfish minorities of whom our lawmakers and administrators are in terror.

These are indeed appalling facts, constraining one to inquire whether our once hopeful experiment in popular self-government has not already broken down; whether, in fact, we have not gone the way of the old oppressive Governments of Europe, whose horrible examples induced our ancestors to depart and seek to found a happier one far from their corrupting influences.

We have been repeatedly warned throughout our history against the natural tendency of government to gain ground at the expense of liberty. All the while, however, government has grown and expanded until it has now come to be looked upon as an entity distinct from and above the people whom it was created to serve. When the Federal or State Government speaks to the citizen today it is in tones of command. It is no longer an institution guarding the free play of natural rights as between the citizens. The creators have become its creatures.

Jefferson, the most solicitous of all the great statesmen and patriots of the past for the preservation of liberty and the success of our experiment in self-government, clearly foresaw the danger now confronting us when in 1816 he wrote to Samuel Kerchival:

> If we run into such debts as that we must be taxed in our meat and our drink, in our necessaries and our comforts, in our labors and our amusements, for our callings and our creeds, as the people of England are, our people, like them, must come to labor 16 hours in the 24, give the earnings of 15 of these to the Government for their debts and daily expenses; and the sixteenth being insufficient to afford us bread, we must live, as they now do, on oatmeal and potatoes; have no time to think, no means of calling the mismanagers to account; but be glad to obtain subsistence by hiring ourselves to rivet their chains on the necks of our fellow sufferers. • • • And this is the tendency of all human governments. A departure from principle in one instance becomes a precedent for a second; that second for a third; and so on, till the bulk of the society is reduecd to be mere automatons of misery, to have no sensibilities left but for sinning and suffering. Then begins, indeed, the bellum omnium in omnia, which some philosophers observing to be so general in this world, have mistaken it for the natural instead of the abusive state of man. And the fore horse of this frightful team is public debt. Taxation follows that, and in its train wretchedness and oppression.

It requires no prophet to foresee what is in store for us in the not distant future—it is either reformation or revolution.

GERMANY PAYS THE PRICE.

Once more the friends of Germany in this country are given an opportunity to observe the destructive effect upon the interests of Germany of the wrecking policy directed by Americans against the League of Nations. A special correspondent of the Post-Dispatch in a recent article points out the farcical character of the Saar Governing Commission appointed by the Council of the League of Nations. Except for one member, a Canadian, the commission is packed by the partisans of France, whose sole objective is to Gallicize the Saar territory so that when finally disposed of by plebiscite it will go to France.

If the United States as a member of the League would have failed to prevent such a situation then the League in that instance would have been a failure. But let us again remind the German-Americans and the irreconcilables that it is not the crippled and unbalanced League for which success was claimed by its friends in America, but a full League as chartered, with America holding not only its vote in the Council and Assembly but a tremendous leverage of moral, economic and financial power. A league of that kind would do better work in all instances than a crippled league.

• THE INVISIBLE AUDIENCE.

The orator of today, thanks to radio, has an audience far beyond anything imagination previously had conjured. Testimonials have already reached the Post-Dispatch showing that President Harding's St. Louis speech was heard in 22 states. From Canada, too, comes a listener's enthusiastic report. The physical magnitude of the accomplishment is almost incredible. In that sense it seems as if the Age of Miracles were only dawning.

The mental aspect of this new prodigy is no less overwhelming. If the radio has given the orator a far-flung dominion is it not also subjecting him to a test his predecessors never had to meet? Analysts are agreed that much of the orator's effect heretofore was derived from the conjunction of the audience and the speaker's art. The psychology of the crowd has played an important part in the orator's achievement and repute. That the manner often has been superior to the matter is evidenced in the fact that the speeches of a good many orators which have electrified audiences and roused them to great emotional outbursts have somehow been disappointingly unimpressive when read in impersonal print.

It is the criticism and judgment of this vast impersonal audience, sitting in the quiet and solitude of home, that the orator of today and all the tomorrows must face and by which, in large measure, he will be appraised. For that audience the technique of the platform craftsman hardly exists. Ease and felicity of style will not be wholly dissipated in the radio's impalpable medium, but the tricky pause, the dramatic gesture, the tossing of unruly locks and other artifices of that genre will be lost motion to the invisible jury. Radio will exact substance as well as form in the forensics of the future.

All this is sure to make for abler speeches. It may develop a new school of oratory, less colorful, probably, but informative and constructive. With an audience that can be held and influenced only by sound reasoning and illuminating discussion, we may count on meatier deliverances, broader knowledge and finer sincerity.

Exit the Rodomontes, the Bombastes Furiosos, the whole clan of windjammers. Radio is writing their epitaph.

MOTHER NATURE'S DEFI.

Voluntary parenthood is one thing. Birth control of families by outsiders is quite another thing. Two years ago certain social reformers in Denver got a doctor in the Juvenile Court to recommend that an operation be performed on Mrs. Gertrude Cossidenti. She already had six children and the good reformers, born to set the world to rights, insisted that it would be a crime for her to have another, not because she was not able-bodied, but because a seventh child might be a burden economically. There were enough poor children in Denver already.

About a week ago Mrs. Cossidenti gave birth to her seventh child, and vows she will have as many more as she pleases, reformers or no reformers. The baby weighs nine pounds and mother and baby are doing well. So are the other six children and the husband. All the fears of the reformers appear to have come to naught. A picture of the family shows each member hale and hearty. Mary, the oldest girl, has made three grades in one term at school, and the house boasts new rugs and furniture. William, the new baby, is the pride of the household.

It is just as well that this kind of reform gets a setback occasionally, if only by an independent mother "showing her Irish," as Mrs. Cossidenti puts it. Otherwise we should all be reformed out of nature, the impetus to put us in reform straitjackets coming, most likely, from Washington. Thanks, Mother Cossidenti!

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Mr. Harding
Has his troubles,
Sure enough;
Looks as if
His party leaders
Could not cotton
To his stuff.
Trying mighty
Hard to please them,
As he naturally
Would,
Still he finds
This disposition
Doesn't do him
Any good.

What the trouble is,
My dearie,
One may very
Shrewdly guess:
Somehow popular Opinion
Has become
A sorry mess.
Politicians
Have their troubles
Past a time
We can recall,
And the surest
Way to please them
Would be not
To think at all.

Mr. Harding,
Sweet Luella,
Doubtless knows
This very well;
But, as they
Would say in business,
He has still Himself to sell.
Since he can't
Discuss the weather
Or the science
Of mah jong,
He must talk
Of public issues,
Whether right
Or whether wrong.

Here is where
The trouble rises:
Strange as it
May haply seem,
There is nothing
Much enjoying
Any popular esteem.
While we have
A lot of questions,
Partly old
And partly new,
Scarcely one
But is for some cause
Held constructively
Taboo.

Thus, without
An issue on which Either side
Would take a chance,
Lo, the coming Presidential Shindy makes
Its grim advance!
Wherefore,
Since he can't Go silent,
Plead a cold,
Or stay in bed,
Mr. Harding
Goes on heaping
Coals of fire
Upon his head.

The Monroe County Appeal says it is not true that a party of tourists is lost in the weeds on the campsite designated for automobile travelers passing through Paris, Mo.

Sir: Much has been written extolling the virtues of the new bus line which plies between Eads Bridge and University City and a great deal of space has been utilized to show the scenic superiority and the other manifold advantages enjoyed by the patrons of the new transportation system. It has remained, however, for a discerning critic to bring before the public the inconveniences and hardships that must be undergone by all who ascend the spiral stairway.

It must be conceded, to begin with, that a ride on a bus is a new sensation for most of us from several points of view. We see the city, as it were, from a new angle; we learn, perhaps for the first time that there are verdant tree tops along Delmar boulevard; we see second and third stories of buildings from the outside; the broad sweep of Washington boulevard into Grand boulevard gives us a thrill of proprietorship and civic pride; as we turn off Washington boulevard into Spring avenue going north, we thrill to potential destructive surge that has lain dormant since youth as a lamp post slides past within arm's length and the globe, the very heart, yea, the soul of the lamp glides smoothly under our sensitive fingers; it may be that we enjoy the devil may care smile of a girl in the front seat of a bus going in the opposite direction. There are a thousand and one little touches that give the passenger a meed of enjoyment but—have you ever managed to get off at your station from a seat in the upper deck and succeeded in preserving your stately calm?

You are sitting in the third seat from the front. You want to get off at Westgate avenue in University City. You have stayed with the ship all the way from Twelfth boulevard, and a heavy sea it was, what with jerking in and out of traffic up to Jefferson boulevard, the sudden stops which only the busses can make, the right angle swings in and out of Spring avenue and the flivver whose fender you nicked at Sarah street. You feel that now you are a good sailor to have weathered such a trip and you are positive your sea legs will stand you in good stead when you make the great dash for the exit. Very well.

You pass Limit avenue and you press the button. The ship sails smoothly and you release your death clutch on the rail and climb over your fellow passenger, negotiating the struggle without spilling a bundle. Then the bus strikes the "bad lands," the famous two block strip of street for whose repair a bond issue was voted but which has remained in its state of corrugation for many months. Then the test of the real man begins.

The ship flounders in a rough sea just as you have completed a right-about and are preparing to promenade in state to the stairway, but there is a sudden stop to let a street car pass and you decide to wait until the bus once more resumes motion. But the delay is several seconds longer than anticipated and you cut a funny figure standing on the top of a bus in the attitude of a straphanger. So you take a step to the rear, but the bus moves forward with a hop and you catapult to the rear in record time and reel unconsciously down the tortuous stairway into the arms of a handsome young man in military cap and whipcord riding breeches. The sensation is that of dropping 10 stories in a revolving elevator. But the trip is over. Unless you are a Rocky Mountain goat, this will be your experience.

The MIRROR PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce bias the latest comment by the leading newspapers and periodicals on the questions the day.

WOMEN MAY SAVE EUROPE.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, back a tour of Europe, declares the women America can save the tottering countries Old World by expressing themselves as an ized unit. In an interview with Silas the New York Times Mrs. Catt draws a picture of conditions in the war-torn and ridden countries, their unstable finances problems of rehabilitation, their attitude may at America which is now turning to and the need right now for the United States see the thing through, after having given blood and treasure for the peace of Europe.

"We must achieve a mental state towards rope," says Mrs. Catt, but "we are now of minds." It is the problem of bringing these points of view into harmony that Mrs. Catt lieves the women of America can solve and solve the problems that are besetting Europe. She does not plead for women to enter politics. She does not urge them to contest for seats the House and Senate. She asks them to organize into a compact unit to bring about the helpfulness that Europe needs and that will prove mutually helpful to America. In its quandary, America having left the field, Europe hardly knows its own mind. Every country is of different mind towards the outstanding question reparatons. "The reparations question," Mrs. Catt, "is the sore spot in the center of Europe, and whenever it is irritated afresh, the irritation spreads to the smaller sore spots. In Italy there are two opinions about it. The followers of Mussolini think Germany can pay and must be made to pay; the followers of Nitti think she cannot pay. Great Britain wants to find out what she can pay. France wants to collect in full." Crisply stated, here is the crux of the whole matter of reparations. America's voice in the council of nations would bring about a speedy solution of the problem, Mrs. Catt is convinced. [illegible] pense even of its pocketbook and future trade is inactive and silent. Mrs. Catt's solution of the matter deserves consideration. Though it is customary to criticize women for looking at the matter, they are, after all, the real advisers.

The Judge called the attention of the jury to the overlapping of testimony, which made it appear there were more fires than there actually were. In some cases the fire chiefs had been too busy putting out the fires to investigate their causes. Bottles containing chemicals, said to have been found near fires or on the persons of the defendants, were produced. An expert chemist who told of the injurious character of these preparations admitted they were sometimes sold for killing gophers.

Under Blanket Indictment.

In this brief summary of a trial that dragged through two months, beginning Dec. 7, 1918, it is impossible to do more than indicate the nature of the charges on the one hand, and, on the other, to show from sources friendly to the amnesty movement what the defense might have been if the prisoners had chosen to speak.

A point to be remembered is that the prisoners were all prosecuted under a blanket indictment, a general verdict of guilty was returned and a general sentence imposed, whereas at Chicago the defendants were each specifically sentenced on each count. All the Sacramento prisoners were charged with responsibility for all the fires, though some occurred while some of the men were in jail; all were held accountable for the "Broken Nose" poem, the transportation of the nine sticks of dynamite and all the rest of the alleged overt acts.

But the point chiefly stressed by the friends of the prisoners is that the star witnesses against them were two former members of the I. W. W., Elbert Coutts and John Dymond. Attention is called to this fact by Senator Pepper, in a digest of the Sacramento evidence which he recently sent to the Department of Justice, along with his recommendation that the prisoners be freed. Dymond and Coutts, according to the I. W. W., have become "professional witnesses" against that organization. At the Sacramento trial they exhibited a remarkable memory for details. Attacking the credibility of these witnesses, Harvey Duff, in a pamphlet put out for the I. W. W., says:

Immunity Plot Seen.

"Dymond, to use a slang term, 'went down the line' and gave the most circumstantial and damning evidence against almost every defendant in the courtroom. Every one of them confessed his crimes to Dymond, according to his testimony. His evidence was too detailed, too particular, too mechanical, to suit a clear-thinking juror. His motive and manifest obsession to get rid of the men he had betrayed was manifested in every movement he made during his voluble career on the witness stand.

"Coutts even excelled Dymond in minuteness of testimony. He hid a phial of phosphorus in a certain river bed in Modesto, he testified. A few days later up pops a witness who found that identical phial in the same longitude and latitude. * * * Coutts was the first to discover a luckless haypile or rustic barn; he was the first to apply the famous torch; he was the first to sound the retreat; he was the first to confess."

According to Senator Pepper's summary, there seems to be no doubt that Coutts, who once served a two-year term for burglary, and Dymond, who is accused by I. W. W. members of withholding defense funds, received immunity for testifying.

In this connection, Pepper quoted from the charge to the jury by Judge Rudkin:

"If you find the prosecution has produced in this case certain witnesses who admit that they took part in the commission of the offenses charged in this indictment or from whose testimony you are satisfied of such participation, such witnesses are to be considered by you as accomplices and co-conspirators and the evidence of any such accomplice or co-conspirator must be received by you with great caution, unless such evidence is corroborated by the evidence of other persons who are not accomplices of co-conspirators. * * * You have the right also in considering the testimony of a witness to take into consideration the fact, if such fact be proven, that he either expects or hopes for immunity from punishment and is testifying in this case by reason of having been given immunity or freedom from punishment."

The charge that the I. W. W. engaged in a campaign of arson is answered, the I. W. W. says, by the State of California itself, the State College of Agriculture having published statistics showing that of the 179 hay and grain fires in 1918 only four were known to be incendiary and only three were probably incendiary—a total of seven, or less than 4 per cent of the 179 fires. Statistics from the same source, as quoted by the I. W. W., list only seven incendiary hay and grain fires, or 2.8 per cent of the total, in the period of 1915-17.

The I. W. W. asserts that the insurance companies, with whom some politicians were affiliated, profited materially from the fears aroused among the farmers by the I. W. W. "arson bogy." Insurance statistics, it is said, "prove that while the fire losses decreased by three-quarters of a million during the period 1913-1917, the amount of the premiums received by the insurance companies increased by $3,658,919."

Though none of the Sacramento prisoners testified in his own behalf several made statements after the trial. A summary of these statements and of others by friends of the prisoners is appended by Senator Pepper to his digest of the evidence. The defendants claimed that:

1. The trial was held while wartime hysteria gripped the country, acting against impartial consideration of evidence.

2. Many of the defendants were arrested without sufficient cause. While awaiting trial they were subjected to cruel treatment in the Sacramento jail. Five prisoners died as a result and two contracted tuberculosis. One went mad.

3. Because of this treatment and unfair press campaigns against them the prisoners were convinced that they could not hope for justice and resorted to the "silent defense."

4. At the time of the arrests a local agent of the Department of Justice said there was not sufficient evidence to hold more than three of the men.

As examples of unfair treatment and persecution, the following points were submitted by the men and their friends (this digest again is taken from the Pepper summary):

1. Consolidation of indictments charging groups of men arrested at different times with all the acts charged against any of them.

2. Overcrowding in cells under filthy conditions. Jailers tormented prisoners by placing food their friends had sent within sight, but out of reach.

3. Denial of communication with friends and interference with mail, to block the defense.

4. Intimidation of friends atempting to aid the prisoners.

In answer to the Government's contention that the I. W. W. had a conspiracy to interfere with the war by its literature and by calling strikes, the men and the organization said:

Got Light Punishment.

"The defendants' attitude was that, although the organization had always been against war and believed in calling a general strike to prevent it, we did not attempt to interfere in the war and had no conspiracy to hinder it, and that the pamphlet and papers we circulated were for the object of gaining certain changes in industrial conditions. It was the majority opinion within the organization that the organization should put all its energy into bettering industrial conditions."

Finally, it is worth noting that the three prisoners who broke silence and defended themselves were let off with light punishment, two receiving jail sentences of two months each and a third, Miss Pollok, being fined $100.

Testifying in March, 1922, before the House Judiciary Committee, Miss Pollok said that she defended herself, with an attorney and witnesses, partly because she hoped to be freed in order that she might lay the case of her fellow-prisoners before authoritative groups like the House Committee.

Though she had been called a Pole, because of her name, she described herself "an old-fashioned American" of Scotch, English and Irish ancestry. She became secretary of the defense organization at the time of the first California indictment against the I. W. W. at Fresno. Going to San Francisco to bail a man out, she was arrested "and flung in among drunkards and petty thieves and women of the street—black and white—it being maintained that there are no political prisoners in the United States."

'I speak to you gentlemen personally," continued Miss Pollok, "because I want you to understand why it would be possible for an educated woman with inherited assurance of American traditions, home, friends, to find cause for losing faith in the administration of justice in her country when she comes within the scope of labor cases. I appreciate it, personally, but you see how it could act upon the many. I was denied the right to telephone to an attorney or to my family. For two days my mother and friends naturally sought me with some frenzy. I was legally nonexistent. No one would take me under their wings sufficiently to acknowledge responsibility for me."

She was bailed out. A check for $1000 which she had with her to bail out an arrested man, and $400 in cash taken from the State treasurer of the I. W. W., were, she said, held for months, and "from that time on the defense offices and its papers were subject to constant seizure.

She declared that though there was a big new jail at Sacramento, the prisoners were crowded into damp, airless rooms in an old jail, where they had to take turns sleeping on the floor.

The 43 men made their silent defense, she said, because they were hopeless of getting justice.

Enough has now been told of the Sacramento trial, perhaps, to show why Senator Pepper reached the conviction after a study of the evidence that there was doubt whether the men should have been convicted.

Illinois Bonus Payment Begins Monday.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, June 30.—The first batch of Illinois soldier bonus checks will be on their way to former service men either Monday or Tuesday, State officials said today. Approved claims to the number of 25,000 were in the State Auditor's office tonight and the work of writing checks will start Monday. It is expected a part of these checks will be ready for mailing Monday night. It will require at least a week to dispose of the first 25,000 checks.

LLOYD GEORGE SAYS, FRENCH PLOT AGAINST TREATY OF VERSAILLES

world and for raising the standard of life amongst the industrial workers by means of a great international effort. No more beneficial or more fruitful provision was ever made in any treaty. It is so momentous, and so completely overlooked in general discussion, that I think it worth while quoting at length the general principles laid down by a provision which will one day be claimed as the first great international charter of the worker:

"The high contracting parties recognize that differences of climate, habits and customs of economic opportunity and industrial tradition, make strict uniformity in conditions of labor difficulties of immediate attainment. But, holding, as they do, that labor should not be regarded merely as an article of commerce, they think that there are methods and principles for regulating labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply so far as their special circumstances will permit. Among these methods and principles, the following seem to the high contracting parties to be of special and urgent importance. First, the guiding principle above enunciated that labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce; second, the right of association for all lawful purposes by employed as well as by employers; third, payment to employed of wages adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country; fourth, adoption of an eight-hour day, or 48-hour week, as a standard to be aimed at where it has not already been attained; fifth, adoption of a weekly rest of at least 24 hours, which should include Sunday whenever practicable; sixth, abolition of child labor and imposition of such limitations on labor of young persons as shall permit continuation of their education and assure their proper physical development; seventh, the principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value; eighth, a standard set by law in each country with respect to conditions of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein; ninth, each state should make provision for a system of inspection, in which women should take part, in order to insure enforcement of laws and regulations for the protection of the employed."

It will take long before the principles propounded in the covenant of the League under labor articles are fully and faithfully carried out, but in both a good deal of quiet and steady progress has already been attained. M. Albert Thomas is an admirable chief for the Labor Bureau. He has zeal, sympathy, tact, energy and great organizing talent. He is pressing along with patience as well as persistence. But that is another question. It raises grave issues as to the execution of the treaty.

Danger of Misquoting.

What I have to deal with today is the misunderstandings which exist as to the character of the treaty itself. The British public are certainly being deliberately misled on this point. Why are these sections which emancipate oppressed races, which seek to lift the worker to a condition above destitution and degradation, and which build up a breakwater against the raging passions which make for war, never placed to the credit of the treaty of Versailles?

That type of controversialist who is always advertising his idealism has made a point of withholding these salient facts from the public which he professes to enlighten and instruct.

There is no more unscrupulous debater in the ring than one who affects to be specially high-minded. I do not mean the man who is possessed of a really high mind, but the sort which is always posing as having been exalted by grace above his fellows. He is the pharisee of the controversy. Beware of him, for he garbles and misquotes and suppresses to suit his arguments or prejudices in a way that would make a child of this world blush.

That is why I venture to put in a humble, although, I fear, belated, plea for a reading of the text, the whole text, and nothing but the text of the treaty of Versailles. It is the only fair way of arriving at a just conclusion of the merits of the treaty, which holds in its hands the destiny of Europe for many generations.

RAIN SAID TO CAUSE REVIVAL OF RELIGION AMONG RUSSIANS

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, June 30.—Rain is reviving religion in Russia. Reports from Tomsk are that 45 peasants were condemned to death because they were caught praying for sunshine after 12 weeks of continual rain. When the sentences were announced thousands of peasants rushed to the churches to beg the saints to let the sun shine and to save the lives of those facing death.

Because they fear a peasant uprising, the bolshevist authorities have hesitated to carry out the death sentences, and this has resulted in a strong revival of religion throughout the eastern provinces of Russia.

The latest dispatches from Russia tell of dwarfed wheat and shrunken corn and rain pouring down in torrents.

ALTA-DENA

YOUR YESTERDAYS
TODAY IS THE TOMORROW OF YESTERDAY AND THE YESTERDAY OF TOMORROW. TOMORROWS NEVER COME BUT OUR ACTS TODAY MAKE HISTORY OF OUR YESTERDAY make your yesterdays mean something!

BEFORE you allow today to lose its identity in the grave of non-productive yesterdays; yesterdays of vain regrets for opportunities ignored---decide you will at least investigate the opportunity for a safe and profitable investment in the most desirable of West-End residential property

BEAUTIFUL ALTA-DENA

THE GEM OF UNIVERSITY CITY

Probably in no section of UNIVERSITY CITY, the residential section supreme of all Saint Louis, has nature contributed so generously to the environments as in PICTURESQUE ALTA-DENA. It has been rightly termed the homeseeker's paradise. The unusual natural beauty of ALTA-DENA has made the landscape gardeners' task a work of pleasure and they are transforming its rolling, undulating surface into a magnificent residential park; utilizing in every possible way the wonderful forest of beautiful trees that add so much to its attractiveness.

Whether you buy, to build a home for yourself, or to hold for the increase in valuation that is absolutely certain to come in a very short time, your investment will double if not treble in value within a few months. The rapid rise in property values in the west end section of this forward-marching city makes ALTA-DENA an exceptionally profitable place to invest as well as a perfect site for a permanent home. Notwithstanding that ALTA-DENA adjoins MARYLAND TERRACE and possesses all its exclusive advantages, it is essentially a homesite section for the man of limited means.

WHY VALUES MUST INCREASE

St. Louis is facing a present home shortage of well over 25,000 and the situation is rapidly growing intensified. St. Louis is one of the fastest-growing cities in the United States. Its present population is approaching the million mark. Industries are coming into the city at an almost unbelievable rate. Ask the Chamber of Commerce as to the future of Industrial St. Louis. The Bank Clearances in 1922 were $6,718,200,000 as compared to $6,235,100,000 in 1921; the first five months of this year show clearances amounting to $3,094,800,000; this month of June, up to the 26th, shows a total of $650,000,000, indicating a total for 1923 of $9,180,000,000, exceeding the banner year of 1920, before the slump, by nearly $1,000,000,000. These stupendous figures show, as no other way can, the fast growing prosperity of St. Louis. During the past fiscal year, the Southwestern Bell Telephone System, despite the unprecedented shortage of equipment, installed an average of 210 new telephones a week and are still behind normal installations. Space will not permit the listing of the many additional basic proofs that indicate the extraordinary growth of St. Louis; which means an unprecedented demand for housing accommodations that must enormously increase land valuations in the pathway of residential expansion.

Reinforced concrete streets, granitoid sidewalks, storm and waste sewers connected with each lot; gas, water, electricity and telephones. No additional charge is made for these improvements and they are now being rapidly installed.

We have prepared a beautiful colored plat of ALTA-DENA, showing the artistic landscape treatment, with arrangement of homesite locations. With the plat are examples, reproduced in halftone, of artistic homes suitable for such a setting. WE WILL MAIL IT TO YOU IF YOU WILL SIGN AND POST ATTACHED COUPON

LOCATION OF ALTA-DENA
ALTA-DENA is three blocks west of Washington University, on Hanley Road and intersected by Pershing Boulevard; 100 feet wide, with Kirkwood-Ferguson car line in center; Kingsbury Boulevard also intersects the property.

ARRESTED AS FORTUNE TELLERS

Charm Sold to Policewoman Brings Misfortune to Two Women.

A supposed charm against adversity was sold by a fortune teller yesterday for $3.50, and promptly brought misfortune to the seeress, as the patron was Policewoman Rachel Thory. She caused the arrest of the fortune teller and an associate seeress on a charge of violating the city ordinance prohibiting fortune telling.

The women gave their names as Mrs. Rosie George, 23, and Mrs. Anna John, 22. They were arrested at 108 South Twelfth street, where Policewomen Thory and Genevieve Walsh had gone to investigate reports that fortunes were being told there.

CONFECTIONER CHARGES POLICEMAN BEAT HIM

Board Orders Investigation of Complaint Against Patrolman of Carr Street District.

The Police Board has ordered an investigation of the charge made in Police Court yesterday by Adam Lapinski, confectioner, at 815 O'Fallon street, that he was beaten with a night stick by Patrolman James Jones of the Carr Street District.

Lapinski, who was fined $25 on a charge of resisting a policeman, testified that Patrolman Jones entered his store last Friday, removed a bottle of liquor from his own pocket and took a drink, remarking, "Now, I've got you." Lapinski said he was then taken from the store toward a patrol box. On the way, he said, the patrolman demanded $150.

Lapinski testifeid he refused and the patrolman, after reducing the amount to $25 and not getting that, struck him on the head and again beat him when the patrol wagon arrived. A similar story was told on the witness stand by Lapinski's wife.

Patrolman Jones denied the charges. He said he had been watching the store for some time to get evidence of liquor selling and that he arrested Lapinski after the latter had sold drinks to two negroes. He said he found a bottle containing whisky under the ice box. He admitted, under cross-examination, a warrant charging illegal sale of whisky against Lapinsky had been refused by the Prosecuting Attorney when the evidence was submitted.

ORDER TO CLOSE FOUR COUNTY PLACES SOUGHT

Prosecutor Charges Saloons and Roadhouses Have Been Selling Liquor.

Prosecuting Attorney Jones of St. Louis County filed injunction suits under the Volstead act in the Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday seeking to have four Brentwood saloons and roadhouses closed for a year as nuisances. The suits are brought by Jones as plaintiff "at the relation of the United States." A hearing is set for Tuesday.

The defendants and their places are: Leslie W. Berry, Manchester and North and South roads; Bird S. Hurt, 955 North and South road, near the Kirkwood-Ferguson tracks; Jerry Moreland, 900 North and South road, near the River des Peres, and Frank Biller, Shady avenue and North and South road. Biller's place is partly in Webster Groves and partly in Brentwood.

Affidavits of a number of persons who declared they had bought whisky at these places, were attached to the suits, which charge that such sales continued over varying periods of time.

If he obtains injunctions in these cases, Jones said he may file similar suits against four or five others.

PAYROLL ROBBERS GET $800 BUT DROP $600 IN FLIGHT

Biggest Part of Money Taken From Harrison Construction Company Is Recovered After Holdup Men Flee.

Two armed robbers at noon yesterday held up four men in the office of the Harrison Construction Co., on Bonita avenue, about a block west of Skinker Road, on the De Mun Tract, and stole payroll money amounting to $800, but dropped $600 of the money in their flight, which was recovered. The robbers escaped in a Ford touring car, which they had parked across a vacant lot, about 200 feet from the construction company's office.

The money, which was contained in envelopes to pay 20 workmen employed on apartment buildings under construction, was taken from downtown to the office by David R. Harrison of the construction company and Sylvan Agatstein of 5740 Kingsbury boulevard, an attorney. They had just entered the office with the money and were preparing to pay off the workmen when one of the robbers, with drawn revolver, entered and commanded "hands up."

The other robber remained outside on guard and after the first had snatched the package of money, they both fled across a lot and in their flight dropped some of the envelopes containing the workmen's pay. They did not stop to pick up the packages, but cranked their engine and drove speedily to Skinker Road, where sight of them was lost. The payroll was insured against robbery.

ARRESTED AS FORTUNE TELLERS

Charm Sold to Policewoman Brings Misfortune to Two Women.

A supposed charm against adversity was sold by a fortune teller yesterday for $3.50, and promptly brought misfortune to the seeress, as the patron was Policewoman Rachel Thory. She caused the arrest of the fortune teller and an associate seeress on a charge of violating the city ordinance prohibiting fortune telling.

The women gave their names as Mrs. Rosie George, 23, and Mrs. Anna John, 22. They were arrested at 108 South Twelfth street, where Policewomen Thory and Genevieve Walsh had gone to investigate reports that fortunes were being told there.

CONFECTIONER CHARGES POLICEMAN BEAT HIM

Board Orders Investigation of Complaint Against Patrolman of Carr StreetDistrict.

The Police Board has ordered an investigation of the charge made in Police Court yesterday by Adam Lapinski, confectioner, at 815 O'Fallon street, that he was beaten with a night stick by Patrolman James Jones of the Carr Street District.

Lapinski, who was fined $25 on a charge of resisting a policeman, testified that Patrolman Jones entered his store last Friday, removed a bottle of liquor from his own pocket and took a drink, remarking, "Now, I've got you." Lapinski said he was then taken from the store toward a patrol box. On the way, he said, the patrolman demanded $150.

Lapinski testifeid he refused and the patrolman, after reducing the amount to $25 and not getting that, struck him on the head and again beat him when the patrol wagon arrived. A similar story was told on the witness stand by Lapinski's wife.

Patrolman Jones denied the charges. He said he had been watching the store for some time to get evidence of liquor selling and that he arrested Lapinski after the latter had sold drinks to two negroes. He said he found a bottle containing whisky under the ice box. He admitted, under cross-examination, a warrant charging illegal sale of whisky against Lapinsky had been refused by the Prosecuting Attorney when the evidence was submitted.

ORDER TO CLOSE FOUR COUNTY PLACES SOUGHT

Prosecutor Charges Saloons and Roadhouses Have Been Selling Liquor.

Prosecuting Attorney Jones of St. Louis County filed injunction suits under the Volstead act in the Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday seeking to have four Brentwood saloons and roadhouses closed for a year as nuisances. The suits are brought by Jones as plaintiff "at the relation of the United States." A hearing is set for Tuesday.

The defendants and their places are: Leslie W. Berry, Manchester and North and South roads; Bird S. Hurt, 955 North and South road, near the Kirkwood-Ferguson tracks; Jerry Moreland, 900 North and South road, near the River des Peres, and Frank Biller, Shady avenue and North and South road. Biller's place is partly in Webster Groves and partly in Brentwood.

Affidavits of a number of persons who declared they had bought whisky at these places, were attached to the suits, which charge that such sales continued over varying periods of time.

If he obtains injunctions in these cases, Jones said he may file similar suits against four or five others.

PAYROLL ROBBERS GET $800 BUT DROP $600 IN FLIGHT

Biggest Part of Money Taken From Harrison Construction Company Is Recovered After Holdup Men Flee.

Two armed robbers at noon yesterday held up four men in the office of the Harrison Construction Co., on Bonita avenue, about a block west of Skinker Road, on the De Mun Tract, and stole payroll money amounting to $800, but dropped $600 of the money in their flight, which was recovered. The robbers escaped in a Ford touring car, which they had parked across a vacant lot, about 200 feet from the construction company's office.

The money, which was contained in envelopes to pay 20 workmen employed on apartment buildings under construction, was taken from downtown to the office by David R. Harrison of the construction company and Sylvan Agatstein of 5740 Kingsbury boulevard, an attorney. They had just entered the office with the money and were preparing to pay off the workmen when one of the robbers, with drawn revolver, entered and commanded "hands up."

The other robber remained outside on guard and after the first had snatched the package of money, they both fled across a lot and in their flight dropped some of the envelopes containing the workmen's pay. They did not stop to pick up the packages, but cranked their engine and drove speedily to Skinker Road, where sight of them was lost. The payroll was insured against robbery.

Thousands of Women Are Now Converted

Black and White "Beauty Trail" Draws Many New Followers Each Year.

When the discoverers of the marvelous Black and White Beauty creations first announced to the girls and women of this country that they had at last perfected a means of really correcting bad comlexions, it was regarded as simply another wild claim which would explode when put to practical use.

But as each year has passed since that memorable day (in June, 1916), the figures show that large numbers of new converts have been added to the Black and White label, until now Black and White Beauty Creations are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than eight million packages a year.

When asked recently to give the reason for the tremendous popularity and big sale of Black and White Beauty Creations, one of the chemists said: "To us it is nothing out of the ordinary for such Black and White Beauty Creations as Cleansing Cream and Peroxide Cream to get such universal approval among girls and women everywhere. These enormous sales mean but one thing, and that is—Black and White Beauty Creations are actually accomplishing what women expect in caring for their complexion to keep it looking smooth and clear without a lot of trouble.

"One or two packages are sold in a neighborhood through the advertising and 20 more are bought there because the first ones bring such astonishing results. People are always ready to tell others about a method which helps them accomplish what other things failed to do."

Not a week passes that fails to bring out hundreds of statements from girls and women about the wonderful results they get in correcting bad complexion by using Black and White Cleansing, and Peroxide Cream. This alone is sufficient to explain the phenomenal sale of the Black and White Beauty Creations, and is the best reason no power on earth can keep them off the dressing tables of girls and women all over the country.

STUNTS IN AERIAL CIRCUS WEDNESDAY

Parachute Jumpers to "Race" to Ground by "Wrapping" Parachutes—Women to Fly.

The daily rehearsals of airplane stunt flying at St. Louis Field, near Bridgeton, St. Louis County, for the aerial circus to be held there July 4 for the newly organized 110th Observation Squadron, indicate that the program will surpass that of any air show ever held in St. Louis.

Several of the participants will not arrive until tomorrow, and for this reason a complete program of events has not been arranged. Maj. William B. Robertson of the National Guard Air Service Units, has announced that it was certain a number of world stunt record holders would participate in the circus.

The event spoken of as likely to be the most spectacular is a parachute race from a plane high in the air to the ground. The jumper allows his parachute to open as usual and then "wraps" it so as to lessen air resistance and cause him to descend swiftly to within a few hundred feet of the ground, when he allows it to reopen and land him in safety. Several jumpers will compete in this event.

James Donohue of Marshall, Mo., will jump from a speeding automobile to a moving plane, piloted by Maj. Robertson, and Miss Elvira Fizer, 18 years old, will stand on the wings of a plane in a loop-the-loop thousands of feet in the air.

Another woman, Mrs. Bertha Horchem, will take part in the circus. She claims to be the champion woman stunt flyer of the world, and will fly here from Omaha, her home, tomorrow with her husband. Mrs. Horchem will attempt to break the world's altitude record for women pilots at the circus, and Miss Fizer will attempt a record altitude parachute jump.

Battery A, 128th Field Artillery, and the Stokes Mortar Co. of the 138th Infantry, will attempt to protect a dummy battleship against destruction by airplane bombs as one of the features of the circus.

County officials have arranged to close Natural Bridge road to eastbound traffic Wednesday afternoon, from Bridgeton to King's highway and no parking will be permitted from Lucas and Hunt road to the Fee Fee road during the show. There will be space to park 1500 automobiles in the field.

CITY A LABORATORY FOR STUDENTS, HADLEY SAYS

New Chancellor States He Will Make Washington U. Mean as Much to St. Louis as Possible.

Following the recent announcement of selection of former Governor Herbert S. Hadley to be Chancellor of Washington University, the Post-Dispatch telegraphed for an expression of his views on the educational situation confronting the nation, and on the relationship of a large university to a large city. His response, telegraphed yesterday from Northeast Harbor, Maine, where he is summering, follows:

"Our system of education, like all the rest of our institutions has been undergoing a profound questioning in recent years. I feel confident the next decade will see marked changes and I hope marked advances. These changes must of necessity be directed towards improving the quality rather than increasing the quantity of education and, in advancing the standards of scholarship.

"While I am not sufficiently familiar with the situation to discuss in detail the problems confronting Washington University, I do have very clear ideas as to the great value an urban university like Washington can be to the city of which it is a part, and of the value which the city can in turn be to the university.

"The city can be to the university a great laboratory in which the student can see the practical application of the theories that he has learned in the classroom; and the university can give to the city the inspiration of high ideals and the most advanced thought in all the various departments of city life, social, economic, scientific and official.

"It will be my earnest purpose to make Washington University mean as much as possible to the people of St. Louis, and the people of St. Louis will, I know, be glad to have the city mean as much as possible to the university."

KILLED CHASING HIS HAT IN CHICAGO STREET

Belleville Men Loses Life When He Gets Off Bus After Mishap on Ride.

The death yesterday at Chicago of Charles Schaeffer Jr., 35 years old, of 2921 West Main street, Belleville, was the result of chasing his hat across a street Friday night. He was struck by an automobile, thought to have been a taxicab, the driver of which did not stop.

Schaeffer, with Theodore Rutter of Belleville and other members of a party representing the Moose Lodge there, were returning from Mooseheart, Ill., where a convention of the order had been held.

Rutter told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that Schaeffer and other members of the party boarded a bus at Union Station for a drive to Jackson Park. Schaeffer's hat blew off and he left the vehicle to get it. The others went on, thinking Schaeffer either would catch another bus or would return to the station and take a night train for Belleville.

The party did not learn until they reached Belleville that Schaeffer was not along and a short time later a telegram announcing his death arrived.

Why Smith Left Home

The Four Little Smiths

MR. SMITH was a printing pressman and made a good salary. He was a desirable citizen and a good rent-payer. He had paid rent for years, but had nothing to show for it except the receipts.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Smith there were four little Smiths, and Mr. Smith wouldn't have traded a single one of them for the finest house in the best section of St. Louis. They were the apple of his eye and the pride and joy of his life.

It was no wonder that Mr. Smith worked hard and well, but the Smith family didn't seem to be getting in the millionaire class. In fact, after the grocer and butcher had been paid and the landlord had gotten his, there wasn't so much left that Mr. Smith had to think about making a will. So you couldn't blame him for worrying about it sometimes because he wanted to provide for his family.

Their Faces Eager With Joy.

It wasn't until the doctor told Mrs. Smith that they would have to get one of the kiddies out into one of the better residential sections where there would be a nice little back yard that Mr. Smith decided the cramped quarters in which they had been living wasn't the sort of home they should have. He knew right away what the doctor had said was good advice, but he also knew it wasn't very practical, because the doctor had not told Mrs. Smith how to get the money, and so he kept thinking and wondering and worrying how he could make the change.

And the Doctor Said—

And then one evening as he was going home from work he saw in the Post-Dispatch an ad which exactly fitted his case.

The headline caught Mr. Smith's eyes at once, because it said in big, bold type "Do It for the Kiddies." There was a picture in it of healthy, happy children romping under the trees in the yard of a charming bungalow.

So Mr. Smith got busy immediately. He read the ad and found out how it was possible to get out into one of the many desirable residential sections, live in the sunshine, have his own flowers and a little garden; how the children could go to school year after year without having their studies interrupted by moving from one neighborhood to another; how, when finally old age came upon the parents, they had their home bought and paid for and there was no need to worry about the roof over their heads.

Mrs. Smith

He read how Real Estate values in St. Louis had increased many times over, how the growth of the city and the extension of transportation lines, and the increase in population made buying residence property an investment. And then, best of all, it said in the ad that you didn't have to have a big sum of money to buy a home, but that you could make a moderate payment down and then lay a fixed sum aside each week to make the rest of the payments which amounted to little more each month than rent.

So that night, after the little Smiths had been shooed off to the land of dreams Mr. Smith took the paper from his pocket and laid it out flat on the table so Mrs. Smith could see the beautiful picture, and told her that he had found the way to take the doctor's advice. When Mrs. Smith read the whole story she almost cried, she was so happy to think that the way was open for them to own a home.

Right there and then they decided to go home-hunting next Sunday—and so they did. They got up bright and early and started out. They saw other home-seekers choosing the site of their future happiness. And before the day was over they had decided on their future home. And then Mr. Smith and Mrs. Smith and the four little Smiths—their faces eager with joy—left their undesirable quarters, which really wasn't a home at all, but just a place to live, and set out for their really, truly home, where they lived happily ever after.

They Decided To Go Home Hunting.—

Doesn't this story of "Why Smith Left Home" point a moral for you? Haven't you longed and wished that you could get away from close, crowded quarters to a desirable home of your own?

Never before have you had a better opportunity than NOW. Make the most of it. Go home-hunting today.

FURTHER SLUMP IN STOCK PRICES ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Average Price of Forty Selected Securities Shows Decline of 5.70 Points for Week—Sterling Exchange Down.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review says:

"Caution in business and financial circles has now been supplemented by something approaching panicky fear in speculative quarters. The latter has as its basis, furthermore, ridiculous rumors and vague apprehensions. Judging by the vagaries of speculative sentiment and the behavior of the speculative markets, it might be assumed that the country is confronted with conclusive indications of a sudden and severe business depression. Nothing of the kind is, of course, actually the case. The outlook, to be sure, has its uncertain features, as the outlook always does. But, at the worst, the outlook is no more than uncertain.

Thinking of Past.

"It is an open question whether the country is to have even better business than before or whether it is to witness a moderate slackening off from the intense activity of the past few months. There is at least as much evidence to support either of these views as there is for the thesis that next year's business will be bad. The foundation for the latter view is chiefly statistical. It assumes that previous movements will find a close parallel in the present cycle. But the existing situation is unprecedented in several respects and a purely statistical conclusion is a dangerous thing.

"Unquestionably, recollections of 1919 and 1920 play an important part in present psychology. Manufacturers and merchants remember their inventory problems during that period and determine to take no chances of being caught in a similar position. Small speculators form a like resolve from their experiences in the same period. The painful circumstances which attended that unprecedented deflation are too close to be forgotten and have sensitized traders to an unusual degree. Accordingly, with the strong spring buying movements ended and with the preparations for fall trade still immature, and with forward buying reduced to a small scale, the stage is set in a manner favorable to the dissemination of bearish propaganda. Consumption is, however, going on at a high rate, and the resumption of buying on a substantial scale seems only a matter of time. The spirit of caution, furthermore, is really beneficial as far as the prolongation of prosperity is concerned. It is useful in so far as it prevents inflated values, both for stocks and commodities. But when its exaggeration leads to drastic declines in standard securities it is likely to carry values below inherent worth.

Factors in Situation.

"Looking at the situation from the standpoint of fundamental conditions, there are, of course, certain unfavorable factors. One of the chief is the rapid advance in wages which has taken place during the past three months. It is fortunate that too great a volume of business with reference to our limited labor supplies developed last spring, just as it is regrettable that the Federal Reserve authorities rather encouraged the movement by keeping their discount rates below those in the open market. The disproportion between what the farmer receives for his products and what he must pay for his purchases and the reparations deadlock are also unfavorable factors. Yet the damage done by the higher wages should not be irreparable, and a considerable volume of increased purchasing power has been created. Meanwhile stocks of materials are moderate, the supply of money and credit is ample and earnings are good. The farmer gradually is getting himself out of debt and his buying, as witness mail order sales, seems to be increasing. These conditons do not spell a sudden collapse of ndustry. They suggest that fall business will be good and that a reaction in business next year, if it comes, will be moderate. Certainly the situation in no sense justifies hysteria.

"Further liquidation at the opening of the stock market this morning was followed by dullness with some improvement in prices. During the final half hour of trading, however, additional heavy selling made its appearance, and quotations declined under the weight of offerings. Both railroad and industrial shares were affected. The bond market was steady and dull, without any feature of special interest.

Rally in Sterling.

"Selling pressure on sterling, which has been in evidence for the past five days, was lifted this morning and with fair inquiry for the currency a rally of ⅝c from yesterday's closing occurred, the quotation reaching $4.57⅝. This firmness, however, was not shared by the leading continental rates. French francs, at 6.03½c, Italian lire at 4.38½c, were both down 2 points, and German marks made a further new low at .0005½c. Dutch exchange, on the other hand, which has frequently moved in sympathy with sterling, was firm. Business in general was quiet.

"Commission house liquidation and Southern selling were dominant in cotton throughout the greater part of the morning, and rallies lacked vigor. High temperatures throughout the belt, favorable for the growing crop, and reports that mill operations will be curtailed during the coming week, were bearish influences. Moreover, the trade believes that the Government crop report, to be published on Monday, has been pretty well discounted.

"The weekly statement of the Clearing House shows an increase of $4,846,000 in surplus reserve. This gain was accompanied by an increase of $114,000,000 in loans and discounts and an increase of $65,454,000 in demand deposits. Reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank rose $13,125,000.

LOWER PRICES GENERAL IN TRADING ON THE CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The curb market during today's brief session moved in sympathy with generally lower levels for the majority of stocks on the big board. As has been the case in previous week-end session the professional element was reluctant about renewing selling operations, but on the other hand buying was unusually small.

Some further liquidation was in evidence in industrial leaders. Reports that Stutz Motor Company had made application to list its shares on the Stock Exchange failed to have any effect upon the selling price of the stock. Amalgamated Leather sold down fractionally and Midvale Corporation declined further.

Metals at St. Louis.

Lead last quoted at $6.55 per 100 pounds in St. Louis. Slab zinc last quoted at $5.75 per 100 pounds.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted foreign exchange review today says:

"Operations and rate movements in leading European exchanges in the past week were puzzling to all those except the bankers holding the control of dealings, and whose transactions determined the tendency of the market. The most important feature of the week was the continuous supply of sterling in moderate volume, but always in amounts large enough to meet inquiries and supply bills. The result of this supply was to force demand down to $4.56¾, a new low for the year, and a loss of over 4 cents from the level prevailing a week ago. There was a rally at close of week. The possibility exists that this movement may reflect selling in connection with purchases of grain and cotton later in the season, for which funds are being accumulated now. The trading in French exchange was apparently guided by Government representatives. On the first three days there were large offerings in all markets, checks on Paris selling on Wednesday as low as 6.10½, followed by a brisk rally from that level before the end of the day, but pressure was resumed on Thursday, and today there was a further decline to 6.03½. Italian was also heavy in the first three days, when lira checks made a new low for the year at 4.38½.

"Efforts to stabilize German exchange by the fixing of an arbitrary rate in Berlin were without effect. On Monday this rate was equal to above .0008¾, but sales were steadily made below that level and a new low of .0005½ was established. Swiss exchange had a steady decline, checks making a new low for the year at 17.70. Spanish exchange was unsettled by the differences between bank directors and employes in Madrid, peseta checks ranging from 14.83 to 14.48, a new low for the year. Scandinavian exchange also showed a heavy tone, the widest decline being sustained in exchange on Denmark. Holland, which has been firmly held, also declined at the end of the week. Far Eastern exchanges also yielded, most interest being attached to pressure against yen and rupees on Thursday. Canadian, which has been in steady decline, suffered a further loss and dropped to close at its low point of the year. Havana exchange was in increased supply and also declined.

"Selling pressure on sterling, which has been in evidence for the past five days, was lifted this morning and with fair inquiry for the currency a rally of ⅝c from yesterday's closing occurred, the quotation reaching $4.57½. This firmness, however, was not shared by the leading continental rates. French francs, at 6.03½c, Italian lire at 4.38½c, were both down 2 points, and German marks made a further new low at .0005½c. Dutch excange, on the other hand, which has frequently moved in sympathy with sterling, was firm. Business in general was quiet.

England—Sterling (D), $4.57 11-16; (C), $4.57½; 60-day bills on banks, $4.57 13-16.
France—Franc (D), 6.03½c; (C), 6.04c.

U. S. EXPORTS TO EUROPE IN MAY GREATER THAN IMPORTS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—For the first time since enactment of the new tariff law the Commerce Department was able to give out a complete monthly summary of the foreign trade of the United States, with total values of both imports and exports affecting principal countries prepared simultaneously. The import figures heretofore have been considerably delayed.

The complete analysis for May, given out today, shows the detailed distribution of a trade balance of $56,000,000 against this country on the trade of the month.

Exports of the United States to Europe during May were shown to be in excess of imports from Europe, in spite of the general unfavorable balance.

In practically every other quarter of the globe except Canada the United States took a greater quantity of goods during the month than it sold. Exports to Canada were almost double in value the imports from that country.

The department's detailed figures follow:

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—There was no encouragement to be found in the action of the market that the downward movement was at an end. Selling was not as heavy as on other days but absence of support was again evident. Traders did some covering early in the day but when the market failed to respond they began to offer prices down again and in the last hour the whole list weakened. Baldwin Locomotive broke through 117 for the first time. Studebaker was not helped by the announcement that the company was to advance its schedules affective July 1. Railway stocks were weak again. New Haven stock broke through 15—a new low for the year—accompanying heavy selling of New Haven French loan of 1925. Union Pacific fell sharply and Norfolk and Western was sold.

One of the incidents of today's brief session was the advance in Steel and Tube preferred, accompanying the announcement of the projected offer on Monday of $40,000,000 6 per cent debenture bonds of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. The latter's purchase of Steel and Tube, which was outlined some time ago and held in abeyance during the suit of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation to restrain the merger, will be financed through the sale of these bonds.

The lowest prices of the day were reached generally just before the end. Studebaker dropped below 99 and Steel common finally went through the 90 level. The close was weak all around with active selling still in progress.

The Bond Market.

The bond market during the two hours of trading today presented much the same characteristics which have been evident the last half of the week. High-grade securities were steady but not very active and speculative rails fluctuated in sympathy with stocks. There was not much change among the foreign issues. The new Austrian loan was firm after the weakness shown on Wednesday and the Mexican bonds held the gains recorded when it was announced that the deposit of bonds would be called for as of July 9.

The market for the entire week has been under the spell of the speculative mood. No attention has been paid to earnings and very little to the outlook for money rates. For the most part the tendency has been toward lower levels reflecting the uncertainty which found its origin in the sharp decline in stocks. There has also been some selling by speculators who needed money to replenish imperiled margin accounts and by others, especially evident in railroad bonds, who were influenced by the same factors that brought about the selling of railroad stocks.

Foreign bonds have suffered in the same way. It is true that the foreign situation, especially the outlook for an early settlement between France and Germany, is no better but some considered it doubtful if these things influenced the decline in the quotations for foreign issues dealt in on this stock. It was thought rather the spreading of speculative timidity. The outstanding exception was the new Austrian 7s.

In the midweek United States Government obligations were subject to selling pressure and the tax exempt 3½s made a new low for the year but this tendency was reversed yesterday and today and at the same time there was a noticeable firmness in the very high-grade rails and industrials.

The week's new issues reached a total of $82,165,000 with $45,000,000 in Federal Land Bank 4½s the most important offering.

In public utility financing the largest issues was the Consumers Power 5s of 1952 offered on a 5.75 per cent basis. Foreign financing was represented by a $2,000,000 offering of 8 per cent bonds of Cerra, Brazil, to yield 8.5 per cent.

RISE IN SECURITIES MARKS PAST SIX MONTHS AT LONDON

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, June 30.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of the Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review today says:

"The past six months have been conspicuous for a further rise in securities, to which practically every department contributed, while a further feature has been the indications of a gradual return by the markets to a normal state.

"Dealings in British funds and kindred securities still are restricted to a cash basis, and many are now advocating a return to monthly settlements.

"Already there are indications that the second half year may differ materially from the first. There probably will be a greater tendency toward anxiety concerning international policies until the reparation problem is settled, while there probably will be more attention given to monetary conditions. It is evident that our cheap money is being taken advantage of by many centers, including yours, which is neither good for us nor for other centers. Moreover, our cheap money is powerless to stimulate trade. The international political outlook shows little improvement, but it is believed that the tendency will be for all the Allies, except perhaps France, to concentrate increasingly upon the economic aspect of the reparation payments, irrespective of political considerations. Meanwhile, extraordinary gambling in foreign currencies continues, and the latest cables are confirming mine stating the extent to which foreign capital has been busy purchasing German, Hungarian and other continental industrial and banking undertakings. Such purchases, however, are not on account of first-class quarters."

WHEAT SHOWS STRENGTH ON THE CHICAGO MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 30.—Wheat showed strength the greater part of the session, but in the last hour the market acted a little groggy, needing support. There was buying by cash houses at the opening, while commission-house demand was broader, and there was considerable covering by shorts. The failure of the Liverpool market to fully reflect the decline in American markets yesterday was responsible for the opening demand. Buying power improved later on reports of black rust in North Dakota and also in Saskatchewan. On the bulge commission houses with Southwest connections sold in a hedging way and this caused pressure from locals. Covering by the pit traders on the dip helped the market. J. A. Taylor estimated winter wheat crop at 596,000,000 and spring wheat at 238,000,000 bushels. Cash wheat premiums were unchanged. Milling demand moderate. Export trade was quiet. Market closed 1⅝@1⅞c higher, July $1.02⅝@1.03, September $1.03⅛@1.03⅜, December $1.06⅛@1.06⅜.

Corn was affected by the wheat strength after the opening, but pressure on July from longs was heavy and that delivery failed to show much rallying power. Shorts covered freely and then put out their lines on the bulge. The movement of corn is increasing and, while the country is offering little to arrive, consignments are larger. Domestic shipping demand was light. Cash corn basis was unchanged. Market closed ⅝c lower to ¼c up, July 78⅝@78½c, September 75⅜@75⅝, December 63¾@63⅝c.

Oats followed the trend of corn. Trade was not large. Cash premiums were unchanged. Market closed unchanged to ⅝c lower, July 40½c, September 36⅝c, December 38⅛c.

Provisions were firmer. Buying by local and smaller packers on the hog strength was in evidence. Lard and ribs closed 5@7½c higher.

Says Black Stem Rust Damage

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 30. — Damage from balck stem rust in Minnesota and North and South Dakota has been negligible this year, and the situation is better than normal, according to official reports here today.

Several fields in Minnesota have been slightly infected, according to E. C. Stakman, plant pathologist at the experimental farms of the University of Minnesota, but in no case has it done damage.

Only one or two isolated cases of infection have been reported in North Dakota, according to George Mayoue, at Fargo, in charge of the Government's campaign of eradication of the barberry bush, rust breeder, in that state.

Rumors that rust was especially bad in the Canadian province of Saskatchewan were denied in advices received today from Winnipeg. According to F. H. Ault, Deputy Minister of Agriculture of that province, no rust was found in regions reported to be infected and he characterized the rumors as "incredible."

Declines in cattle and hog prices featured the live stock trade at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week. Sheep and lambs were not materially changed. Receipts of cattle and calves for the six-day period at 22,539 head were slightly larger than the previous week, but less than the run for the corresponding week in 1922. Quality of arrivals was an average. Unfavorable markets for dressed beef in the East exerted a bearish pressure on the trade and most classes suffered material price cuts. Strictly best steers and yearlings finished about 25c lower for the period, with the medium and common offerings showing as much as 50c to 75c loss. The bulk of native steers carrying killer flesh sold through a spread of $7.50 to $10 per cwt. The top was $11, paid for two cars of 1326-pound bullocks and other attractive droves of steers and yearling steers registered $10.90, $10.60, $10.40, $10.35 and $10.25. Light yearlings sold principally from $7.50 to $9.25. The range country contributed about 150 cars of steers and butcher stock and prices closed 25c to 50c lower. Texas and Oklahoma steers sold through a range of $3.50 for a canner grade to $7.75, the price for a good kind. The decline in butcher cows averaged 50c, most clearing from $4.50 to $5.75. The practical low end was $3.75 and the top $7. Canner and cutter cows dropped 25c to 50c, cutters commanding $2.25 to $3.50 largely, and canners $1.50 to $2. Bulls held steady, good weight beef animals making $4.75 to $5.50, medium to good bolognas $4.50 to $5.25 and plainer kinds down to $2.25. Stocker and feeder steers, in light supply and demand, ruled steady to 25c lower, with a spread of $5.50 to $7.50 covering most transactions. Stock cows and heifers also ruled steady to 25c lower, while bulls were steady. Veal calves strengthened as the week progressed, the popular spread Monday at $8.50 to $9, comparing with $9 to $9.50 at the close. Outside interests paid above this range midweek for a few choice lots.

June Hog Run Record.

Receipts of hogs were liberal, there being over 80,000 head on sale, bringing the month's supply up to 350,000 head, the biggest June run on the local market in its history. All other markets in the West had generous supplies which had a depressing effect on the trade. Market broke sharply, and prices dropped back to levels nearly parallel with those of the low time the middle of June. Trade compared with Saturday a week ago is showing a 35c to 40c decline, with all grades suffering in about the same proportion. Demand came principally for good light-weight shippers and choice light butchers. Top last Saturday was $7.60, compared with a $7.20 top Saturday of the current week, while the bulk of hogs which sold from $7.45 to $7.55 last week are now going around $7 to $7.15. While dull and hard to start, the market was fairly active throughout the week and packers bought freely after sellers made the desired concessions. Pigs are showing a 35c to 50c decline in the main. Offerings at the close were selling from $6.50 to $7 for 120 to 140 pound kinds, while lighter weights moved from $6 to $6.50, with peewees and plain lights from $5.50 to $6 chiefly. The demand for pigs fell off, due more than likely to the excessive warm weather of a week ago and high level of the local market made it hard for shippers to give their orders to St. Louis with other markets practically lower than this point. Packer sows are 40c to 50c lower, selling around $5.50 to $5.60, against $6 to $6.10 a week ago. Stags moved from $4.50 to $5 and were slow, hard sale at times. The sudden drop in the temperature this week made ideal shipping weather for farmers and this, along with the higher trend last week was responsible for generous receipts.

Sheep Run Lighter.

Receipts of sheep while reasonably good were far from being as liberal as the previous week. However, the previous week's supply was extra large and most likely to be the largest of the year. Some Texas sheep arrived last week, also a few clipped lambs, but the receipts in general were made up of spring lambs from Illinois and Missouri. Prices were on a lower basis than the previous week. On Monday the best lambs sold at $14.50@14.75, but each day since Monday they went at $14.75@15, and found ready sale. Lambs that were not fat did not move so readily and prices paid for them were irregular, quite a lot going at $13@14 and better ones $14.25@14.50. Most of the culls sold at $8@9. Fat mutton sheep of handy weight sold at $5.50, heavy and plain ewes $3.50, good to choice breeding ewes $7.50@8, fair kinds $6.50@7.25, choppers and bucks $2.50@3, and canners $1@1.50. Some Texas wethers sold at $7 and Texas ewes $6. All offerings were well cleaned up at the end of the week.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts totaled light for the week (less than 200 head arriving on commission), and markets were not essentially changed from the previous week. Trade was again limited to big horses, chunks, southern horses, good big mules and miners. These classes found moderate movement, although all other grades were extremely slow.

The Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund which has been lagging somewhere during the past 30 days, was increased by $246.03 during the last three days, crossing the first $1000 mark on the way to its goal of $6000 for the season's work.

Returns from the benefit ball game played at Sportsmen's Park last Sunday morning by friends of the babies from Commission Row, added $148 to the Ice Fund. The Bears defeated the Bulls in a lively game and a score of 15 to 12. The advance ticket sale for the affair was under the direction of Miss Mary McCormack and Charles L. Schaper and J. B. Crawford were among the most active promoters.

Neighborhood Show Earns $427.

A show at 780 Bayard avenue last week earned $42.57 for the babies. Following a miscellaneous program of songs, readings and dance numbers, a moving picture was shown and refreshments were sold. Mrs. E. M. Heyman managed the presentation and the following children were in the cast: Blanche, Marguerite and Edward Heyman, Dorothy Bruno, Wanda Snow, Enis Mattia, Anna Rafferty, George Andreas, Josephine Hicks, George Dorian, Melitta and Orville Bick, John and Angeline Foguli and Arthur Osseck. Ice cream was donated by the Blue Ribbon Ice Cream Co. and the Martens and Polar Wave Ice companies furnished ice.

Neighborhood children gave a show followed by a lemonade and cake sale at 3857 Blaine avenue on the evening of June 23 and realized $16.66 for the Ice Fund. The workers were: Loretta Gaffney, Winifred and Lora Herlinger, Lorene Norden, Bessie Lauman, Thelma Schrum, Anna Gorrath, Helen Finn and Daniel Foerestel Jr., the latter being manager of the affair.

Fourteen dollars came from a lemonade stand conducted on several days at Page and Union by children residing in the 5200 block of Maple avenue. Their names follow: Jocelyn Taylor, Virginia Prendergast, Rosemary O'Brien, Margaret Prendergast, Frances Ravarino, Dorothy Zadow, Rosey Zadow, Edward O'Brien, Walter Cunningham, Norbert Unger, Kenneth Maynard, Gerard Unger, Mario Ravarino and Abie Zadow.

Boy Sells Cake for Fund.

Melvin Sydney Strassner, 10 years old, of 3815 Lafayette avenue, sold a cake which his mother baked and earned $4.25 for the Free Ice Fund. Melvin has done this for the past five years and is numbered among the staunchest friends of the tenement children.

A lemonade stand at 6003 Etzel avenue cleared $3.60 for the fund. The promoters of the concession were: Mary Murray, Cecelia O'Neil, Lois Sieling, Mary Louise Vogt, H. J. Barton Jr., Keith Brock, Kenneth Brock, Paul Hobie, Drury King and Barrett Mitchell.

"Richard and Marshall" of 4941 Spalding avenue, conducted a lemonade stand at King's highway and Spalding which netted $2 for the babies.

A check for $1.50 came from Shirley Belle and Melba Levitt, who, with the assistance of Gwendolyn Fishman, earned that amount by having a lemonade stand.

Cash donations included $5 from Mrs. I. A. Schoen, 5741 McPherson avenue; $5 from Mrs. Agnes G. McKee, 1915 Union boulevard; $2.50 from J. R. Perkins and $1 from "Cash."

Pelham Turner of St. Louis Married to Kentucky Girl in Outdoor Ceremony at Louisville

Miss Mary Miller Brown, the Bride, Was Made Famous by Laurette Taylor as "Little 'Fifty Moah' "—Ceremony in Garden Under Trellis of Roses—Couple to Make Their Home Here.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 30.

MISS MARY MILLER BROWN, a Kentucky belle whom Laurette Taylor made famous as "Little 'fifty moah' with the sweet potato voice," was married this afternoon to Wilson Pelham Hoxton Turner of St. Louis. The ceremony took place at 5:30 o'clock in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander P. Witty on Douglas boulevard, the Reverend Dr. E. L. Powell officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. James Clifton Stone of Lexington. Her father was the late John Mason Brown, an attorney of Louisville, who has been dead several years.

The bridal party stood under a trellis of white roses banked with pots of lilies and hydrangea and flanked by cathedral candles. Twenty-four standards of gladiolas linked with white satin ribbon formed an aisle.

Miss Marjorie Cowan of Louisville was the bride's only attendant and the little flower girls were the Misses Anne Haldeman Wendling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wendling of St. Louis and Anne Prather Jones of Louisville. James Bergs of St. Louis was Mr. Turner's best man. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. John M. Ferguson of Louisville, gave her in marriage.

The bride, who is a beautiful young woman, wore a gown of Lyons and rose point heirloom lace embroidered in pearls, and her tulle veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and valley lilies.

Miss Cowan's gown was a hand drawn white voile and she wore a large white hat with a bow of delphinium blue. Her arm bouquet was of pink and blue delphinium and baby's breath.

The dainty little flower girls wore frocks of white chiffon with yokes of Valenciennes lace and bandeaux of pink roses tied with turquoise blue ribbon that fell in streamers at the back. They carried bouquets of delphinium, mignon roses and baby's breath.

About 60 guests were present for the ceremony and informal reception that followed. Mr. and Mrs. Turner left in the early evening for a motor trip, after which they will make their home in St. Louis.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late John Mason Brown and of Mrs. Silas Miller of Louisville and a great-granddaughter of General William Preston, former Ambassador to Spain, and veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars.

A number of St. Louisans, including Mrs. Wendling, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bascom, Mrs. Cora South Brown-O'Fallon and other friends attended the ceremony. The St. Louis party arrived by special train.

Miss Brown's fame as "fifty moah" was acquired through the visit of the all-star cast which toured the country in "Out There" for the Red Cross in the spring of 1918. Souvenir programs were auctioned off. Miss Miller, who was one of the ushers at Macauley's Theater for the performance represented Lawrence Jones, the successful bidder for the program. Every time Mr. Jones' bid was topped Miss Miller would call out: "Fifty moah!" In her book describing the tour, Laurette Taylor told about the Louisville visit and devoted a chapter to "Little 'fifty moah' with the sweet potato voice," telling how she and all the other members of the cast, Julia Arthur, George M. Cohan, George Arliss, Chauncey Olcott, James T. Powers, James K. Hackett among them, flocked to the curtain to locate the possessor of the Southern voice that charmed them so.

St. Louisans Will Flock to Country Clubs for Fourth

Each of Larger Organizations Will Have Dinner Dances and Other Forms of Entertainment—One Polo Match Planned.

THE cool, restful verandas of the country clubs, with their acres of shaded ground, easy chairs and well-served food, will draw hundreds of St. Louisans to their doors to celebrate Independence Day, which falls this year on Wednesday. Those who have chosen to remain in town until later, or who possess spacious houses of their own in the county, where they may entertain guests under wide spreading trees or in fountain-cooled gardens, will undoubtedly take advantage of them, but the majority of the socially inclined, glad to get away from the heat of the city and the responsibility of household cares, have made reservations at their favorite clubs.

Each of the larger clubs will have dinner dances, supplemented in most cases by entertainments of one kind or another. At the St. Louis Country Club there will be a polo match in the afternoon, and dinner will be served later on the terrace, lighted by Japanese lanterns and decorated for the occasion. There will be dancing. Here Miss Audrey Faust will entertain 60 of the younger set, including some of the girls who will "come out" next year, at the largest party of the evening, while at the same time her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust, will be hosts at a similar party for some of their friends. About 350 guests will motor out to Bellerive, to find the clubhouse gaily dressed for the day in patriotic colors, and many of its members playing in a club golf tournament. They may remain for a dinner dance in the evening. Of course the swimming pool at Sunset is always an attraction, and Wednesday, in addition, there will be golf and the regular Wednesday night dinner dance. The same sort of entertainment will also hold forth at Glen Echo.

How different and long ago sound the days our grandmothers have told about, when dinner was served on the lawn to relatives who came from miles around, from tables built of planks and saw-horses, the days before most fireworks had gone up in the smoke of much legislation and small boys saved for weeks to buy the noisiest things possible.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cocke of 4540 Lindell boulevard, gave a dinner party on the lawn of the Florissant Valley Country Club, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wilbur Weddell, the latter of whom was Mrs. Virginia Chase Steedman.

One of the largest of the country club parties given last night was that at which Miss Catherine Louise Crunden was hostess. There were 100 guests. Miss Crunden will depart later in the season to join her mother, Mrs. Frank P. Crunden, of Fish Creek.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—While the President and Mrs. Harding are traveling the White House is not entirely devoid of a social and official lion in residence for Col. George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, has remained there for a few days at the express invitation of the President prior to sailing for England.

Social, as well as political, Washington is stirred this week by the rumor that pervade sthe circles in the "know" that Vice President Coolidge will not be the running mate in the next campaign and that young Teddy Roosevelt—the White House boy of two decades ago—is to have his party's support in his ambition to succeed his distinguished father as a Vice President even as he did as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

The social importance of such a change of second place in officialdom if it should come with fortune perching again on the Harding standard is not to be underestimated. In the first place, the Coolidges are uniformly popular, especially Mrs. Coolidge, who has endeared herself to all Washington. Their places would be hard to fill. But Washington society has such a keen historical sense that its imagination has been thrilled by the possibility of another Roosevelt sweeping by on a gallant political steed the same route his father traveled to high place.

The "Teddy Roosevelts," as Washington fondly calls them, are most delightful young people, ready for a good time, interested in every worthwhile movement and with a houseful of darling youngsters. Mrs. Roosevelt shows enormous tact for one so young. Their home on Twenty-first street is a rendezvous not only of naval officers and their wives, but the smart younger set as well.

Perhaps if the Roosevelts occupied the vice-presidential post they would be willing to urge the acceptance of the generous offer of Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the late Senator from Missouri, of a suitable home for the Vice Presidents. The private fortune of the Roosevelts is not inconsiderable, and they could maintain such an establishment aside from the too meager salary we now pay to the second afficer of the land.

Speaking of Mrs. Henderson, she returned to Washington last week for a few days to open the beautiful out-of-doors swimming pool and tennis courts at Boundary Castle for the benefit of the junior diplomats and the younger set who have enjoyed its hospitality for several seasons past. In view of the fact that she is in heavy mourning for her son, John B. Henderson Jr., this thoughtfulness for the comfort and pleasure of others is the more deeply appreciated.

James Brookes Spencer of St. Louis and W. F. Cutting of New York have been the guests of the former's father and mother, Senator and Mrs. Selden Spencer of Missouri. Spencer and Cutting left yesterday for Atlantic City. Mrs. Spencer will leave in a short time for the New Hampshire mountains, where she will pass the summer. Senator Spencer will go to St. Louis.

Mrs. Spencer was the guest of honor at the supper given by the Business Woman's Council, composed of 1000 business and professional women of Washington, on Friday. Mrs. Spencer has been conducting the Bible study classes for the council before this meeting each Friday night for two years.

At one of the important weddings of the season, Mrs. Spencer wore a most becoming gown of black and white crepe de chine with a small black hat trimmed with white flowers.

The Rev. Thomas S. Small of the Chapel of the Nativity in Washington, who has been called to St. Luke's Church, St. Louis, was presented with a fountain pen at the farewell party held in his honor by the Girls' Friendly Society of the chapel.

Prof. Hodgkins of George Washington University, who stepped down from the temporary position as president to that of dean in order to make way for a man "who understands the art of raising money" has endeared himself to the educational circles of Washington thereby.

At the unveiling of the tablet placed on the former home of James Monroe and which was occupied by him when Secretary of War, Secretary of State and for six months when he was President, Mrs. Hodgkins as vice-president general of the D. A. R. from the District had a most important part. Mrs. Hodgkins wore a costume of basket weave silk ratine, made with a plain skirt and sleeveless coat worn over a handmade and lace-trimmed blouse. Her hat was a white one trimmed with white flowers.

Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis held a meeting of her committee in charge of the arrangements for the international convention of the International Council of Women which will be held in this country in 1925 last week.

Not content with the joys of the Dumbarton Club tennis courts Assistant Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis also frequents the pool which Mrs. John B. Henderson has thrown open to her friends during the summer.

Harris Johnston of St. Louis was one of the groomsmen at the wedding on Thursday of Ellen Bruce Lee, granddaughter of the late Senator Elkins, to Stoddard P. Johnston of New York. The bridegroom has frequently visited in St. Louis.

Mrs. L. Schoppe of 3433A Humphrey street, left last week to visit relatives at Marshall, Mo.

Mrs. Cecil Pangman of Clemens avenue will depart for Canada next week, accompanied by her two daughters and son, to spend the summer at Metis Beach on the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Misses Vivien and Kathryn Myers, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Myers, of Shawmut place, have returned from Columbia, Mo., where they attended the University of Missouri. Miss Vivien Myers received her degree this spring.

Mrs. Morgan K. Deale of Cates avenue, and Mrs. Bruce Dodson of Kansas City, sailed last Saturday from Montreal to spend the summer in Europe.

Mrs. Constance McLaughlin of 3806 St. Louis avenue, will depart Tuesday to tour the East, returning home in the fall.

SUMMER BUYERS WANT ENCLOSED MACHINES

"Winter and Spring Purchasing Tendencies Continue," Says R. C. Frampton.

"Summer buying of cars is revealing the same two tendencies as were shown last winter and spring;" says R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., distributors for Hudson and Essex.

"First—Enclosed cars are here to stay and open models will be used mostly as semi-sport cars.

"Second—The dominant character of enclosed cars has changed. They are utilities now, not luxuries.

"A bulletin by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce recently reported that 65 per cent of motor buyers now prefer the enclosed types. In Massachusetts, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, California and Pennsylvania and Missouri, the preference is well over 65 per cent; In the southern states the demand is less marked, but still important.

"It seems to me that this is nothing less than a marvelous development, an overnight event of especial importance in the industry. Who would have thought a year and a half ago that it would be more difficult to sell open cars than enclosed ones. Yet that is the exact truth today.

"Now this demand being disclosed, isn't it reasonable that the automobile trade, reflecting this desire, should tell the manufacturers of the industry to turn out enclosed bodies in volume under a standardized system—as a few companies did last year?

"There is no doubt but that other than standardized types of enclosed cars will survive. Nor is there reason to think that the open car will lack its own admirers. But isn't the fact apparent that the motorist who can have but one make of car, and who wishes to use that car in all seasons for both business and recreation, will seek the medium-priced enclosed car which best meets the general average of his needs?

"This car, it should be understood, cannot be skimped in any important particular. It must be reliable both in chassis and body. It must give the purchaser assurance that the body will last as long as the chassis. The body may have straight instead of curved lines, and the equipment in line with the general purpose of the car should be chosen for utility. But it must be priced right and render a definite comfortable service.

In the Hudson and Essex coaches—which are enabling us to break all records by producing 75 per cent of our 1923 output in enclosed cars—a public want is being supplied—a car which has been designed for the great average of the public's requirements."

CADILLAC TO BUILD THREE NEW ADDITIONS

DETROIT, Mich., June 30.

PLANS were completed this week for the erection of three large groups of factory buildings by the Cadillac Motor Car Company for the production of gray iron aluminum and brass castings. These foundry additions which will cover 10 acres are part of an expansion program, according to H. H. Rice, president of the company.

Due to the unprecedented volume of business the new buildings will enable the company to increase greatly its foundry production, when the additions are completed the Cadillac factories will stretch more than half a mile along each of two of the largest railway systems. Work will be started immediately.

What makes a motor car a good investment? Isn't it the ability to deliver low-cost service, not only the first year, but the second, third, fourth, and fifth year? The investment value of Hupmobile is clearly proven by the fact that carefully kept costs show it to be the most economical car over a three year period, or longer.

DORT MAKES CLIMB 34 TIMES IN HIGH

What is said to be the most remarkable and breath-taking performance ever made by an automobile was accomplished June 13th and 14th by Floyd Clymer at Golden, Colo., driving a Dort six. Details have just been received by H. C. Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co.

With radiator cap sealed and no water added during entire trip and sealed in high gear this Dort made 34 continuous and complete round trips over the famous Lookout Mountain, a distance of 437 miles, carrying a total of 187 passengers in 24 hours. Each trip five or more passengers were carried, and on the last trip seven passengers, including officials and newspaper men went over the top.

This record, over the steepest and most irregular road in the country, which has a number of hairpin curves, was made while thick traffic was going in both directions. To anyone who has traveled over this road the feat of the Dort Six seems almost unbelievable.

Moving pictures of the trip were taken for weekly news reels.

D'ARCY TO HANDLE WHITE CO. ACCOUNT

St. Louis Agency President Tells How Big Truck Manufacturer Solves Transportation Problems.

W. C. D'Arcy, president of the D'Arcy Advertising Co. of St. Louis, made arrangements last week in Cleveland, effective Wednesday, June 27,, the D'Arcy company is now handling the advertising of the White company of Cleveland.

"The White company," said D'Arcy, on his return to St. Louis, "is the largest exclusive manufacturer of motor trucks in the United States, as well as the largest builders of buses. They are manufacturers, actually and literally. Their business is international and White trucks are running in most foreign lands.

"On my trip, I was particularly interested in learning the policies of the White insttiution. The entire business is built on quality. The White company began to make trucks in 1913 and their first truck is still running. They ceased building passenger cars in 1918. Ten White trucks are now in use that have covered 500,000 miles each and many additional White trucks have made 300,000 miles.

"The White company is in business to furnish transportation service, which doesn't mean that they are in competition with any other form. The railroads are the last to build spurs and feeders and trucks serve the same purpose in both city and interurban traffic. Trucks are as essential in keeping moving transportation facilities of this country as the right hand is essential to the body.

"The White company officials, from Walter C. White, the president, down, are studying transportation continually and are solving transportation problems with their product.

"Among those with whom I had contact at the White factory in Cleveland were Saunder Jones, formerly St. Louis branch manager, but now vice president in charge of the Southwestern district and Stanley P. Seward, the new advertising manager of the White company, who has been in the sales department and who formerly was a newspaper man.

BUICK IS USED FOR "HOISTIN' CONCRETE"

"Well, whatcha know 'bout that? I've seen 'em use Buicks for carrying everything from queens in a rose shine, but I never seen one h'istin' concrete to the top of a building before."

Such is the reported remark of a bystander gazing in wonder at a load of concrete being hoisted to the second story of a new building in Longview, Wash.

In the absence of a hoist, the contractors were using a single block and line attached from the skip to the front of their Buick machine. In hoisting the load, the motor was thrown in reverse and the load went to the top of the building without any apparent effort. The old Buick had to back up about 20 feet to accomplish it. When the skip was emptied, the Buick went forward to its original stand, which lowered the skip for refilling.

The contractors claim they can handle in this manner a load every minute, or a total of 20 full yards of concrete a day, and that the Buick-rigged "lift" serves the purpose equally as well as a steam or electric hoist.

HAYNES USES PICTURE OF ST. LOUISAN IN AD

In one of its recent trade paper advertisements, which was published on the front cover of one of the leading automotive journals, the Haynes Automobile Co. of Kokomo, Ind., shows a photograph of H. C. Merry, secretary of the Wilson Motor Car Co. This company is the local distributor for the Haynes car.

The advertisement, in addition, quotes Merry on the value of the Hayes franchise.

A Buick Closed Car
Built for Summer Driving

The Buick Six Cylinder Touring Sedan is particularly popular because it combines perfectly the many advantages of the open touring model with the luxury and convenience of a fine closed car.

The wide windows provide touring car airiness; yet in case of a summer shower or dust storm, a turn of the hand instantly protects the occupants without obstructing their vision.

Buick traditional performance, power, dependability and riding comfort are worthily typified in this Touring Sedan.

FOUR WHEEL BRAKES ON RICKENBACKER

Announcement of New Device Made by Detroit Motor Car Builder.

DETROIT, Mich., June 30.—One of the most startling innovations made in an automobile in a decade or so is just announced.

This is to the effect that the Rickenbacker Six, a car famous from its inception for its many advanced engineering features, will now come equipped with brakes on all four wheels. Four-wheel brakes have been frequently heard of in the last few months, and a few scattering cars have even been equipped with them.

"Last year, when I visited the Paris Automobile Show," says Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, "I saw 61 different makes of cars equipped with brakes on all four wheels.

"Three years prior to that, when we laid the first Rickenbacker chassis on the drawing board, we included brakes on all four wheels.

"I had just returned from Europe and, after driving cars so equipped, I was even then convinced that the public would soon force manufacturers to adopt this extra safety factor.

"When we came to apply brakes to the front wheels we encountered several new problems.

"First, the brakes must never interfere in the slightest with the easy steering of the car. One of the fine points in the Rickenbacker is the fact that you can steer it with one finger. Certainly we would not want to sacrifice that highly desirable quality.

"Then, too, the front wheels must never, under any circumstances, lock. For you must always have "steerage way," and, of course, when wheels are locked you lose that. Now, inasmuch as no brake has ever been devised that a powerful driver cannot lock if he applies sufficient power and exerts it quick enough, our brakes are so designed that the pressure is greater on the rear wheels than on the front, even when going straight forward; and when turning, the front wheels gradually release until, at the angle of "full turn," they are quite free.

"This enables the driver to use his steering wheel as well as his brakes in cases of extreme emergency, for he can not only stop in less than half the distance, but he can also avoid an obstacle or a collision by turning at the same time.

"The effect of four-wheel brakes is to stop the car in half the distance with the same exertion that is required to stop one with only two brakes.

"Perhaps the greatest pleasure derived from four-wheel brakes is in the fact that, with less than half the exertion you can come to a velvety pause in the same time or distance that you have been accustomed to, and you always have that wonderful feeling of tranquillity that comes from the knowledge that, at any reasonable speed, you can stop your car almost in its own length."

In St. Louis the Diesing Motor Sales Co. is distributer for the Rickenbacker.

Autos Raise Land Values.

Between 1910 and 1920 farm land values increased 93 per cent, as an average, throughout the country. Some states went as high as 140 per cent.

Firestone tire men see in this increase a direct compliment to better highways, quicker and more economic farm transportation and better marketing conditions in general.

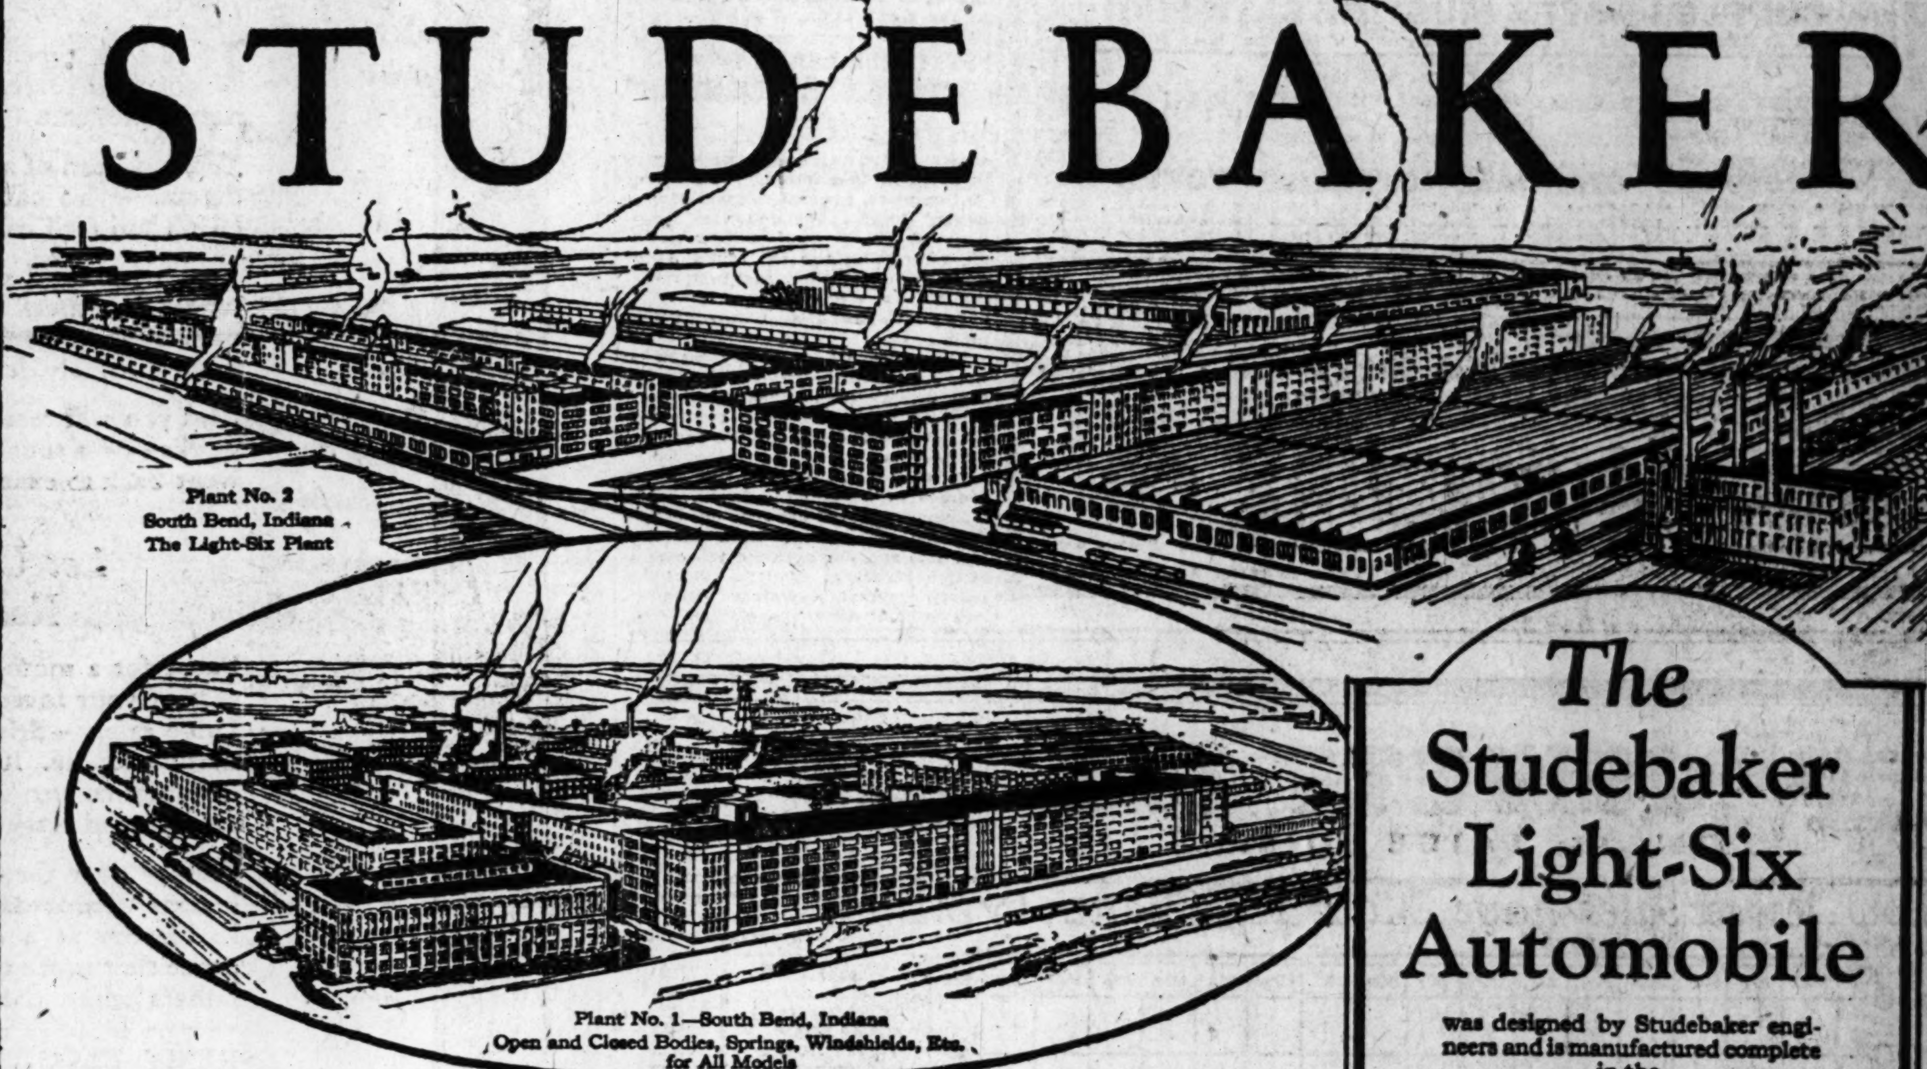
STUDEBAKER



Plant No. 2
South Bend, Indiana
The Light-Six Plant

Plant No. 1—South Bend, Indiana
Open and Closed Bodies, Springs, Windshields, Etc. for All Models

(Plants 3, 4, and 5, Detroit, where the Big-Six, the Special-Six and Service Parts are made, are not shown in this illustration)

Vast Resources Make Possible High Value at Low Price in Studebaker Light-Six

Studebaker's vast resources are utilized to manufacture (not assemble) the Light-Six complete in the newest and most modern large automobile plants in the world.

The Corporation's resources, consisting of $85,000,000 of actual net assets, including $45,000,000 of plants, make it possible for Studebaker to offer a six-cylinder car, at less than $1,000, that is emphatically superior in design, construction, performance, comfort and dependability, to any car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

By complete manufacture, Studebaker not only guards the quality of each part, but saves the middlemen's profits with the result that no other make of car ever built, by anyone, at any price, represents so great a dollar-for-dollar value as the Light-Six.

Evidence of its mechanical superiority is found in its practical freedom from vibration. This is accomplished by the perfect balance of the motor. Perfect balance is obtained largely through the complete machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods. This requires 61 precision operations. It is a costly practice, necessitating a large investment in plant equipment, but is a very important one to the owner.

This method is followed exclusively by Studebaker on cars at this price. In fact, there are very few other cars which have this feature, and their selling prices are from three to ten times as great as that of the Light-Six.

The advanced design of the Light-Six represents an engineering achievement. Its production is an achievement in the application of precision methods to large scale manufacture. And the pricing of the Touring Car (or Roadster) at $975 is an achievement in value-giving without parallel in the automobile industry.

The finest tribute that can be paid any product is increased patronage year after year. Only a product of merit can keep on growing—as Studebaker has grown. Merit is the best sales-maker in the world.

It is significant, therefore, that the sale of more than 80,000 Studebaker cars during the first six months of this year broke all records.

Buyers are justified in expecting more for their money in a Studebaker than in any other car. After 71 years of service, the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

The Studebaker Light-Six Automobile was designed by Studebaker engineers and is manufactured complete in the NEW STUDEBAKER PLANTS AT SOUTH BEND, INDIANA which are notable in design, size and equipment for efficient and economical manufacture.

The South Bend Plants contain 4,875,000 square feet of floor space.

They employ 12,000 persons.

They cost $33,250,000.

The South Bend Forge Plant cost $4,000,000, which alone is more than the total assets of many automobile companies.

And then there are:

The machine shops which cost $7,000,000.

The stamping plant which cost $4,000,000.

The new foundries which will cost over $2,000,000.

The power plants which cost $2,500,000.

The assembly and stock plants which cost $5,000,000, as well as closed and open body plants, spring shops, etc.

Studebaker plants, in cost and size, are the second largest of the world's automobile plants.

Studebaker is the second strongest financially of the automobile manufacturers of the world.

These facts show why it is possible for Studebaker to produce the Light-Six—a truly remarkable car—and sell it for less than a thousand dollars.

In actual car value per dollar of price the Light-Six is in a class by itself. No prospective buyer of an automobile should decide on anything until he has seen and driven this car.

It is backed by a corporation with $85,000,000 of actual net assets and a 71-year reputation for honest product and fair dealing.

"ST. LOUIS LEADS IN ACCIDENT PREVENTION"

"St. Louis, thanks to organized safety activities, leads the country in accident prevention," said Oliver T. Remmers, general counsel of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and vice president of the St. Louis Safety Council, addressing the St. Louis Automobile Club at their monthly meeting at the Western Rowing Club, 5000 South Broadway, Thursday evening.

"In cities where safety work is not organized there was a 16 per cent increase in accidents last year, whereas in cities where safety activities are organized a 10 per cent decrease is shown.'

As an illustration of the many sources of accidental injury, Mr. Remmers pointed out that pin pricks disabled more people than pneumonia. The speaker outlined the organization structure of the National Safety Council, explaining that its two chief divisions were those of industrial safety and public safety. Under public safety he grouped safety of the streets, the home, and the school, and surprised his audience with the statement that there are more injuries and fatalities due to negligence in the home than in industry.

Why Jewett Six Succeeds Like This

Look at Jewett's sales success; the chart tells the story. What made it possible?

No sales genius could have put this over. Nothing but startling quality, and performance at the price, could have done it. There are plenty of average satisfactory quality cars around Jewett's price, yet look at Jewett's first 17 months! Why? Why? Surely it is wise to learn of Jewett's qualities before you buy any car.

First, Jewett offers a powerful, sturdy Six at the cost of a Four. Jewett is the only car in the thousand-dollar class built by a maker of highest quality cars at $2000 and upwards. The Paige-built Jewett Six is a Paige-designed product through and through. Paige-built motor, Paige-type clutch and transmission, Paige-Timken axles, Paige ball-bearing steering spindles, Paige high-pressure oiling system.

Paige performance—the ability to pass most any car on any hill—the pick-up of 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds in high gear—the flexibility to go 2 to 60 miles an hour in high gear—are characteristics of the Jewett which have won it friends everywhere. And Jewett, like the Paige, is easy riding in spite of its moderate size. It rides easily because its springs are 80 per cent of its wheelbase, because it is a stoutly constructed car—200 pounds heavier—and will not bounce around.

Jewett handles as no car ever handled before, because it has but 11½ lbs. weight per cubic inch of piston displacement. You do not realize how powerful Jewett is compared with average cars until you raise the hood. Jewett's fifty horsepower motor fills the hood. You cannot imagine an emergency which such a car would not out-maneuver.

A ten-minute ride in a Jewett, with your own hands on the wheel, will tell you more than all the engineering facts or sales records in the world. You're welcome to drive the Jewett whenever you want—as far as you want—to prove to yourself the Jewett Six is not only the dominating car in the thousand-dollar class, but so fine a car that few need to pay more. Will Your Name Be In Thursday's Paper?

IF history repeats itself this Fourth of July—you will not care to read next Thursday's paper. Its news will not be pleasant.

You will read of a boy and a girl—full of youth's buoyant dreams—who carelessly ventured too far from shore in an all too frail canoe!

You will read of a reckless, pleasure-bent motorist, whose eagerness to reach the picnic grounds beyond the path of an oncoming train, hurled seven of his loved ones to an untimely death.

And you will read—even with all the agitation against fireworks—of a tousle-haired boy, much like your own, who went back to examine the firecracker that did not explode.

Let Us Make This Fourth Really Safe and Sane

Pause for a moment today—and think! Whisper into the ears of your loved ones a note of warning and of caution. Drive safely—drive with a little more care than you ordinarily exercise. If you go boating or bathing—don't tempt treacherous currents. If you have fireworks—be extremely careful, and forget those that fail to explode.

Ponder over these words of caution today, practice their lessons Wednesday—and this Fourth of July will go down in history as a day of greater security and peace—a peace that more nearly approaches the dream of our forefathers when they sheathed their swords at Yorktown.

SAVE 1/4 OF YOUR GASOLINE!

OFFICIAL TEST 63%

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF MISSOURI
HEADQUARTERS
ST. LOUIS KANSAS CITY

Philis Mfg. & Sales Co.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Gentlemen:—The following data was gathered on a recent test trip made by the Automobile Club of the Philis "Buster" as manufactured by your concern.

On the first trip the gas line was disconnected and a quart of gasoline was connected in its place by means of a section of hosing. The car ran 4 1-10 miles on this quart of gasoline.

The "Buster" was then placed between the carburetor and the intake manifold. The quart can was then refilled and the carburetor cut down to as lean a mixture as possible. The car traveled 6 8-10 miles on this second trip and to all appearances climbed hills just as easily as on the first trip. This is an increase of approximately 63% more miles per gallon of gasoline.

The writer and the Automobile Club mechanic supervised this test.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE E. DRUMMOND.
Automobile Club of Mo.
GED:HS

Any automotive engineer will tell you that power produced from gasoline depends on its reduction to as fine a vapor as possible. The Buster does it!

The "Buster" propeller whirls from 2000 to 3000 revolutions per minute and by means of its involute curve, it smashes the particles of raw gasoline into a perfect vapor spray, thus giving you perfect combustion. At the same time it increases the foot flow 2¼ times, insuring an even distribution of gas in every chamber.

Hannibal, Mo., June 22, 1923.

Gentlemen:—

About a week ago I installed one of your "Busters" on my Ford. I want to advise you that I think this is the greatest invention since the automobile. I would not sell the little device for ten times the purchase price if I could not secure another one. The car runs like a scared rabbit with the carburetor almost closed.

Yesterday, June 21, a test was made, and one gallon and one quart of gasoline was placed in the tank. The car run exactly thirty-five miles before stopping for lack of gasoline on a level piece of road.

I have certainly mentioned the "Buster" to a few friends.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) W. L. TUCKER,
Manager W. U. Tel. Co.

AGENTS AND DISTRIBUTORS WANTED

WEBER MOTOR CAR CO. OPENS ON NORTH SIDE

The new north side branch of the Weber Motor Car Co. at Grand boulevard and St. Louis avenue was formally opened Saturday. A big crowd attended. The new branch contains both sales department and service station and became necessary due to the tremendously increased business of this concern, which has its main building at Eighteenth and Locust streets.

The Weber Motor Car Co. is one of the oldest automobile distributors in St. Louis, having handled the Studebaker for more than twelve years, or ever since the local company started.

A special exhibit at the opening was that of the Studebaker Special Six, five-passenger coupe, a new model.

Personnel of the new branch includes Henry Weber, vice president and manager, Edward West, service manager, and the following salesmen: Harrison Weber, Barrett Weber, S. M. McCoy, and Paul M. Ray.

WHAT WILL THE CAR BE TWO YEARS HENCE?

"Doughnut automobile tires, practically eliminating the wheel; four-wheel brakes, and smaller motors will make up the car of two years hence," according to the prediction of Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker. Rickenbacker has unusual opportunities to see what is developing in Europe as well as America.

Two years ago he successfully forecast designs which are rapidly becoming standard. His statements as to what may be expected in the coming two years are therefore interesting. There is no closer student.

4-wheel BRAKES

Again—Rickenbacker Engineering Leads, and Shows the Way

First assumed that leadership, by creating a motor free from any period of vibration—the most destructive force in an automobile.

The Rickenbacker "Tandem Flywheel" accomplished this.

Then the "Air Cleaner"—which doubles the life and renders your motor free from excessive carbon deposits.

And now—we announce the greatest improvement made in an automobile since the advent of the self-starter—13 years ago.

Here is a feature that is super-efficient; for not only do the four wheel brakes increase your tire mileage and eliminate all tendency to skid, but they offer the only practical solution of the twin problems of congested traffic and public safety.

With the same effort, you stop in about half the distance—with half the strain on tires, brake linings and other parts that you do in the same car equipped with 2-wheel brakes.

Or, with much less effort, your car stops in the same distance with still less strain on tires and axles.

Verily; "A demonstration is a revelation!"

For, if we told you here all the advantages of this great engineering achievement your credulity would be unequal to the test.

One cannot believe, until he himself has experienced the sensation, of riding in—and driving—a Rickenbacker with 4-wheel brakes.

So convinced are we of the superiority of four over two, we predict that one year from today 4-wheel brakes will be universal.

Remember this when rival salesmen try to argue against 4-wheel brakes—for of course they must, not having them, yet.

The superiority is so marked and so manifest, there is just no ground left for argument.

As we have stated, this is, and will be, regarded as the greatest single improvement in an automobile since the advent of that other epoch-making feature—the self-starter.

Here's a self-stopper—if you will!

Amazing in performance.

Does not affect steering unless it be to give you better control of the car when turning.

Actually stops car on wet asphalt quicker than 2-wheel brakes do on dry, with no skidding.

There's a feeling of security when driving on a wet or slippery surface that is indescribable and most reassuring.

Equalized as no other braking system has ever been equalized—to compensate, not only for difference in traction of each wheel, but for difference in wear of shoes and drums.

Drums are finely machined to ensure absolute uniformity and smoothness of operation. Another example of Rickenbacker thoroughness and care.

Think of this greatly increased factor of safety—100 per cent more than you have been accustomed to.

Here is a mighty long step towards the solution of the traffic problem.

You can stop in "a car length" at any legal speed—or glide to a velvety pause, in half the distance you are used to.

No, NOT hydraulic—pneumatic—or electric.

Mechanical*—positive—simple—sure—a system any child can understand.

4-wheel brakes wear longer because the coefficient of friction per square inch of braking surface is less than half of what it is in two.

Tires wear longer for the same reason. Brake linings, too.

Silent, and uniformly efficient at all times and under all conditions—for all four brakes are of the internal, expanding type—dust-proof, clean, sightly.

By the way—Rickenbacker brake drums are painted a brilliant red, so that you will easily recognize this feature in a Rickenbacker Six.

All four brakes alike—interchangeable! That's another wonderful advantage.

Of course you recall that the Rickenbacker was the first high-class car that had steel disc wheels as standard. That bit of courage and enterprise started the wood wheel on the road to obsolescence.

And now—this latest Rickenbacker invention will relegate to the limbo of the forgotten, the old style of brake.

Six equalizers—one in each wheel and one between each pair of brakes to front and rear.

From now on, in the Rickenbacker Six, you will enjoy motoring as you never did before.

Phone, or come in and arrange for your demonstration.

Don't delay. First come must be first shown—and, of course, every progressive motorist in town will want a ride in this sensational Rickenbacker Six—with 4-wheel brakes.

"Sweethearts," Revived From Last Summer, to Be Presented This Week

Herbert's Comic Opera to Have Cast Virtually New at Municipal Theater—Last Performance of "Die Fledermaus" Tonight.

TWO of the ten works listed for the Municipal Theater this season are repeated from last summer's repertory. They are Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts" and Heinrich Reinhardt's "The Spring Maid." The former will be presented this week, beginning tomorrow night. The concluding performance of "Die Fledermaus," an opera comique by Johann Strauss, will take place tonight.

In reviewing "Sweethearts" a year ago, it was remarked in these columns that the work "would be a comic opera classic if it were not stultified by an imbecile libretto." Praise was given to Mr. Herbert's unflagging melodic invention, his opulence of orchestral style, and a versatility ranging from medieval religious chant to Viennese waltz, from military march to sentimental ballad, and from humorous ditty to grand opera ensemble.

The book, by Harry B. and Robert B. Smith, assisted by "Fred de Gressac," embodies one of those spurious romances in which a Prince woos a Cinderella who turns out to be no Cinderella at all, but, by a startling coincidence, the Prince's own long-lost Queen. The Queen, in this instance, is a maiden known as Sylvia, who was spirited away in infancy during a revolution in the kingdom of Zilania, and deposited rather cavalierly in a Belgian tulip bed. There she was discovered by Dame Paula, leading laundry lady in Bruges, who apprenticed the royal child to washtub and flatiron.

Outline of the Plot.

IT is the most natural thing in the world that Prince Franz, heir-presumptive to the throne of Zilania, should come wandering incognito to this very laundry, and that he should fall in love with Sylvia, though believing her to be no other than what she appears, a fay of the mangle. And nothing could be more charming than the turn of affairs which enables Sylvia, on discovering her identity, to bestow her hand upon the hero who rescued her from the soapsuds.

There are other complications, for rumor has spread that the rightful sovereign of Zilania is revolving a wringer at the "White Geese" laundry. Thither come divers adventurers to make capital of the fact. One is Mikel Mikelovitz, a grafting politician, who, disguised as a monk, was no other than the personage who abandoned Sylvia in the tulip bed, and who is prepared to restore her throne—for a price.

There is the Hon. Percy Algernon Slingsby, a stage Briton from monocle to walking stick, who would like to mend his fortunes by wedding the Princess of starch and bluing bottle. Petrus van Tromp is eager to acquire, for a song, the paintings in the Zilanian palace. Aristide Caniche is ambitious to purchase the palace, in order to convert it into another Monte Carlo.

They all make the mistake of believing that the Princess is not Sylvia, but one Liane, a sprightly French milliner, who, for some unfathomed reason, has temporarily deserted her shop for a job at Dame Paula's ironing board. The same mistake is made by Lieut. Karl, a philandering officer, who jilts Sylvia for Liane.

Burden Falls on Chorus.

ALTHOUGH there are solos for most of the principals, the burden of the score falls upon the chorus. Last year's production was impaired by the miscasting of Sophie Brandt in the role of Sylvia, a part assigned now to Helena Morrill. Frank Moulan and William J. McCarthy reappear in the roles of Mikel and Slingsby. The other parts are distributed as follows: Dame Paula, Flavia Arcaro; Petrus van Tromp, Detmar Poppen; Caniche, Roland Woodruff; Liane, Dorothy Maynard; Franz, Thomas Conkey; and Karl, Craig Campbell.

Eight members of the chorus will be advanced to minor parts, in which five of them appeared last year—Marie Lenhardt, Grace Brinkley, Louise Heimueller, Clara Schlief and Merle Kemper. Other bits have been given to Winifred Corrigan, Myrtle Voss and G. E. Martin.

Particular favor usually goes to a military march, "On Parade;" the featured waltz, "Sweethearts;" a religious chorus with chimes, "The Angelus;" a ballad, "For Every Lover;" the imposing finale of the first act; and the "Monks' Quartet," which often elicits numerous encores. Both acts of the work are laid out of doors.

Next week the company will undertake another operetta by Johann Strauss, "Der Zigeunerbaron," or "The Gypsy Baron."

Vaudeville Program at the Grand.

The bill at the Grand Opera House, beginning with today's matinee, includes the Six Noses, in a novelty program of classical and syncopated numbers; Newton and [illegible], singers and hoofers; Galetti's troupe of trained dogs and monkeys, presenting a race track episode; [illegible] Warden and Benny Burtt, vocalists and steppers; Monroe Ta[illegible] and Fred Greene, in a blackface [illegible]; Harry Berger and Nina Sea[illegible], in a "Western Union Flirtation;" Gillette and Rita, in a bicycle [illegible]; Rose and Bunny Brill and the [illegible] brothers, equilibrists.

—Strauss Portraits.

Charles de Roche and Dorothy Dalton, in "Law of the Lawless"—Missouri.

Claire Windsor and Hobart Bosworth, in "The Little Church Around the Corner"—Lyric Skydome and Capitol.

John Bowers and Jane Novak, in "Divorce"—Kings.

Duse's Genius, After 17 Years, Enthralls London

LONDON, May 30.

FOR the first time in 17 years, Eleonora Duse, the world's most famous living actress, is playing in London in a series of six matinees at the New Oxford Theater. The first of her productions was Ibsen's "The Lady From the Sea," and it was the signal for as impressive a public welcome as can well be imagined. Not only on her first appearance, but after every act, she received a great ovation.

When the play was done she was called again and again until the audience took pity on the obvious weariness of their idol, and reluctantly dispersed. The last view was of Duse, tired but happy, bowing from the midst of a forest of flowers.

The early scenes of the play, said the critic of the Telegraph, went by us almost unheeded. Then she appeared—a graceful, fragile figure with white hair, scorning any attempt to make herself appear other than she is, to disguise herself as Ellida. The play—after an interval—moved on, and gradually we found ourselves yielding to a spell woven by a wonderful voice, a smile and the most expressive pair of hands in the world.

We found our attention drawn, as if by an irresistible magnet, to follow every movement of those hands, every tone of that voice; and when she left the stage the tension snapped, and we came to ourselves with a confused memory that there had all the time been other actors on the stage, that a play by an author as eminent in his art as Duse in hers was in action—and a clear realization that for the time being neither of these facts mattered to us in the least.

Appears in New Play.

AT an ensuing performance, Signora Duse appeared in a new play, "Cosi Sia," by Tommaso Gallarati-Scotti. We seemed to be looking, one reviewer remarked, at one of those symbolic figures, spare and wan and pitiful, which Giotto painted in the chapel of the Eremitani at Padua. This symbol would be called "La Maternita."

For Eleonora Duse, the writer continued, is here the essential mother, living, suffering and dying for her motherhood, in the atmosphere of simple, peasant-faith which was Giotto's own. You see her weeping and wailing in desperation over her sick child, whom the doctor has given up. What miracle can she obtain from Heaven to save it? The

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

The name of Mary Pickford's new picture will not be "The Street Singer," but will be "Rosita," originally the working title. This change was made necessary by the fact that the title of "The Street Singer" has been previously used. Many years ago Hal Reid, father of the late Wallie Reid, wrote a play called "The Street Singer," and in the early days of films a picture by the same title was put out by Kalem, all of which makes it impossible for Mary to use this name.

In "Circus Days" Jackie Coogan runs away from a cruel uncle and joins a circus—first as helper at the lemonade stand and finally as the star clown. The Rothaker laboratory is also now printing the negatives of "The Brass Bottle" and "Penrod and Sam."

It took two days to load the steam schooner, "D. C. Lindauer," for its cruise in the Pacific in the filming of "Loving Lies," Thompson Buchanan's screen version of Peter B. Kyne's story, "The Harbor Bar." In addition to seventy-five people in the company taken on this "location" there were several truckloads of props, seven cameramen, a giant generator which required a huge crane to lift it aboard, a wind-machine and a lightning machine, all devices by which the magic shadowland is effected. Several lifesavers from popular California seaside resorts were also taken along in case of emergency.

"Barbara Fritchie," the story of Civil War days which has been a favorite stage classic with two generations, to be screened by Thomas H. Ince. Film rights to the play which was written by Clyde Fitch have been purchased through the playwright's widow and the estate of Charles Frohman who produced the stage drama. Production work will begin as soon as a cast can be selected.

A stage riot scene became a real panic during the screening of "Her Reputation." Thomas H. Ince's new drama dealing with the power of the press, when a trained monkey which was being used in the picture became frightened by the crowd and bit several of the actors.

Jack Pickford will return to New York City with his wife, Marilynn Miller, shortly after he finishes his next picture on the coast at the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios, according to present plans. Miss Miller must be in the East some time in September to begin rehearsing for her new Ziegfeld show, which is to open after the Christmas holidays.

Johnny Hines has completed the filming of the George M. Cohan play, "Little Johnny Jones," at the Warner Brothers studios under the direction of Arthur Rosson. The story centers around the English Derby at Epsom Downs, with Hines as the Yankee jockey scheduled to ride Yankee Doodle. Molly Malone is the girl in the case, and George Webb plays the part of the villain.

"Babbitt," Sinclair Lewis' latest novel, has been included by the Warner Brothers in the production schedule of eighteen pictures for the coming season. The Warner organization have also filmed Mr. Lewis' "Main Street," co-starring Florence Vidor and Monte Blue.

The leading roles in the Warner Brothers picturization of David Belasco's stage success, "The Gold Diggers," will be portrayed by Hope Hampton, as Jerry, Louise Fazenda, as Mabel, Windham Standing as Steven, Gertrude Short in the role of Topsy, and Alex Francis as James Blake.

Six five-ton sphinxes, part of the huge set built by Cecil B. DeMille for the Biblical prologue exteriors of his new Paramount picture, "The Ten Commandments," are to be placed at the city limits of Santa Maria, Cal., for ornamental purposes. The City Council of Santa Maria asked for them and Mr. DeMille immediately made the gift.

Love against the throne is the theme of "Yolanda," Marion Davies' new picture. It is by Charles Major who also wrote "When Knighthood was in Flower" in which Miss Davies starred as Princess Mary Tudor.

The first of the Preferred fifteen to be released next year will be "Mother-in-Law." It is an original screen story by Frank Dazey and Agnes Christine Johnston. The cast includes Gaston Glass, Ruth Clifford, Josef Swickard and Edith Yorke.

Kenneth Harlan and Anna May Wong, in "The Toll of the Sea"—Delmonte.

Jack Pickford and Madge Bellamy, in "Garrison's Finish"—Grand Central.

Gladys Walton, in "Sawdust"—Rivoli.

"Law of the Lawless," "Garrison's Finish," "Sawdust," "Divorce"

Missouri Has Special Fourth of July Week Program and Music and Special Attractions Are on Other Local Bills.

The Missouri Theater has planned an unusually strong program for Fourth of July week. Paramount's new special, "The Law of the Lawless," with Dorothy Dalton, Theodore Kosloff and Charles de Roche, is the feature picture, while on the stage will be seen the Ben Ali Haggin tableau, "Simonetta," presented by New Wayburn exactly as given in the Ziegfeld Follies. The original Ziegfeld girls including Muriel Stryker, the noted interpretive dancer, and Edna French, called the modern Venus, are in this number.

"The Law of the Lawless" discloses Dorothy Dalton as a Tartar maid, enabling her to wear the picturesque costumes of the Roumanian hills. Theodore Kosloff is also cast in a Tartar role. Charles de Roche, the noted French star, makes his debut on the American screen, and is cast as a gypsy chieftain.

The story deals with a Tartar girl who is sold at auction in payment of her father's debts and bought by a gypsy chieftain. He compels her to marry him and his manly qualities soon prompt her to love him. When her husband is captured by her countrymen she goes to his rescue. Sam Ash, tenor, is held over for another week. Mr. Ash, at the Missouri last week, proved to be the season's vocal sensation and his fine tenor voice was claimed by many to be of equal quality to McCormack's. The Missouri orchestra will be featured in appropriate holiday selections and Stuart Barrie will be heard in novelty classics at the console of the great organ.

W. B. M. Ferguson's novel, "Garrison's Finish," is shown in its film form at the Grand Central this week. Madge Bellamy, star of "The Hottentot"; Ethel Grey Terry, Charles Ogle, Clarence Burton and Jack Pickford have the principal roles.

An added screen attraction is the appearance of Lloyd (Ham) Hamilton in his latest hit, "F. O. B." Gene Rodemich will again swing the baton. Other attractions will include singing numbers by Bartram & Saxton and an organ solo by Arthur L. Utt.

"Garrison's Finish" has two dominating themes, the "framing" of Billy Garison and his suspension by the racing board because of his alleged poor handling of his mount, and the mother love theme said to be as thrilling as the spectacular racing.

"The Little Church Around the Corner," with a cast that includes Kenneth Harlan, Claire Windsor, Cyril Chadwick, Hobart Bosworth, Pauline Stark, Walter Long and George Cooper, is the offering this week at the Lyric Skydome, Capitol and West End Lyric theaters. Lige Conley in "Three Strikes" is the comedy at all three theaters.

"The Little Church Around the Corner" is the story of a young man who from childhood is endowed with a spirit of faith and an eagerness to teach faith. As a boy he preaches in his own little church, located in a barn. Later, when the boy grows up, he becomes a minister and continues his teachings. He falls in love with the daughter of a coal mine owner, who is engaged in a union fight.

There is a cave-in at the mine and many are entombed in the shaft. These thrilling scenes comprise the most exciting parts of the picture. The minister leads the rescue gang and all lives are saved, but a bitterness comes over the workers when the tension is relieved and they attack the owner. The minister steps before them and calls for reasoning rather than hasty action.

Thomas H. Ince's mystery comedy, "A Man of Action," with Douglas MacLean, Marguerite de la Motte and Raymond Hatton, will be shown at the West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome the last half of the week, beginning Wednesday.

"The Toll of the Sea," this week's feature attraction at the Delmonte Theater, is a photoplay in natural colors. It is based on an old Chinese legend that for every joy the sea brings to one, it brings twice that much sorrow.

When an American is washed ashore, unconscious, and a Chinese Miss revives him, her joy seemingly knows no limits. She learns the truth of the legend when—after her marriage to her American lover—he goes off to his country and leaves her alone to hope for his return. He does come back, but under circumstances which only increase her sorrow, and make her look to the sea for relief from her agonized disappointment. Anna May Wong, a young Chinese actress, plays the part of Lotus Flower. Kenneth Harlan is the American.

Gladys Walton is to be seen in a circus romance this week at the Rivoli. It is called "Sawdust." Miss Walton appeared earlier in her career in a somewhat similar picture, "Pink Tights," in which she scored her first big success on the screen.

'Sawdust" involves the experience of a little circus girl who is given a home with an aristocratic old Virginia couple, whose own daughter disappeared in her youth and has never been found. By clever make-up in providing an identifying scar Nita is received by the old couple as their own daughter.

Everyone is happy until a lawyer learned that Nita was a circus girl. He accuses her of fraud. However, a reconciliation is eventually effected.

"Divorce," an arraignment of ill-considered marriage and hasty separation, is the feature attraction at King's Theater the first half of the week.

The story deals with the perversion of home ideals with the approach of success and luxury and its accompaniment of cafes and clubs, afternoon teas and gay diversions. Jane Novak leads the cast, assisted by John Bowers, James Corrigan, Edythe Chapman, Margaret Livingston and little Phil DeLacy.

Morris Hillquit Tells of Efforts of Socialist Groups to Avert New European War

Plan Adopted by Conference at Hamburg for Revision of Versailles Treaty—More Potentialities of Conflict Than in 1914.

By M. B. WERNER,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.

MORRIS HILLQUIT is one of a few American publicists who can visit Europe and bring back significant impressions of the state of its political and economic mind. Hillquit returned recently from the International Socialist Congress held at Hamburg, and when the reporters met him at quarantine, he told them that "the whole of Europe is now engaged in a race between war and reconstruction along Socialist lines."

I asked him to say in detail what he meant by that statement. Did he mean that there was immediate danger of a European war?

"There is immediate danger of war in Europe, possibly within one or two years," he replied. "Unless the acute political frictions and economic crises in most countries of Europe are radically adjusted, a European war in the near future is probable. At the present moment there are more potentialities of war in the European nations than there were in 1914, and there are many more places where it could break out immediately.

Treaties Cause Friction.

"One of the most important causes of the present international friction was created by the treaties of Versailles, St. Germain and Trianon. The new countries made by the treaties were made badly. Almost as many antagonistic national groups are included in the present populations of Czecho-Slovakia as existed in the old government of Austria-Hungary, and the same is largely true of Poland and the other newly created nations.

"Even neutral countries, like Holland, are in a state of economic depression and unrest, produced by the condition of their neighbors.

"Another cause of the present chaos in Europe is, of course, the unsettled question of reparations. The present snarl in the Ruhr is sufficient indications of the possibilities of war over that question.

"These are the immediate problems in need of solution, but back of them are other causes which I believe may lead to war. At present there is no recognized international power in Europe. The 'concert of Europe' and all systems of international checks and balances were thoroughly upset by the war and events since the war, and no country or group of countries possesses sufficient authority or cohesion at the present time to prevent a conflict. Prior to the war, the Governments of the great powers—England, Germany and Russia—could jointly determine the course of European politics. Now Russia and Germany have ceased to be factors. England can do nothing to enforce moderation on her neighbor and ally, France. France does not pay much attention to what England thinks. There is very little entente in the Little Entente.

"There is not only no country with force enough to prevent a war, but there is no recognized authority to which a nation can appeal its difficulties. That leaves each country to carry out its own aims and aspirations without any deterrant except the military condition of its immediate neighbor. That is a danegrous situation, pregnant with the possibilities of war. Italy can do and does as she pleases; France acts without fear of consequences to herself from the authoritative public of her rivals.

People Have Lost Faith.

"Besides, the people have largely lost faith in government, because most post-war governments have been unstable, vacillating and weak. These factors leave Europe, both nationally and internationally, in a condition of unsteady equilibrium. The national rivalries, industrial derangements and economic misery created by the war and the peace treaties are the smouldering fuses which threaten sooner or later to set off the dynamite which is everywhere in Europe."

"How can this war be prevented?" was asked.

"Two theoretical possibilities present themselves," was Hillquit's answer. "Whether either of them will be successful is something no man can predict.

"War may be averted if the treaty of Versailles is radically revised as soon as possible, in a manner to relieve the present national animosities, and if the reparations demands are fixed and made reasonable. This may be accomplished by the present ruling classes if they have the co-operation of the United States, or by the power of organized labor in Europe. I think that the United States still has sufficient moral and, above all, material power to be able to take the lead in the reconstruction of Europe; and if the United States were willing to put as much effort into the reconstruction of Europe as we had into the war, another and a more barbarous war may be avoided.

"If we were willing to spend as much money in the reconstruction of Europe as we did in the war of destruction, Europe could be rebuilt. Putting aside the question of morals and ideals, it is to the business interest of this country to help reconstruct Europe. The return on the investment would be substantial in the long run, and the alternative is another long period of war, which would have a disastrous effect on the United States also."

"Is the United States affected directly or indirectly by the present European situation?"

Dependence On Europe.

"At present, of course," Hillquist answered, "the United States is affected only indirectly, but unless war is prevented, the United States will be affected, economically, just as we felt the pinch of the late war in increased prices. Then, besides the economic phase, there is another effect on the United States to be considered. This country is largely dependent for its cultural and intellectual influences on Europe. We give something and we receive, but on the whole, we receive much more than we give intellectually. If Europe is devastated by another war in the immediate future, intellectual life and progress will be as completely destroyed as it was during and after the Thirty Years War.

"At present the situation is bad enough. People I met from the so-called intellectual and professional classes of Europe complained that they could not work because of the unrest prevalent everywhere and because of their lack of economic means. They cannot buy books or obtain the necessary material or facilities for research and study. And if intellectual Europe disappears, America will suffer; though we are the one nation in the world economically almost self-sufficient at present, we are not intellectually self-sufficient.

"The other possibility of avoiding war is through the power of organized labor. And that is what I meant when I said that there is a race on between war and the forces of social reconstruction. Organised labor is powerful enough now in most of the leading countries of Europe to prevent war, but there are some weak spots, and it is a question of whether organised labor will succeed in building up political and industrial power on an international scale, before the threatened collapse. Those weak spots are France and Italy especially. In France organised labor is weaker than in Germany, Austria, or England, because of divisions in its own rank. In Italy, Fascism has temporarily vanquished organized labor, because in Italy, too, organized labor was divided.

"But in Germany there are 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 of organized workers in the trade unions and the Social Democratic party. In Austria, Socialism and organized labor are even more powerful, and in both countries these forces are anxious to avoid war. But the forces that are operating for war are also strong, and if present conditions continue they may gain the ascendancy any time. It is a race between the two."

Plan for Treaty Revision.

"Did the International Socialist Congress at Hamburg take any action to prevent war in Europe?"

"It did," Hillquit answered. "The Congress adopted a plan for revision of the mistakes of the Treaty of Versailles and for revision of the reparation demands, which had the support of Socialists, and organized workers of all the countries affected, including Germany and France."

"What makes you think that organized labor would not divide along national lines as it did in 1914?"

"It is hardly correct to say that organized labor divided on national lines in 1914,' said Hilquit. "German labor would probably have been ready to prevent the war by any means, if it could rely on organized labor in the neighboring countries of Europe to take similar action. But the workers of Russia were unorganized and powerless in the hands of a military autocracy; the Socialist and Labor movements of other countries were also too weak to prevent the war. Today, however, the situation is different. Labor and Socialism are more powerful than ever before in most countries of Europe, particularly in Germany, England and Russia. The war has been a lesson, and this powerful mass of organized labor has read that lesson correctly. It is anxious to avoid any war. Also the breakdown of government has created an international outlook to take the place of the narrow nationalism of the past."

It has been stated that Hillquit had plans for the organization of an independent labor party in the United States along the lines of the British Labor Party. I asked him about his plans.

"It is unfair to say that I have such plans," he replied, "But plans for such an organization have been actively discussed in Socialist and Labor circles for some time."

"How would an independent labor party affect the present Socialist party?"

"Just as the organization of the British Labor party has affected the Socialist party in Great Britain," he answered. "The Labor party in England is a 'holding company' for all the various groups of organized labor, including the Socialist party, and that is being planned in this country. Such an organization would make labor more powerful in national politics and in international affairs and would enable it to take its part with the organized labor of Europe to prevent war.

"The next war, if it comes, will be barbaric. They have not the powerful and deadly munitions they had in the last war, or the money to pay for them. It will be a war of claws."

No bandit cares about YOU personally.
What he wants is your money—especially if it is American money.
Protect both yourself and your money.
Wherever or whenever you travel—in the United States, Canada, or anywhere abroad, always carry

American Express Travelers Cheques

The real, and the individual worth of American Express Travelers Cheques to travelers anywhere abroad is not so much because they are always dependable and spendable everywhere—which they are—nor because they insure the safety and the American value of your traveling funds—which they do.

It is because carriers of these Cheques command the world-wide Super-Service of the American Express chain of international offices—a service so helpful, so varied, so complete, so personally American, that 90% of American travelers in foreign lands always use it.

American Express offices are the American's headquarters abroad. Thru them his mail and cables find him quickly wherever he is. They are his banking centres; his travel bureaus of information, where railway, steamship and hotel reservations are secured, passport intricacies settled, possible legal difficulties straightened out, etc. In fact, the seat of a seeming magician, so marvelously has their power and will to serve been developed. Socially these offices are the American's Club the world over—making it possible for him to know who is who wherever he is.

As an additional safeguard, and for greater convenience, use the $250 and $500 American Express Travelers Cheque Exchange Orders. These Orders are convertible into regular Travelers Cheques of smaller denominations without extra cost at American Express offices.

"Treating" Symptoms for Diseases Causes Much Bad Health

Many people "take something" for a symptom of a disease instead of getting at the disease itself. It's like taking out the spark plugs of a car because you have lost the battery or magneto.

For instance, a "backache" has hardly ever any connection with kidney trouble. And anemia is not a disease at all, but is a symptom—a sign or warning—that there is disease some place else.

Trying to treat "symptoms" gives the disease a chance to get a better hold.

The safe way is to take yourself and your symptoms to a doctor. If you need medicine to help nature get started again, he can tell just what to give you.

Then a druggist's part—our part—is to see that his orders are followed to the fraction of a grain.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS LEAD CLASS IN FINE ARTS WORK

Several Medals and Honors in St. Louis School Go to Five Overseas Veterans.

At this year's annual banquet of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, five of the sixteen government students received honors out of a school of 500.

Ralph Fraser and William Wilson, both vocational men, won the two highest honors in the commercial art class. Fraser, who served overseas with the ammunition section of the First Army Corps, was awarded the bronze medal, the highest honor of the class, while Wilson was awarded second place. Before the war Wilson was a coal miner, but since he was burnt with mustard gas at Cantigny, France, while serving with the First Trench Mortar Battery, he could not return to his old occupation, so he took advantage of government training under the Veterans' bureau.

Jerry Mihm was in the 89th Division and as a result of his war service, he is totally deaf. Before the war Jerry was a sign painter, so when the Government offered him training he took up commercial art. He won the second prize of $50 in gold in a poster contest participated in by the entire school.

James Busby, a Government student in the magazine illustration class received the bronze medal for highest honors out of the class of 50 students, while Melvin Smith, another vocational man who is 50 per cent disabled on account of overseason service, was awarded $20 in gold as third prize in the poster and trade mark contest.

How Missouri Has Been Extolled in 63 Songs

A ST. LOUIS music teacher, Ernst C. Krohn, of 511 North Taylor avenue, has been delving into the archives and emerges with the information that no less than 63 songs have been published on the subject of Missouri, to say nothing of more than 1000 rejected manuscripts which were submitted in a contest for a State song which Gov. Hadley instituted in 1911. The results of the investigation are detailed in the current issue of the Missouri Historical Review, which is published at Columbia by the Historical Society of Missouri. The title of the article is "A Century of Missouri Music."

"Missouri's charms," writes Mr. Krohn, "have been extolled in verse and song these many years past." "Belle Missouri, My Missouri," by Henry Werner (Charles Balmer) was probably the earliest of the series of State songs. Harry McCarthy's celebrated song, "Missouri," was a Southern war song, a stirring appeal to Missouri to join the Confederacy.

The list of composers of songs bearing the title of "Missouri" includes Harold and Helen Ballou, W. Bolt, J. Buckley, M. Dee, P. Fahle, J. J. Goullee, Emile Karst, P. Kendol, the Rev. W. Keuenehof, L. P. Littlejohn, Edward E. Menges, R. C. Mitchel, Noel Poepping, H. Sherin, C. J. Smith, C. F. Stayner, B. J. Tiemann, A. L. Utt, E. Van Note and Mrs. Bessie M. Whiteley.

In Panegyric of Missouri.

OTHER titles of songs are: "A Hymn to Missouri," by Girard Blair; "Missouri, the Promised Land," B. S. Brown; "O Peerless Missouri," Henry Martyn Butler; "That's Missouri," M. E. A. Chase; "Imperial Missouri," S. Collins; "Missouri, the Crown of the Gem," C. H. Gabriel; "Great Missouri," C. C. Marshall; "Grand Missouri," Mrs. C. M. Parker; "Missouri, the Gem of the Union," L. R. Babman; "Missouri, the Iron Mountain State," G. Scott; "Imperial Missouri," A. M. Smith; and "It's Missouri," J. W. Weimeyer.

Still another group is composed of "The Song of Missouri," J. D. Tussey; "Missouri State Carol," A. B. Korn; "Missouri State Fair Song," I. N. Faris; "Missouri, My Own," J. M. Bronson; "It's Heaven in Old Missouri," C. E. Koch; "Missouri, Dear Missouri," C. Koeder; "My Missouri," Arthur Lieber; "Missouri, Fair Land," W. H. Lowry; "Missouri, We Greet Thee," A. McCandless; "God Bless Thee, Old Missouri Mine," Father J. Menne; "Let Us Sing of Old Missouri," J. Mohr; "Missouri Mine," F. B. Paillou; "All Love and All Praise for Missouri," C. D. Peck; "Old Missouri," H. M. Ruble; and "Just a Glimpse of Old Missouri," J. C. Rumsey.

"Missouri Mule March."

INSPIRED by the Ozark region are "The Old Ozark Hills," by A. Bristow; and "The Old Missouri Hills," by Alfred Robyn. Rocco Venuto has sung the praises of "A Missouri Lad," while J. B. Thomas lyric fancy has been stirred by "The Golden Rod." A cherished Missouri product is celebrated by K. Keller in his "Missouri Hen Song." The Missouri mule must still sing his praises in his own peculiar way, although C. Blake was moved to write a "Missouri Mule March" for piano.

The popular expression "Show Me, I'm From Missouri," has found its vent in song. A "Missouri Show Me Song" was written by M. B. Quinn, while A. D. McCampbell's contribution is entitled "Show Me, I'm From Old Mizzou." H. G. Munroe has sung of "Missouri on the Mississippi Shore," and Mary A. King of the "Missouri Flood," while H. Van Walringa has celebrated the Forty-ninth Grand Assembly in "Legislature Days." An unsuspected Missouri attribute is extolled in P. J. Cooper's son, "The Waltz of Missouri."

"In 1911," continues the writer, "Gov. Hadley announced a contest for a Missouri State Song. More than 1000 manuscripts were submitted, and all of them were rejected. The poetry of Mrs. Lizzie Chambers Hull won the approval of the judges, and she was awarded a prize of $500.

"In 1913 the Missouri chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution instituted a contest for a musical setting of Mrs. Hull's poem. Several hundred compositions were submitted, the setting of Mrs. Julie Stevens Bacon winning the prize. Mrs. Bacon's song has since been published and widely circulated. Using a well known melody of Franz Joseph Haydn for her first phrase, Mrs. Bacon has evolved a tune which should become popular. At that, it seems improbable that any one song will ever become the state song. The charms of Missouri are so manifold that it will ever require a whole series of state songs to do her justice."

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

PAUL CORNOYER'S death recently has caused two bay leaves to be laid upon the frame of the painting of this artist which is owned by the City Art Museum. The picture, "The Plaza After Rain," shows a portion of Fifth avenue and Central Park, the Louis St. Gaudens statue of Sherman, the Plaza Hotel and the lines of tall buildings with an aisle between. It is regarded as a splendid example of the artist's works, most of which depict rainy street scenes. Besides the draughtsmanship necessary in portraying architecture of any kind under any circumstances, Cornoyer possessed a subtlety of feeling which enabled him to portray misty rain or dampened streets without making the scene appear murky and bedraggled. Into some of his rain pictures in which the time of day is that disconsolate hour before dark when street lamps are just beginning to shine weakly, their light being consumed in making halos in the moisture, a dreary note of longing enters. But the picture in our museum, also gray of tone, is not dismal. Action stirs; pedestrians and vehicles hurry on the sidewalk and pavement, and a trolley car is in motion.

Cornoyer is represented at the Dallas Art Association, the Newark, N. J., Art Association, the St. Louis Art Museum, as well as many private collections. A number of his works are owned in this city. Soon after leaving the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, he went with his friend, J. Wilton Cunningham, to Paris, where they studied under Lefebvre, Louis Blanc and Constant. Most of Cornoyer's experimental painting was done in Europe, and upon the return of the two artists to St. Louis they jointly received the commission for the mural decorations beside the stairway in the old Planters' Hotel, disposition of which has not yet been decided. Not long after the completion of these murals, Cornoyer went to New York where he painted for a time, later becoming an instructor in Cooper Union. During the past fifteen years, which were considered the best of his career, he confined his painting, as a rule, to portrayal of rainy street scenes.

"The Plaza After Rain," is in Gallery 32 of the museum, immediately to the right of the entrance from the Sculpture Court.

THE Museum has just purchased the painting by Charles Bittinger, A. N. A., which was included in the 1922 Annual Exhibition of paintings by American artists. Its title is "Bibliotheque du Dauphine, Versailles," and it is a splendidly drawn and painted interior. The Museum owns no similar picture. Bittinger is well known for his work of this kind, having painted the Red Room of the White House and other noted interiors in America, as well as many salons in private mansions in France and England. This picture shows a corner of a French library, the color scheme being a clear blue. Furniture and decorations are in the 18th Century French style, a large mirror at the right and the crystal chandelier to the left giving opportunity for exceptionally skillful workmanship.

The painting is in Gallery 19.

EMIL FUCHS' small bronzes, which are being shown at the Kocian galleries, are a delight to the soul. Those in this exhibit typify but one phase of the work of this artist, for his achievements in painting, larger bronzes, bas-relief, marble sculpture, medal designing and engraving are internationally famous.

The bronzes shown here seem to have been chosen with a view to assembling those which bespeak the artist's poetic conception of youthful feminine beauty and adolescent loveliness. In the figure called "Memories," the drooping body of the young girl and her closed eyes, wet with tears, tell the story of a heart-break. "The Arabesque" depicts the joyfulness of youth. A slender girl is poised gracefully in an attitude of the dance, her arms extended forward and upward, her leg pointing backward, showing the suppleness of the hips. She is smiling, her head is thrown back and her eyes sparkle with health and gladness. "The Butterfly" is a piquant bit of sweetness. A very young girl turns to look over her shoulder at the tiny winged creature which has alighted for a moment upon her heel. The attitude of the little figure is as elusive as the course of the butterfly itself. In "The Lesson" is depicted the calm, reposed patience of motherhood. Seated upon a bench and clothed in a softly flowing garment, a mother bends her head over a little child who stands between her knees. The mother holds an opened book which both are reading intently. In all of these bronzes is evidenced the lithe, healthful, inspirational beauty that constitutes a portion of the sweetness in life.

SEVERAL water colors by Vincent, now at Kocian's, show the possibility of variations of the "Provincetown-Gloucester" style of wharf-scene painting. The medium of water color, in the first place, permits a looser manner. Its effect is not so bulky as that produced by oil paint, and through its lighter applications the scintillation of moving water can be cleverly suggested. The less ponderous the handling of changing objects and conditions, the better. Also, Vincent shows that giving the effect of brilliance and startling colorings, without deafening the spectator with the actuality, is less nerve-racking and more artistically satisfying. His brush-work is broad and free, in the impressionistic style of the Gloucester and Provincetown painters, which adds to the effectiveness of the transparent medium he employs.

THE exhibition of Nancy Barnhart's work scheduled at the Art Department of the Public Library for the coming several weeks has been postponed until fall. The consequent vacancy in the exhibition calendar at the library has been filled by a display of some of Miss Esther Blomgren's pictures.

Madonna is on her little altar at the bedside, and the mother turns to the holy figure in prayer. But prayer is not enough. Try, whispers a woman near by, a vow: vow to sacrifice the most precious thing in your life. So she vows to renounce her thoughts, innocent enough, of the young man she had loved before her marriage. The offer is accepted at the shrine. There is a burst of church-bells, the sun shines into the room, and the child holds out his arms to his mother.

Twenty odd years have passed and the son has forsaken his mother. Old and in rags, she is wending her weary way to a sanctuary on the hill-top when she meets him. He will have none of her. Why? Because, he explains, he believes her to have been unfaithful to his father. The excuse seems rather "thin", or would seem in real life, but remember that this is a mystery play, wherein the simple emotions are not to be challenged for a logical justification. In vain the mother protests her innocence. The boy casts her off.

"My God, my God," she cries, "why hast Thou forsaken me?" Or no—she does not cry, she whispers these hallowed words, pausing between each for breath * * * "Dio mio" * * * "Dio mio" * * * standing erect with arms helplessly dropped, an unforgettable figure. The whole theater was hushed to something like an awed silence. It was a moment—one of those that testify to the greatness of the actress and stamp her as incomparable—that shook the heart.

It only remains for the mother to die. That is the last sacrifice she can make to the Madonna. The Duse's death-scenes are famous. This is one of the simplest of them. She is kneeling at the altar and falls quietly forward on her face.

Drinkwater's "Cromwell."

THE reviewers were puzzled to know just what to write about John Drinkwater's "Oliver Cromwell," which has recently been put on at His Majesty's Theater. The poet used much the same technique as in "Abraham Lincoln," but for some reason it failed to produce the same results. Lincoln going on his knees, on receiving the presidential nomination, was spiritually uplifting; Cromwell's references to the Diety became almost smug. The young soldier, about to be shot, in "Abraham Lincoln," stirred our pulses; the youth in "Oliver Cromwell," mutilated by order of the Star Chamber, seemed unreal in spite of his apparently mutilated thumbs. When Lincoln read Shakspeare and Artemus Ward the effects were admirable; when Cromwell's mother read Milton and Herrick it merely added another drag to the slowly moving piece.

Th first scene is the best, showing a lovely countryside and giving us preliminary rumblings of trouble. The next scene, at Westminster, where Cromwell strips words of their ambiguity and denounces the King, is also excellent. After that the play subsides—with the exception of a big moment when Cromwell and King Charles are confronted.

Henry Ainley was a believable and striking Cromwell. His voice, whether twanging a psalm or explaining Stuart's infamy to that unhappy monarch, was a thing of joy. Irene Rooke gave a fine study of old Mrs. Cromwell, while Clare Harris and Mary O'Farrell as Cromwell's wife and daughter showed us the gentle strength women can give to men of action. Mr. Drinkwater appeared after the final curtain on the first night, and proved that he is still the best-groomed poet in existence.

The Guitrys in London.

THE Guitry season is on. Lucien, Sacha and Sacha's wife, Yvonne Printemps, are here, and have appeared at the New Oxford in Sacha's latest play, "Le Veilleur de Nuit." The chief character is a portly, gray-haired, decorated professor, who looks rather like the illustrious M. Renan. Towards the end of his life, Renan showed himself in his works somewhat obsessed with the fair sex. It seems to have been a purely literary obsession.

That is what distinguishes him from the aged professor in this play, whose obsession is not literary. She is a quite fascinating little thing—and fascinates a younger man than the professor. He is a decorative artist, as you may know by his "complet" of corduroys, and has been ornamenting a panel in the lady's drawing room. Johnson said that Garrick had penetrated to the drawing rooms and even to the bed-chambers of "the great." Our painter does no less.

What is the professor going to do about it? Turn the fickle jade out of doors and throw her painter out of the window? By no means; he has not taught and lived a life of philosophy for nothing. He arranges to keep the young man precisely where he is—to serve as "night watchman"—that is to say, to keep away the crowd of undesirable acquaintances to whom the girl, it is evident, would soon fall a victim. Better to share your love with one, and a nice fellow, too, whom it is easy to get on with, than with a score, probably a very raffish score.

Of course, the young fellow kicks at this. Youth is not so philosophical as aged professors. If the old man is too wise to be jealous, the young man is not. But the advantage rests with age and sweet reasonableness. The professor ends by talking the young man over, indeed by confounding him by all the forms of logic. The face of the young woman, as she hears her fate decided by syllogisms which she doesn't even [illegible] understand, may be imagined.

[illegible] the moral lesson of the play [illegible] better not to enter. The Guitrys do not pretend to be exponents of the Higher Ethics. What they have to offer is perfect achievement in the Higher Histrionics. Sacha is, as usual, "all over the place," Lucien monumental, Yvonne Printemps the electric current between the two.

Three Years of "The Beggar's Opera."

ON the night of June 5, "The Beggar's Opera," at the little Lyric Theater, in Hammersmith, completed its third year, with a record of 1240 performances. The end is not yet in sight. Perhaps it will end by beating the five-year record with which "Chu Chin Chow" shocked the theatrical high-brows. The success of its sequel, "Polly," at the Savoy, also continues.

Winthrop Ames, the American producer, is here, discussing details for the forthcoming London presentation of "The Green Goddess," by William Archer. George Arliss will have the principal role, which he played in America. W. Somerset Maughan has written a new comedy, "The Camel's Back." It tells of a battle between a butterfly wife and her husband, a lawyer with parliamentary ambitions.

JAPANESE TO IMPROVE SILK

Visit of American Commission Has Caused Changes.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, June 1.—The visit of the American silk commission to Japan has brought results. The object of the commission was to try to induce the Japanese to improve their raw silk and methods of marketing it.

To bring this about, a new silk bureau has been organized by the Department of Agriculture, while the silk reelers themselves have decided to employ every possible means to improve the quality of Japanese silk. Another suggestion of the Americans, the amalgamation of smaller mills, is being carried out. The importance of the silk industry is shown by the great increase in production. While in 1912 the value of the crop was 190,000,000 yen, it reached 950,000,000 yen ($475,000,000) in 1922.

Even for Your Summer Cottage

you can afford these finer rugs★

SUCH beauty at the price seems almost unbelievable. Yet, you can equip your summer cottage throughout with these charming rugs at an amazingly small expense.

There are gay, colorful designs that seem just made for the holiday spirit of the summer home; or, if you prefer, quiet neutral patterns, or plain bordered rugs.

Even the largest sizes cost only about half what you expect to pay. And every rug is finished on both sides, giving two wearing surfaces and double wear.

A remarkable new weaving method makes possible such low prices, and gives Kimlark Rugs, in addition, a number of features that are combined in no other type of floor covering.

They are waterproof and washable. Moths do not attack them; they can be rolled up and put away for months without harm. They are smooth, soft and thick underfoot. They lie flat without curling; can be bent or folded without breaking and they wear like iron.

Because of their unusual qualities and exceptional beauty, Kimlark Rugs have become the vogue among women of taste, not alone for summer use, but for year-'round service on every floor in the home.

Be sure to see Kimlark Rugs at your dealer's. You will agree that they offer more beauty and service than any rug of similar type—are, in fact, the finest low-priced floor coverings you have ever known.

Chat About Plays and Players on Broadway

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—

POSTPONED from last Thursday night, Earl Carroll's "Vanities of 1923" is now announced to open Monday evening at the Earl Carroll Theater. The book and lyrics are by Earl Carroll, the music is by Earl Carroll, and the direction is in charge of Earl Carroll. Others whose names are permitted to seep into the publicity are Peggy Hopkins Joyce, Joe Cook and Jimmy Duffy, who head the cast selected by Earl Carroll.

Among the plays closing tonight were "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," "Uptown West," "Give and Take" and "Dewdrop Inn." It is promised that the last named will resume on July 23. "Icebound," "Go-Go" and even "Polly Preferred" are said to be tottering. The present fortnight is considered the nadir of the theatrical business, but the managers are looking for relief after July 4. refusal of tickets to nearly every attraction on Broadway, and press agents are pressing passes upon passing acquaintances. Most of the people about the theaters expect the notice to go up each day now.

At the open-air theater at Peterborough, N. H., two performances of "The Rivals" will be given this week, with an all-star cast composed of John Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, Vivian Tobin, Mary Young, Noah Tearle and John L. Shine. On her return, Miss Tobin will begin rehearsals in "We've Got to Have Money," by Edward Laskar, a comedy of American business and college life. In the cast will be Robert Ames, Milton Noble Jr. and Flora Finch.

Remizoff to Remain Here.

THE artistic director of eth "Chauve-Souris," Nicholas Remizoff, has decided to remain permanently in America, and has taken out naturalization papers. . . . Ina Claire will not have a new play next season, but will continue on the road in "The Awful Truth." McKay Morris is shortly to leave Mary Robrets Rinehart's play, "The Breaking Point," to become leading man in Stuart Walker's Indianapolis Stock Company.

The Jitney Players, a group of young people who intend to tour New England this summer in a pair of Ford trucks, will open July 4 at Madison, Conn. By touching the proper buttons, the trucks will turn into a well equipped stage. In the company are Bushness Cleney, Yale graduate and son of a millionaire silk manufacturer; Alice Keating, Albert Sircum, Hardwick Nevin and five others. The repertory includes "Creatures of Impulse," by W. S. Gilbert; "The Jewell Merchants," by James Branch Cabell; and a masque by James Reynolds. A new record for burlesque is said to have been established by Barney Gerard's "Follies of the Day," with "Bozo" Snyder, which has played 18 weeks altogether in Boston.

Jazzing "Uncle Tom."

A MUSICAL version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," called "Topsy and Eva," will be produced at the Alcazar in San Francisco next Sunday night. . . . Cyril Maude will celebrate his fortieth anniversary as a player this autumn. His first engagement, for which he was paid $15 a week, was in Denver, with Daniel Bandmann, the German tragedian. The repertory included "Hamlet," "Richard III," "The Merchant of Venice" and "East Lynne."

A statistician reports that during last season 198 productions were made in New York, of which 143 were dramatic and 55 musical. There was a total of 48 foreign productions—English, French, Italian, Austrian, German, Spanish, Czecho-Slovak, Hungarian and Russian—about one-fourth of the season's output. Assuming that any play which reached its one hundredth New York performance made money, and that those falling short of this figure were losers, it appears that only 43 out of the 198 productions were commercially successful. "Abie's Irish Rose" leads the list, with more than 470 performances.

In addition to the degree of doctor of literature conferred on John Drew by Dartmouth, the University of Pennsylvania has dubbed him a master of fine arts. . . . Norman Bel Geddes is to do the settings for Max Reinhardt's series of presentations here next winter. . . . De Wolf Hopper begins his summer season of Gilbert & Sullivan operas Monday night at Carlin Park, Baltimore, with "The Mikado." Haru Onuki, Japanese prima donna, will sing the role of Yum-Yum.

Nude Tableau in "Follies."

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD has more daring than his competitors in the display of the human body. The Shuberts placed skimpy brassieres on the girls in their revue tableaux, and George White contrived a similar effect with garlands of leaves. Ziegfeld, last Monday night, presented a tableau by Ben Ali Haggin in which four of the most famous beauties were nude save for a strip of tulle. There was never a lovelier stage picture in New York, nor one so wholly free from suggestiveness.

Jane Cowl leaves next week for the Pacific Coast, to tour three months in "Romeo and Juliet." She said recently that before the play is dismantled for good she will play it in every city in the United States. * * * When "Shuffle Along" closed its three-year run, a week ago in Atlantic City, the final performance marked a severance of business relations between the two teams of Miller and Lyles and Sissle and Blake. The former pair wrote the book, and the latter the music of the production. The division of royalties is said to have been the rock on which they split.

R 2 tablets Nuxated Iron after meals

You Can Now Try This Newer Form Of Iron At My Expense

I First Compounded This Remarkable Remedy For My Own Neighbors And Their Praise Of It Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over Four Million People Use It Annually And It Is Regularly Prescribed By Able Physicians—Read My Unusual Offer Below.

YEARS ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptons of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

Cut out trial coupon and go to any druggist and get your first trial package of Nuxated Iron; then see how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking newer form of iron.

NOTE: The above company is known to be thoroughly reliable. Over 4,000,000 packages of Nuxated Iron are sold annually, and it has been used and highly recommended by former U. S. Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U.S. Court and many physicians.

Trial Coupon

Fill in this coupon with your name and address and take it to any druggist in your city. Deposit with him the price of one regular full-size bottle of Nuxated Iron. This is not a payment, but a deposit only. If you are not more than delighted with the results obtained by two week's use of Nuxated Iron, simply return the outside wrapper to your own druggist, who will promptly refund your money. We will repay the druggist the full amount he refunds upon receipt of the coupon and wrapper.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

COUPLED CIRCUIT TYPE TUNERS—THEIR MERITS

Comparison of Single and Double Circuit Sets and the Good Points of Each.

E. E. Bucher of the Radio Corporation of America, in a discussion of the relative merits of single and double circuit receiving tuners, says, in part, as follows:

The two-circuit tuner was distinctly one of Marconi's early inventions and the patents therefor have been sustained in every suit brought throughout the world. It is still used in marine and other commercial services, with many refinements and additions, and it is important to point out that it was not unknown to the large manufacturers at the inception of broadcasting; but the fact remains that the simple two-circuit tuner, as well as in its complicated forms, was actually developed through the facilities and resources made available by the large manufacturers.

The decision of radio experts to put out the single-circuit tuner for general public use was based on a prophecy that the greater number of users of radio sets for home entertainment eventually would be those unskilled in the art; and that the set which would enable reception with a minimum number of adjustments would in the long run prove the most desirable. The proportion of single-circuit to double-circuit tuners now in use substantiates that their viewpoint was largely correct.

I am of the opinion that the unskilled user of a double-circuit tuner is more apt, due to his lack of knowledge of the controls and circuits involved, to put such a set into an oscillating condition and thereby interfere with his neighbor, than with the less complicated single-circuit receiver.

It is not as difficult to operate a single-circuit tuner as a double-circuit set. A side-by-side test will bear out this statement. A single-circuit receiver has two fundamental controls, namely, wave-length tuning and regeneration. The filament rheostat and the vernier (on the wave-length control) can be considered as incidental adjustments.

A two-circuit tuner, on the other hand, has a primary tuning element, a secondary tuning element, a coupling control and a regeneration control all four of which are fundamental. As it is possible to calibrate accurately only the secondary circuit of a double-circuit tuner, it is necessary for the receiving operator to keep the two main circuits, namely, the primary and secondary, in exact resonance, and further to adjust the coupling, and bear in mind that with each change of coupling it is again necessary to retune the primary and secondary circuits.

No one queries the point that regenerative receivers, in their present forms, when put into an oscillating condition, will actually radiate energy into space and thus interfere with a nearby receiving set, but it has never been quite clear to the writer why a radio fan should put his set into an oscillating condition and let it remain there either steadily or periodically; for it is well known that when a regenerative set breaks into oscillation, it distorts the received speech to the point where it becomes disagreeable, except on zero beat reception; but zero beat reception is not possible unless the carrier wave of the transmitting station is one of extreme constancy.

There is no definite proof that the double or triple circuit tuner (when in an oscillating condition) will radiate less strongly than the single-circuit tuner. To be sure, the double-circuit tuner will radiate less into a neighboring receiving set when its primary and secondary circuits are very loosely coupled; but this is not the manner in which such tuners are generally used. More often the primary and secondary circuits are closely coupled and under the circumstances the neighboring set will suffer just as much interference as from a single-circuit receiver.

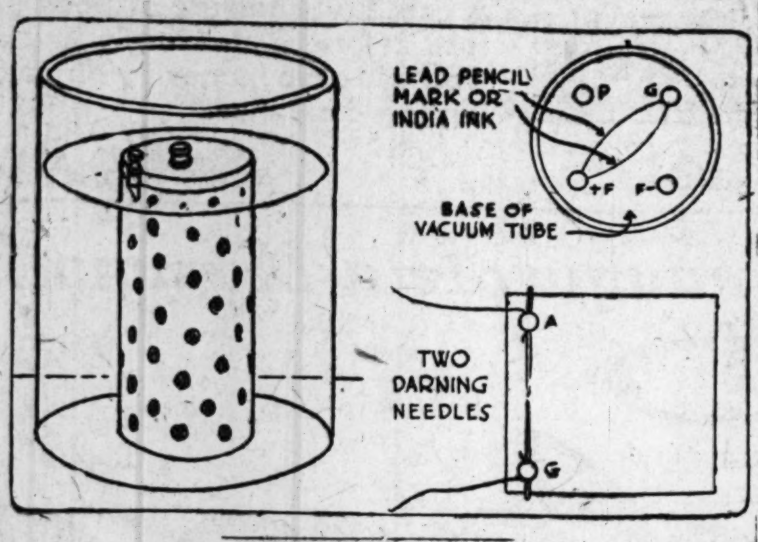
It is not difficult for one skilled in the art to adjust a regenarative receiver without interfering with a neighbor. It appears, therefore, that this interference is occasioned by those who have probably assembled their own sets and have never had instruction to the effect that an oscillating receiver becomes a miniature transmitter and radiates energy into space. It would not be difficult to understand why this sort of interference develops if the receiver, when set into an oscillating condition, would still give good speech and music; but the fact remains that under these circumstances the entertainment is so horribly distorted as to render reception disagreeable. This distortion should, therefore, act as a safeguard to this type of interference.

The main advantage of a two-circuit tuner lies in its ability to separate the overlapping signals of two powerful and nearby broadcasting stations operating on different wave lengths; but the same results can be had on a single-circuit tuner, either by the use of a small indoor antenna or by the use of a rejector circuit connected across the antenna and ground. The two-circuit receiver is substantially of no advantage in eliminating interference from several far-distant stations. Under that circumstance, the single-circuit receiver will give all the selectivity necessary, and in addition increased signal audbility.

A rejector circuit is easily constructed. Take 15 feet of wire and wind it up in the form of a coil four inches in diameter. Connect a small variable condenser in series with the coil and then connect the final two terminals across the antenna and ground posts of either a single or double-circuit tuner. It can then be used as a circuit to absorb the interference of a nearby station, and with this attachment to the single-circuit receivers, two local stations can be separated on antennae of normal length; although the small indoor antenna has many advantages in local reception.

(Editor's Note: The "rejector coil" referred to is commonly known as a "wave-trap."

HINTS FOR RADIO ENTHUSIASTS



Suggestions of Practical Value Applicable to Portable as Well as Stationary Receiving Sets.

Here is a hint for those who take their portable receiving sets on camping trips and do not trouble themselves with providing an extra "A" battery.

When a dry cell has reached the stage where it will no longer operate the tube, it may be temporarily renewed by first removing the cardboard covering from the sides and bottom, and puncturing the zinc casing with nail holes to a depth of about three-quarters of an inch. The cell is then immersed into a strong solution of either salt brine or vinegar for several hours. Although its life after this process is comparatively short, it will sometimes bring back the energy of the cell ton one-half its original strength, and is well worth trying.

This will also work with "B" batteries.

Grid-Leak on Base of Tube.

No two tubes are alike, in that whenever one is substituted for another, the resistance of the grid-leak must be altered. This suggestion which appeared recently in the Radio Digest, will be welcomed by the enthusiast who frequently changes from one vacuum tube to another while conducting experiments.

Trace out from the wiring diagram the grid and filament terminals on the base of the tube, then draw between them, either with a lead pencil or a pen full of india ink, a line, as shown in the illustration. The resistance is determined by the width of the line and every tube then carries its own individual leak, obviating the necessity of readjusting whenever a tube is changed.

To Protect the Set From Heavy Charges of Static.

While it is hardly necessary to warn enthusiasts not to try to listen in during a storm, or even when one is approaching, there are times, even in clear weather, when static is quite severe, and it is to afford added protection for the receiving set, and especially those of the crystal detector type, that the following suggestion is offered. It is recommended in addition to the lightning arrester, which should also be connected across the antenna and ground leads.

The illustration is practically self-explanatory. Two large needles are clamped respectively under the aerial and ground binding posts, their ends being separated by an air gap approximately one-sixty-fourth of an inch, or less. All heavy charges of static which might otherwise "blow" the sensitive spot on a crystal or injure the headphones will thus be discharged to the ground and the delicate parts of the set protected.

It may be added, that this is unnecessary with electric light socket aerial installations.

ARMY RADIO SCHOOL GRADUATES SIXTY-FIVE

Communication specialists Complete Course at Camp Vail, N. J.

General George O. Squier, Chief Signal officer of the Army, presided at the graduation exercises at Camp Alfred Vail in New Jersey, a few days ago, when 65 officers received certificates as signal officers. They all completed a ten-months' course in communication work, including radio in its many phases, and now have been ordered back to their regular duties with cavalry, artillery, infantry and other arms of the service where they will act as communication specialists.

In addition to 60 regular U. S. army officers, there were among the graduates of the Signal School two members of the Marine Corps, one Philippine scout, and two Cuban officers. The school, which is under the supervision of Lieutenant-Colonel J. E. Hemphill, and a corps of 12 instructors, is regarded by experts as one of the finest in the country. Many commercial schools of the type are now following the system of instruction laid down by the experts of the Signal Corps. At Camp Vail the students have the benefit of a fine laboratory and every type of radio, telegraph and telephone equipment from the lowly spark and crystal sets to the latest type of high powered tube transmitters and receivers. From the surplus material left over from the war-time equipment and new apparatus, practically every radio device known to the world is at hand for experimental and test work.

Besides the regular courses under officers of the Signal Corps, the students are given the benefit of lectures by radio and communication engineers from the big corporations and manufacturers. They also are taken on trips of inspection to large telegraph and radio terminals where they gain a knowledge of the commercial end of the work.

A little over a month ago a special class of national guard and reserve officers graduated after a six-weeks' course in military communications. This special course of 350 hours of instruction, included 96 hours of radio, 31 hours of radio procedure and 26 hours of code practice. The aim of the special course is to fit reserve and militia officers in the elements of wire and wireless communication, and school them all in the actual transmission and reception of code messages.

WHO'S WHO IN THE RADIO INSPECTIONDEPARTMENT

List of Supervisors With Their Respective District Headquarters.

Every amateur and broadcast enthusiast should know the officials of the radio section of the Department of Commerce in his district, so that he can get advice, keep in touch with new regulations and not be imposed upon by bogus representatives.

In the nine districts with headquarters as shown, the following men are in charge:

Dist.	Headquarters.	Supervisor of Radio.
1	Boston	C. C. Kolster
2	New York	Arthur Batcheller
3	Baltimore	R. Y. Cadmus
4	Atlanta	R. Y. Cadmus (Until relieved by Van Nostrand.
5	New Orleans	Thedore G. Deiler
6	San Francisco	J. F. Dillon
7	Seattle	O. R. Redfern
8	Detroit	S. W. Edwards
9	Chicago	E. A. Beane

Some recent changes in the personnel of the districts have been made: A. F. Parkhurst, Assistant Radio Inspector at Detroit, has been transferred to the Ninth District at Chicago, Assistant Inspector H. S. Pyle has been appointed to work in the Detroit office, replacing Mr. Parkhurst. Assistant Inspector L. E. Richwien of the Baltimore office has been detailed to the Seventh District at Seattle. It is planned to open the office at Atlanta as the headquarters of the Fourth District soon, and Radio Inspector Wallis Van Nostrand Jr. now at Norfolk will probably be designated as Supervisor of this Division.

American Radio Exports.

During April, radio manufacturers hipped $224,195 worth of apparatus to foreign countries, an increase of $31,000 over March exports, according to compilations of the Department of Commerce. The total volume was over 64 tons, most of which went to Quebec and Ontario.

A report from the Netherlands shows that that country imported $59,280 worth of radio goods against imports valued at $27,300 during the first quarter of 1923. The trade in radio materials and equipment in the Netherlands has increased both in imports and exports over the first quarter of 1922 by several thousands of dollars.

A R R L LIMITS AMATEUR TRANSMITTING HOURS

Quiet Period Between 7:30 and 10 P. M. to Be Enforced by Members.

In an efort to clear the air for broadcasting stations and listeners-in, the American Radio Relay League has gone on record definitely for the observance of quiet hours between 7:30 p. m. and 10 p. m., regardless of the type of transmitter employed. Standard time will govern these quiet hours, which will be observed by all members of the league and by official relay stations of the operating department. This determination to cease spark and continuous wave operating during broadcasting hours is effective in the entire Ninth Division, including Missouri and 12 other midwest States.

The official notice sent to members of the Relay League is as follows:

"Your attention is called to the leading editorial, page 31, April QST. It is your duty to see that this self-governing regulation is enforced not only at your station, but at every station within your reach. It is suggested that non-members of the ARRL be asked to cooperate with us in endeavoring to secure a period of quiet hours each evening. We must do it to show other interests that we are extending the willing hand to help. We must do it for our own good to show the Government that we can regulate ourselves! It is essential that we show our spirit of dividing the evening with the broadcaster and the broadcast listener. We shall try to make his air more pleasant for him as far as we amateurs are concerned by keeping our transmitters silent every night during the quiet hours.

"On Sunday, too, when the church services are being broadcast, our transmitters should be silent. There are many thousands of people listening on Sunday, who attach a great importance to the church services, and we shouldn't interrupt. You know when the church services are being sent; therefore, let this appeal be regarded by you as a request to stand by at such times.

"In times of public peril, train wrecks, storms, and other emergencies, in which amateur radio can be of assistance, the quiet hours may be disregarded under such circumstances."

Violations may be reported to Dr. Charles L. Klenk, assistant division manager of the Relay League, Metropolitan Building, St. Louis.

Two New Broadcasting Stations in Mexico.

Two radio broadcasting stations were recently opened in Mexico City, a report from Consul Thomas D. Bowman, states. Various efforts have been made in recent months to obtain concessions for the establishment of such stations, but it is only recently that the Government granted permission. It is reported that other broadcasting stations are to be erected in Mexico.

Great enthusiasm over local broadcasting is expressed, and it is believed that the market for radio sets in Mexico is favorable to considerable development by American manufacturers.

Radio sets are now sold generally by electrical dealers, although some American concerns have sent agents to promote sales. One dealer has estimated that approximately 150 sets have already been sold in Mexico City.

Commercial Radio Improvements in Mexico.

The Mexican Government intends to change the apparatus used in its wireless stations from spark to continuous wave, according to information reaching the Department of Commerce. With the present spark sets, it is reported that the Mexican stations can communicate only with two European stations: one at Nauen, Germany, and the other at Lafayette, at Bordeaux, France. Equipment for four modern transmission stations of continuous-wave type have been ordered from Germany at a cost of $200,000. They will be installed at Mexico City, Merida, Vera Cruz and Tampico. The old spark stations will be transferred to the Islas Marias, La Paz, Lower California, Guadalajara, Jalisco and Acapulco, Guerro.

The All-Important Electrons.

To receive with a vacuum tube, the filament must be heated by passing an electric current through it. When a metallic substance is heated in a vacuum, it sends out from its surface millions of extremely minute particles which are called electrons. These electrons are small negative charges of electricity, the smallest known subdivisions of matter, and upon them the whole action of the tube depends. The filament is there for the sole purpose of emitting these electrons.

DEAF MADE TO HEAR BY RADIO TELEPHONE

Experiments Conducted at State School in Jacksonville, Ill.—Adjustable Amplifiers Used.

A deaf man who had not heard a sound in 60 years was recently able to hear music and the human voice by means of a radio telephone as the climax to a series of experiments conducted at the State School for the Deaf at Jacksonville, Ill.

As a result of these experiments, Col. O. C. Smith, managing officer of the school, announced today he was making preparations to conduct a class next year, all pupils of which will be taught not with the old method of sign language and lip reading, but with the radio telephone. The State has appropriated $3000 for research work along this line.

Successful experiments have been conducted on 60 children, and it has been found that all can hear with the radio telephone, Col. Smith announced.

The radio telephone used here, as described by Col. Smith, is similar to the ordinary telephone, but with an amplifying attachment, such as that used in connection with radio, which amplifies sound to the point where the waves penetrate the hitherto silent chambers of the organs of hearing.

A microphone or transmitter is placed in the room where the class is to be taught so it will gather up the teachers' voice and transmit it along wires attached to receivers placed over ears of the students. It has been found that the teacher's voice will carry in this manner to the deaf so they can understand without sign language.

In the experiments at the deaf school here, however, it was discovered that the same amplification of sound was not adaptable to every student. That is, at a certain intensity of sound some of the pupils could hear and others could not. An amplifier was developed which enables each person to adjust, by means of a trigger on his receiving apparatus, the sound waves coming to his ear.

Miss Elizabeth Vincent of Albion, an instructor at the school, has been detailed by Col. Smith to study the anatomy of the ear this summer with a specialist at Evansville, Ind.; and R. J. Blucke of Springfield, a graduate of the radio school of Harvard, will take charge of the radio instruments, as steps in efforts to perfect the method in the hope that deaf people everywhere may be able to hear.

One discovery made in the experiments is that deaf persons may know what words mean when they see them, but cannot associate the object with the word upon first hearing it. A child may know what the word "horse" means perfectly well, but when the word was spoken through the radio telephone, the children were nonplussed until the association was effected by writing the word on the black board.

RADIO LAWS IN SWEDEN

Under Proposed Regulations Government Will Erect and Rent Stations.

The proposed Swedish law for regulating radio telephony recognizes the principle of free competition, with regard to the manufacture of radio apparatus. It will permit amateurs to build their own sets, requiring only that these shall be constructed in accordance with certain regulations, advices to the Department of Commerce state. The Telegraph Department does not contemplate limiting within narrow margins, the wave lengths on which amateurs may receive.

Under the proposed law, the Government is to erect the broadcasting stations and rent them to the Radio Telephony Company, which in turn will receive a rental from receiving stations.

No mention is made in the law regarding sending apparatus. The Telegraph Department will control receiving sets and supply them with a certain control mark, whereas the Radio Telephone Company will give permission to use such against payment of a license fee, 10 per cent of which reverts to the State for the control privilege.

Condensers.

In order to make perfect reception possible, every receiving set requires a certain amount of capacity represented by condensers. These condensers are frequently poorly designed and built in such a way that the pressure of the fingers when handling them changes the capacity by pressing the leaves of tinfold closer together. Thus a condenser sold in the belief that it has a capacity of .0005 mfd. in reality produces this value only under certain conditions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer

Q. Is it possible to use detector tubes in amplifying circuits? B. T.

A. They will function as amplifiers, but much better results may be had with "hard" tubes. Low plate voltages are necessary with "soft" (detector) tubes.

Q. Can a crystal detector set be made regenerative? N. V. W.

A. No.

Q. Does it affect the operation of inductances if shellac is applied to the outer surface? C. A.

A. Yes, to some extent. If an excessive amount is used, the distributed capacity will be increased, with resulting broadness in tuning.

Q. Can aluminum wire be used for an aerial, and what are the disadvantages, if any? S. F.

A. Aluminum wire has been used for antennae, and its lightness might be considered an advantage, but the fact that it is difficult to solder, and also that the surface quickly corrodes, are sufficient reasons for giving it secondary consideration. Stranded copper wire is probably the best.

Q. I have been told that a good way to test headphones is to connect the terminal across a 1½-volt dry cell. Is this not injurious to the receivers? M. R.

A. Decidedly so. The best way to test the phone circuit is to place one of the metallic cord tips on the tongue, and then touch the other to it. If a sharp click is heard, the 'phones are okeh.

Q. A direct current generator two blocks away makes radio reception impossible. Can anything be done to overcome the difficulty? G. W C.

A. With no more details than you have given we can only suggest that you try two or three stakes of radio frequency amplification and use a loop aerial. If your present antenna is parallel with wires leading to the generator, would suggest that you try placing it at right angles to the power wires.

Q. (1) I have heard that WD-11 tubes are unsatisfactory for radio frequency amplification, please advise. (2) Can WD-11 tubes be used in an Erla reflex set? (3) What type of crystal detector is best suited for use in the above circuit? F. L. V.

A. (1) Six-volt tubes will undoubtedly give greater satisfaction in radio frequency circuits, but the WD-11 tubes will function. (2) Yes (3) Any kind of crystal will serve, but a synthetic crystal which is manufactured by one of the large radio corporations seems to have the longest life in this circuit.

Q. Could a UV-199 tube be used in a Flewelling circuit with one stage of audio-frequency amplification? J. L. R.

A. Yes.

Q. I have heard only three stations since the wave lengths were changed May 15th. My antenna is 170 feet long and thirty feet high. Have a crystal receiving set. What is my trouble? M. J. W.

A. Shorten your aerial until its entire length including lead-in, is approximately 135 feet. This should correct your trouble.

Q. What kind of an instrument can be placed in the aerial circuit of a transmitter to show the wave length, and what is their cost? J. D. O.

A. We know of no such instrument. A hot-wire, or thermo-coupled ammeter connected in series with the antenna will indicate the radiation in amperes, but a wavemeter is not directly connected to any part of the transmitting apparatus.

Q. What size honey-comb coils should I use. I have a 75 turn coil and one of 25 turns, and can't hear anything but station K S D? E. McL.

A. Try substituting a 50 turn coil for the one having 75 turns, or connect a 43-plate variable condenser in series with the aerial. Either of these changes should correct your difficulty.

Q. (1) Would a counterpoise of ten wires a few feet above the ground help to reduce static. (2) Will a crystal set work well with a single wire antenna? (3) Would a single circuit set using a wave trap be as free from interference as a three-circuit set without the wave trap? J. B.

A. (1) No. (2) Yes. (3) Not if the three-circuit set is skillfully tuned.

Q. Can "B" batteries be recharged? S. W.

A. The dry cell type cannot, but those which are miniature storage batteries may be recharged.

Q. Where is Silicon obtained? A. C.

A. Silicon is a product of the electric furnace and is manufactured in the Niagara Falls district.

Q. My antenna is suspended about two feet over a chimney from which smoke ascends, will this affect my receiving range? O. S.

A. No.

Q. Can more than one dry cell be used with a WD-11 tube? F. J.

A. Only one cell is necessary. If more are used, be sure that they are connected in parallel and not in series.

Q. How may I tune more sharply with the set, hook-up of which is enclosed herewith? R. M. T.

A. The addition of a grid and plate variometer would help somewhat.

To Test "B" Batteries.

In testing a "B" battery for voltage do not leave the voltmeter on the terminals any longer than is absolutely necessary. This is a dead short circuit, and will use up the battery in a hurry. The same thing holds true of any testing with either voltmeter or ammeter. Always test the storage battery with a hydrometer. When the solution reads below 1150, it is time to recharge the battery, and when the specific gravity reaches 1250 or 1300 it is time to stop the charge.

Causes of Distorted Signals.

Distortion of messages coming from headphones may be due to a bent or broken diaphragm, or a poorly designed or thin receiver cap. If a loud speaker is used, it may be because of too great a "B" battery potential, poorly designed horn, bent or broken diaphragm, or a horn that is made of non-rigid material.

RADIO INTERFERENCE HAS BECOME MINIMIZED

Nine District Supervisors Report on Result of Reallocation of Wave Lengths.

Officials of the Commerce Department report that the schedule of new wave lengths for broadcasting stations has met with a cordial reception throughout the country, and that improvement in reception is noted almost everywhere.

All nine radio supervisors report satisfactory results in the allocation of the Class B and A wave lengths, stating that almost all listeners-in are experiencing better reception than ever before in summer time, even with static interference at its height. Last summer, they point out, some 500 stations were jammed on 400 and 360 meters whereas today the B. stations have some nearly 40 exclusive national wave lengths and the A stations have 31 waves assigned individually in the nine radio districts.

Static is bad this summer, as all enthusiasts know, so the real success or improvement brought about by the wave changes will not be fully appreciated until later in the fall.

Over 300 of the old stations continue in Class C, satisfied apparently to operate on 360 meters. Experts of the department express some surprise at this condition; the hoped for early applications for transfer to Class A and B with independent wave lengths. Although no new stations are being licensed under Class C, the fact that over 300 stations, scattered all over the country, continue to transmit on the 360 meter wave tends to maintain interference which it was expected would be eliminated.

For the Notebook.

A weak but clear signal is much better than a loud distorted one.

Except for the intercepting clouds, the fading of signals is still a mystery.

When using radio frequency amplification, it is best to pay attention to the adjustment of the potentiometer across the "A" battery.

Do not run a lead-in from the front of the house to the rear; the building absorbs energy.

Do not use a hydrometer in a lead cell, and then try it with a nickel iron cell. It will ruin the latter.

The use of the "B" battery in radio equipment is to create and hold a steady flow of current in one direction.

The vacuum tube is made up of three elements—filament, grid and plate—which are the vital parts of a receiving tube.

Radio Reception.

The modern radio receiving set must perform in a satisfactory manner four distinct functions, and the efficiency with which it accomplishes them determines the relative value as compared to any other set on the same basis. First, the signals must be intercepted; second, the receiving system must be tuned to the same wave length as the transmitting station; third, the radio frequency signals, inaudible in themselves, must be detected so that they may be heard; and, fourth, the signal must be amplified until they have sufficient volume to be heard without difficulty.

Radiograms.

France has the most, largest, most efficient and most powerful wireless equipment in Europe.

Missouri was the first farming State to erect radio broadcasting stations for market reports.

It is against a city ordinance of Newark, N. J., to erect an antenna without a permit.

Chicago leads all other cities with a total of 3729 amateur stations, the Detroit district has 3749 and the New York division 3442.

The United States army has a radio transmission apparatus, capable of sending 100 words a minute, and recording the messages on a toothed ink line on a tape.

President Obregon of Mexico, is an enthusiastic radio fan, a set is being installed in Chapultepec Castle. Secretary de la Huerta has ordered a set installed in his home near the lake in Chapultepec Park.

Short $1,500,000 in His Bank and Has Nothing to Show for It

CURIOUS CASE OF OFFICIAL WHOSE CONFESSION TAKING WHOLE BLAME FEW IN WICHITA BELIEVE

Cashier of One of Kansas' Largest Financial Institutions Which Has Failed Had No Bad Habits, No Extravagances, Beyond Owning a Secondhand Automoblie, and Lived Simply—"Where" (Asks Everyone) "Could the Money Have Gone Except to Friends and Associates Who Saw a Chance to Milk the Concern Because He Trusted Them Too Blindly?"—State Guarantee Fund Declared Sufficient to Protect Depositors.

By F. A. BEHYMER,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WICHITA, Kan., June 30.

JACOB DRUMM had a garden and it was his joy. The rains descended and the floods came and his garden was destroyed. Jacob Drumm had a son who was his pride. There came a crash, and his son was ruined.

The garden was partly the dependence of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Drumm in the adversity and illness of old age and the son was their reliance for all except what the garden supplied, and for everything when the garden was destroyed.

So now, with the garden destroyed and the son ruined, the little world of the Drumms is a desolation about them and about the wife of Phil Drumm, confessedly the fault of a bank shortage of more than a million and a half dollars.

They have a consolation which is poor provision for what they have lost, but it strengthens their hearts, even though it is at the cost of their confidence in Phil Drumm's word, for they do not believe his confession of fault, or not at least his assumption of full blame.

No more does Wichita. His own people, who know him best, and the people of his community, who know him none too well, because of a self-effacing inclination, believe that in so far as his acknowledgment of guilt is not vicarious it is the ill-reward of a too-generous treatment of his friends.

It has been the painful duty of Carl J. Peterson, State Bank Commissioner, to charge Drumm with responsibility for the bank's losses and to cause his arrest, but Peterson's examination of the records as far as it has proceeded has convinced him that Drumm is not wholly, even if mainly, responsible for the disaster to one of the oldest and largest of the banking institutions of the State. Other prosecutions and civil suits evidence his determination to fix upon others such share of the guilt as ultimate proof may assign to them.

Wichita Thinks Others Blamable

But this is not at the instance or wish of Phil Drumm. "I am the fault," was his statement when he, as cashier of the American State Bank, was charged with accountability for the million and a half shortage which an examination had disclosed, and he adheres to that statement, emphasizing particularly that J. N. Richardson, president of the bank, is not implicated by participation or knowledge in any of the irregularities.

The people of Wichita do not know enough yet to apportion the blame, but they do not believe Drumm is wholly to blame and it will take more even than a confession in court to convince them. Such a confession will suffice to bring upon Drumm the punishment which he seems determined to incur, but it will take proof to convince his friends and neighbors. Always, lacking such proof, they will ascribe his action to affection for the institution to which he has given 17 years of his life and loyalty to his associates.

In his adult life Drumm has known little except the American State Bank and the fidelities which it represents. He was 21 when he obtained employment there and came under the tutelage and patronage of Richardson. He began in a very modest clerkship, at very modest pay. Through the years, encouraged and aided by Richardson, he advanced step by step until he became assistant cashier. In that capacity, partly because of the president's favor, he exercised greater discretions than are usually delegated to an assistant cashier, and it was while he held that position that, about five years ago, the loaning of large sums to investment enterprises began which led to the present amazing situation.

About a year ago Drumm was made cashier, which increased his facilities for covering up the situation, but it was a situation which could not always be covered up. For three years, it appears, the conditions have been such that Drumm, whatever his part in the transactions, could not see his way out, and for three years, as he says now, he has been in hell, knowing that each day brought nearer exposure, disgrace and punishment.

The argument that Drumm's is not all the guilt gathers strength from the clear fact that he has not wasted the bank's money in wanton living or shared appreciably in profits which may have accrued from the easy access of his friends and the friends of President Richardson to the bank's funds.

Never was a bank cashier charged with a shortage of a million and a half with less to show for it.

A mother's estimate of a son's worth, especially if he is in trouble, is subject to discount in the marts of men, but what Mrs. Jacob Drumm says of Phil Drumm fits in well with what all Wichita knows of him and says of him.

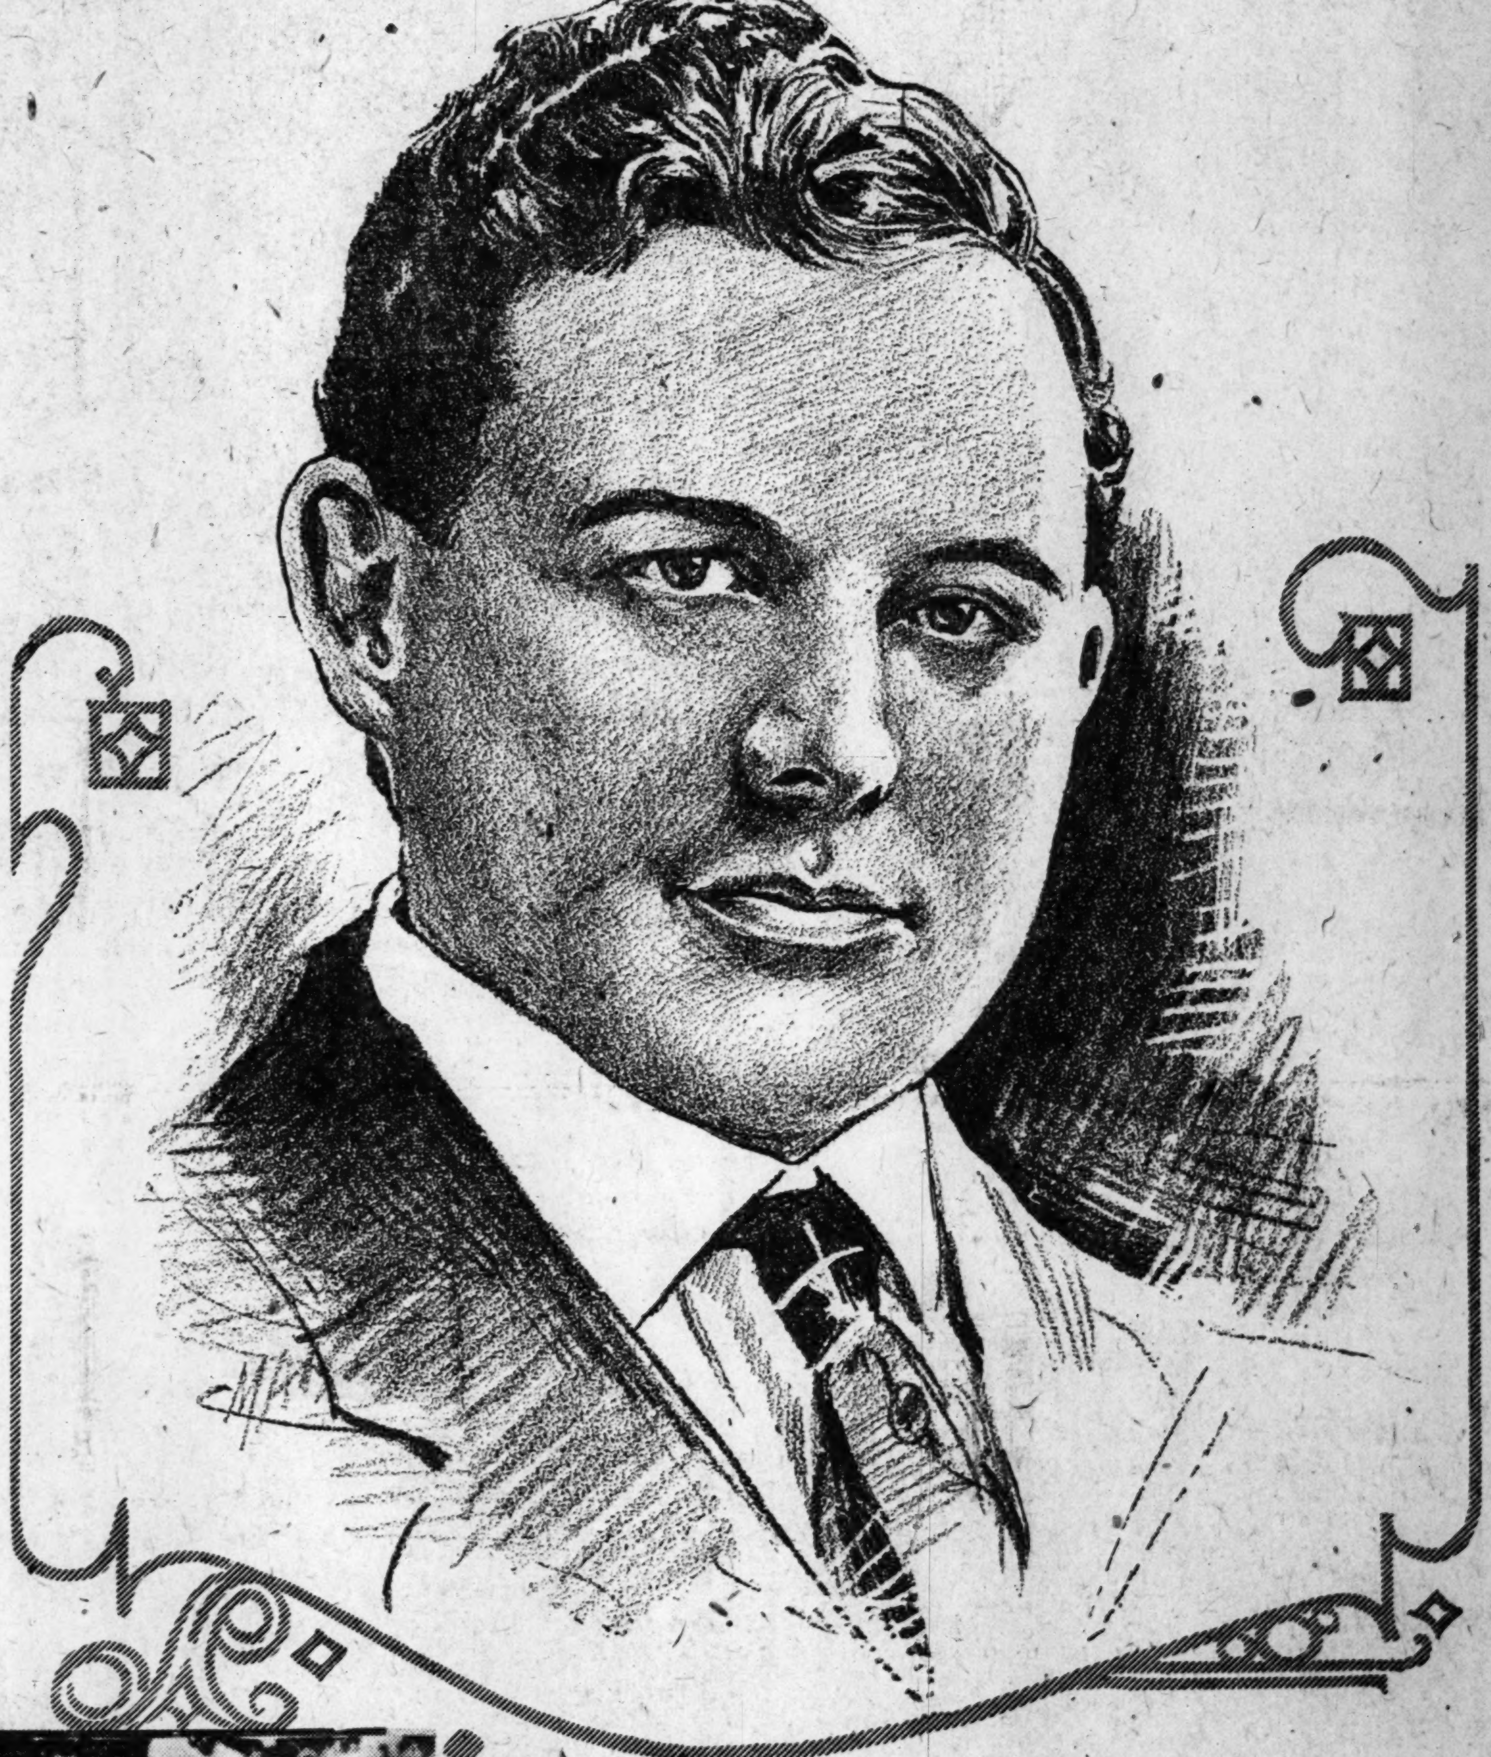
"Phil was never like other boys," this mother says. "He didn't play with the gangs and get into trouble. He was always a little man and used to help his father when we had a little store at Valley Center. He liked to work. He was and is one of the best boys that ever lived. He has never had many pleasures and always denied himself. In 17 years he has taken only one vacation, and that was a short fishing trip several years ago with his uncle. He did not go to shows like most people. The only recreation he had was church."

The not very considerable part of Wichita which has known Phil Drumm knows that most of this affectionate appraisal is true. His has not been the role of friendly man and mixer. The comparatively small number of persons who had close dealings with him liked him and rated him as a quiet, conservative fellow, a plodder and hard worker, devoted to the bank, capable but not brilliant, who might be expected to follow always the paths of prudence and usefulness.

Doubtless, in an atmosphere of investment, he bethought himself of rewards greater than his modest salary. He bought stock from time to time, good, bad and indifferent stock, as many men do, and it is not unlikely that enterprises which were frequent and heavy borrowers found it no disadvantage to have a friend at bank, but his stock holdings were small and it does not appear that he ever profited substantially from these adventures.

Quiet and soft-spoken, he had no marked social graces, but his personal excellences were outstanding and the subject of commendation. He had none of the "habits" which are common to men. He was not profane and seldom indulged in frivolous speech. The trinity of his devotions was the bank, his home and his church.

He was married eight years ago and his friends know that into the purchase of the modest bungalow at 357 Pattie avenue, to which he took his bride, went the savings of both. When his father's health failed he established his parents in a cottage near his own home and cheerily took upon himself the burden of supporting them their remaining days.



PHILLIP DRUMM.
Cashier of the American State Bank of Wichita, Kas., who confesses that he alone is to blame for $1,500,000 shortage in the institution's funds, but whose confession is believed, in that city, to have been made to protect others believed to have been more culpable.

J. N. RICHARDSON.
President of the American State Bank which collapsed with the discovery of the $1,500,000 shortage. Richardson, who has varied business interests, among them a brokerage firm that was a large borrower from the bank, says: "The boy was merely tempted and fell."

Drumm's modest bungalow which was bought with the combined savings of himself and bride shortly after their marriage eight years ago.

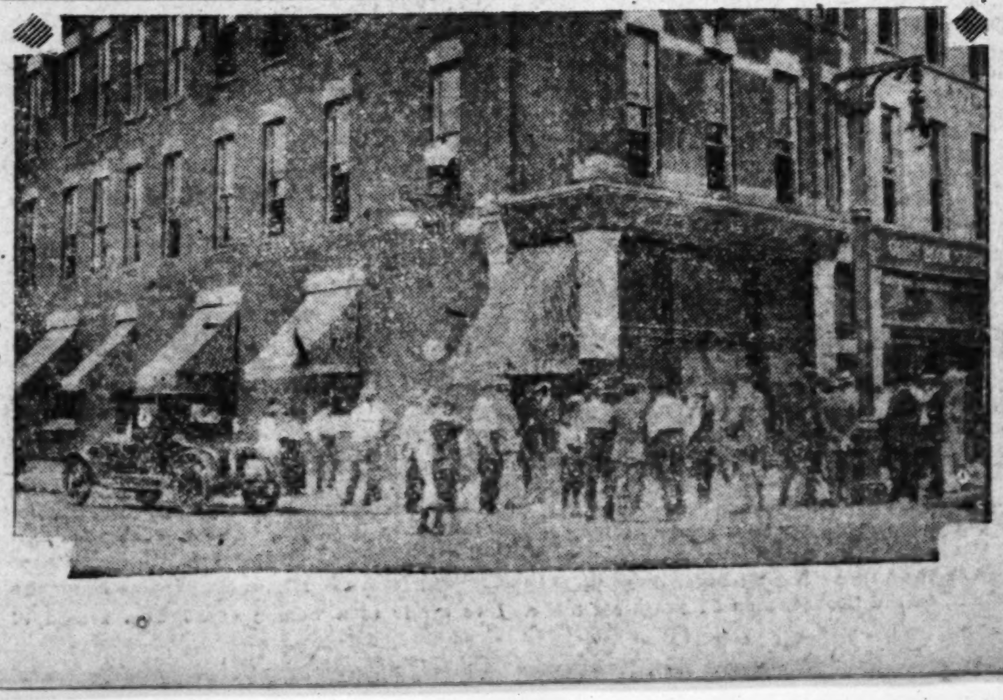
Owned Secondhand Automobile

And his sorrow now, with seemingly no purpose to save himself from prison, is for these and his wife, who will be deprived of his support.

His one extravagance, as his motor-wise friends see it, has been his purchase of a used car instead of a new one.

It is not alone Jacob Drumm who has suffered a double calamity by flood and bank failure. He is the only one who has a son involved, but many of the depositors whose welfare is affected at least temporarily by the bank shortage, are sufferers directly or indirectly in crop and property losses in the floods which recently spread over this part of Kansas. But so far as appears on the surface, a shortage of a million and a half is an everyday occurrence of no importance. There is no excitement over it and there has been none. Crowds did not gather about the unpretentious bank building when the shortage was announced. The only time depositors appeared there in numbers was when notice had been given to bring in their passbooks to be checked up.

Below—Depositors in front of the American State Bank waiting to present their passbooks for checking up by the force of the State Bank Commissioner in charge. This was the nearest evidence of a crowd at the bank for there never were any excited throngs, fearing they would lose their money, about the building since Kansas has a bank guarantee law and the State is bound to make up the shortage.



There is a reason for the depositors' assurance. Kansas has a State guarantee fund to protect depositors under circumstances like these. It is a fund backed by 700 State banks, from which may be drawn what is required to make up whatever is needed to pay the depositors 100 cents on the dollar.

Some doubts were raised the first days after the American State was closed, as to the sufficiency of the funds, but Commissioner Peterson has formally stated that it is ample, with the salvage of the American's assets, to save all the depositors from loss. The stockholders, on the other hand, are liable for twice the value of their holdings.

This is how the guarantee works, as Peterson explains it:

"Bank Guarantee Fund Ample"

"The bank guarantee fund now amounts to $1,900,000. A number of banks have failed in Kansas in the past year or two. Their net losses will amount to about $1,500,000. By the time the affairs of the American State Bank are settled there will be ample money in the fund to pay all of the claims, including those of the American State Bank.

"The State banks under the guarantee law have been paying one assessment each year for many years until last year. Then they were called upon for one special assessment. Each assessment amounts to one-twentieth of one per cent of the deposits of the banks. According to the law it is possible to levy five special assessments if necessary. Each assessment brings in $75,000. If all six assessment were made, which is not at all likely, there would be $450,000 coming into the fund in one year. From this it can be seen that the depositors are well protected. Anyone who circulates rumors to the contrary is either unaware of the provisions of the law or is trying to do deliberate harm."

Precisely how such a large and constantly growing shortage was covered up and what brought about the exposure are details about which there is some obscurity. The covering up was accomplished by manipulation of bonds. Whether this was with the knowledge of other officers of the bank and owners of bonds who were large borrowers will have to be determined by the courts in civil and criminal actions instituted by Commissioner Peterson.

President Richardson says the situation came to him like a blast out of a clear sky. Drumm, he says, confessed to a "small" shortage in his accounts, which he thought might amount to $150,000.

"When we pressed him, "Richardson said, "he continued increasing the amount until we made hasty investigation and ascertained that the bond account might be short as much as $1,500,000."

It is the belief in Wichita, however, that information of the irregularities had been in possession of interested persons for some time. Falling off in deposits is regarded as significant. The bank on May 6 reported deposits of $5,243,000. When it was closed the deposits were $4,200,000, a decrease of $1,043,000 in six weeks, when other banks in the city were reporting either increased or stationary deposits.

When the crash came President Richardson did not feel called upon to dispute Drumm's assumption of blame.

"The boy was tempted and fell," he said. "That's all there is to it. It was a case of misplaced confidence. I trusted Drumm and considered him a conservative and highly honorable employe."

State Theories Revealed in Suit

Drumm is denying himself to interviewers, but close friends say he looked upon Richardson almost as a father and that his loyalty to his employer is so complete that nothing can shake it.

Standing out amid rumor and conjecture, as bearing upon manipulation of the bank's accounts, is the petition which Commissioner Peterson has filed in the District Court of Sedgwick County against the Brown-Crummer Investment Co., W. E. Brown, R. E. Crummer, G. G. Tucker, J. N. Richardson, C. W. Carey and L. H. Davis for recovery of $1,586,000 in bonds that are alleged to belong to the bank.

In this suit, which is to collect $1,639,872.79 from the Brown-Crummer Investment Co. of Wichita, the Bank Examiner alleges that the investment company, several of whose directors are also officers of the bank, took from the

Croker Wanted His Widow to Continue His Fight on "Ungrateful" Childre

TAMMANY CHIEFTAIN WOULD NOT COMPROMISE IN LIFE AND OPPOSED ANY YIELDING TO THEM AFTER DEATH

At top (right and left) are two views of Mrs. Bula Edmonson Croker, widow of the politician, who has won her fight to retain the fortune he left her, after a spectacular trial in it was testified that she was the wife of Guy R. Marone, a tailor of Northampton, Mass., at the she married Croker. Between these two photographs is one of Mrs. Roy B. Keys, wife of a Belle telegrapher, who announced that she, and not Mrs. Croker, was the wife of Marone, and lived him in Northampton during the period referred to in the trial. She says the witnesses who fied Mrs. Croker as Marone's wife had really mistaken her for the Indian Princess.

Review of Extraordinary Will Contest Which Has Just Ended in Ireland in Favor of Young Woman Whom Disgruntled Heirs of Politician Accused Not Only of Scheming to Oust Them From Their Father's Affection, but Also of Misconduct in a Vain Effort to Discredit Her.

IF the late Richard Croker could look back from beyond the grave and observe the outcome of the fight his children have waged against his young widow since his death, it is likely that his bellicose spirit would experience a sense of profound relief and return to post mortuary pursuits with greater tranquility than it had ever known during his natural life.

When the aged politician and Tammany Hall leader died a little more than a year ago at Glencairn, Ireland, after a career filled with combat, he left his bitterest fight unfinished. From the time he started out to pummel his way to leadership of the Fourth Avenue Tunnel gang back in the '60's up to the conclusion of his struggle against a mental incompetency injunction suit in 1920, he had been accustomed to seeing his own battles through to vigorous completion. But in the case of his last engagement, circumstances were different. Overtaken by fatal illness, he was compelled to place on the shoulders of his young wife, Bula, the responsibility of protecting his estate from the legal assaults that an inevitable will contest was certain to bring.

Now that she has fulfilled her trust and emerged victoriously from the final court encounter, while the assailing forces have had to beat a crestfallen retreat with heavy financial casualties, one fancies that Richard Croker's bones are enjoying more peaceful repose on the Glencairn estate that she has saved from unfriendly hands—the hands of his children though they were.

Will contests as a rule are bitter and relentless affairs, just as are most other conflicts wherein the principals are of the same blood, and litigants customarily display little regard for the feelings of their adversaries. In the trial of the Croker case, which began on May 31 and ended a few days ago with a verdict in favor of the young widow, there was hardly an instrument of bitterness or malice overlooked.

In the first place, the will of the aged politician had been a vengeful document. He had cut off his two sons, Richard Jr. and Howard, and his daughter, Ethel, without a cent, scoring them as ungrateful and unfriendly, and leaving virtually his entire fortune of many millions to his wife. The children, who had already become sworn enemies of Mrs. Croker, then redoubled their efforts to dispossess her and in doing so, to brand her as a clever, unscrupulous schemer who had preyed upon their aged father's confidence to meet her own selfish ends.

Richard, Jr., and Howard Croker, sons of the late politician, photographed when leaving the courts in Dublin after receiving the verdict which denied them a share in their father's $2,000,000 estate.

Daughter of the late Richard Croker and intervener in the contest of his will. She is photographed here with her two children, Thomas and Barbara.

A Double Victory for Her

The case immediately took on a spectacular aspect that attracted international interest. Not only the wishes of Richard Croker concerning the disposition of his estate were at stake, but the reputation of his widow was threatened with a savage besmirching. Aside from the question of whether she had unduly influenced him in his testamentary action, there was to be considered the direct charge that she had bigamously married him and previously had lived a disreputable life. Numerous witnesses, transported to Ireland from the United States by Richard Croker Jr., were on hand to swear that she had resided in Northampton, Mass., during the winter of 1911-12 as the wife of Guy R. Marone, a tailor, and that previously she had been known as "Little Bula," a Hippodrome dancer, in New York.

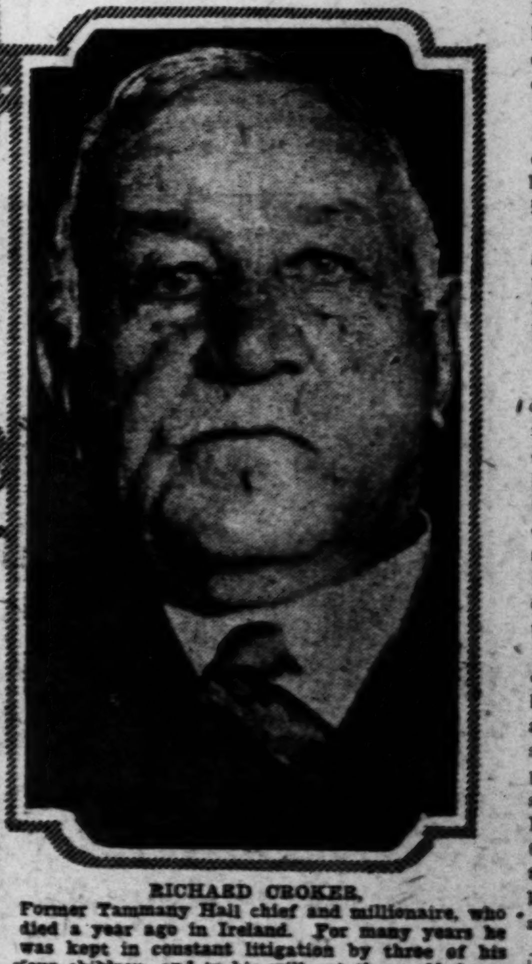
So it was a double victory for her and, although he was not there, for her late husband, when the jury, after an hour's deliberation, returned a verdict finding the charges unsubstantiated and declaring that Croker had made his will with full knowledge of its contents and without undue influence from his wife.

As a result of the proceedings the Croker will stands. To his widow goes the bulk of his fortune, including the Glencairn estate, divers pieces of real estate in Florida and the Croker racing stables. To his daughter Florence (Mrs. J. G. Morris), who took no part in the contest, is left, in the care of Mrs. Croker, a bequest of $50,000 in recognition of her being "the only one of my children who has shown me any gratitude." To his other daughter, Ethel, intervener in the contest, and to his sons, goes the responsibility of paying all the costs of the litigation and without one cent of inherited money to pay it with. The defeat of these three litigants, therefore, has been a decisive one.

The trouble that has had its final manifestation in the will contest all began back in 1914 when Richard Croker, then 73 years old and a widower of two months, decided to take unto himself another wife. The children opposed the idea, but Croker was satisfied that he knew what he was about and put his decision into effect. His bride, who was some 50 years his junior, was Miss Bula Benton Edmonson of Tahlequah, Ok., a quarter-blood Cherokee, known among her people as Princess Sequoyah because of her descent from Cherokee royalty. Croker had known her from the time she was 9 years old and had been interested in her education during the years she attended various Eastern schools, including Chicago University, and later in her work when she was teaching in the Southwest or traveling as a lecturer in behalf of the Camp Fire Girls' movement. As she was a woman of some beauty and refinement, the Croker children accepted their youthful stepmother amiably at first and corresponded with her during the newly married couple's residence at the Croker estate in Florida.

Then trouble commenced. The younger Crokers, from the first a bit dubious about the love affair of a woman of 23 with a man of 73, began to betray their suspicions that some attraction besides affection was figuring in the case. Just what passed between the father and children on the subject never was definitely made public, but about 1917 open strife in the family appeared. The elder Croker withdrew the management of his estate from the hands of Richard Jr. and turned it over to his wife.

The father said he did that because Richard was a loafer who wouldn't stay in one place long enough to attend to business, and Richard said it was done because he (Richard Jr.) refused to consent to the dissolution of a trust agreement affecting property left to the children by their mother.



RICHARD CROKER.
Former Tammany Hall chief and millionaire, who died a year ago in Ireland. For many years he was kept in constant litigation by three of his four children, and in his will cut them off, leaving virtually his entire estate to his young wife.

At any rate, there was little attempt to disguise hostilities after that occurrence. In the spring of 1920 the discordant trend of affairs was further marked when the children obtained a temporary injunction restraining their father from disposing of any of his Florida holdings, which were represented to be worth $10,000,000, and endeavoring to have the courts appoint a committee to manage his affairs. This, they contended, was necessary to their interests because their father was "completely und domination of his young wife," who, they serted, was possessing herself of his pro and was giving it away to her relatives in homa.

Croker bitterly resented both the alle of his mental incompetency and the inti that he was being made the foil of a sche wife. He prepared to fight the injuncti a finish and urged that he be given a hearing so that he might disprove the cha Meanwhile, he let it be known that, alth he had previously intended to divide his equally between his wife and children, he cut the latter out entirely.

When the insanity case came to trial in 1920, Croker won a decisive triumph. The cuit Court of Palm Beach County declared he was mentally competent and that no evid had been presented to justify the allegatio Mrs. Croker had exerted undue influence gaining control of his property. The inj tion restraining him from disposing of his ings as he pleased also was dissolved and lower court's rulings later were affirmed by Florida Supreme Court.

Throughout the proceedings he remai devoted to his young wife, defending her aga what he termed "slanderous attacks," and claring that but for her he would have bee his grave long before. At the same time her tachment for her aged spouse was the sub of neighborhood comment. Just before the sanity hearing she told a Post-Dispatch respondent of the charges made against her expressed a desire to take the witness stan that her name might be cleared.

"Mr. Croker is a remarkable man," she clared, "and I have a great love for him. have not used his money for my family and and I have been very happy in our compan ship. Though Everybody Had Predicted That a Contest, With Unpleasant Revelations, Was Inevitable at His Death Because of Irregularities in His Domestic Relations, He Managed to Arrange His Affairs in His Final Testament So That Apparently Everybody Is Satisfied and Ample Provision Is Made for the Sinclair Children Who Were Mysterious Figures in His Life Until He Identified Himself as Their Father.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.

THE placing of the body of George Gould in the family mausoleum in Woodlawn Cemetery alongside that of his father, Jay Gould, who had been the dominating financial figure of his day and had hoped that his son would be to his own time what he had been to his, was such a quiet event of last Tuesday that casual observers could scarcely believe their ears when they were told what was going on; that the final obsequies over the remains of a man who had once bulked so large in American financial affairs could attract so little attention.

Only two days before, the casket lying in imposing state in the center of the ship's most luxurious suite had arrived from France aboard the French liner Paris. This was the recently married widow's tribute of love and devotion. She had accompanied the remains with her three children, two of whom at least were born to her from her union with him that stretched over several years before his first wife's death. His eldest son by his first marriage was also in the party.

But this was the only evidence of show in connection with his last obsequies, which were in strictest private and attended only by members of the family. There was a time when a great public funeral would have marked his passing, but so involved had become his family relations, some of them without benefit of clergy, that privacy even in his funeral was what he preferred before everything else in the world. So the quiet scene at Woodlawn last Tuesday was strictly as he would have ordered it.

But however complex and embarrassing these relations had become to those whom they most concerned, it is generally agreed among the friends and intimates of Gould that before his death in Mentone, France, May 16, last, he had solved the problem of so adjusting them as to prevent a long series of lawsuits, with attending scandalous details that would have cast aspersions upon his memory and brought shame to those he had loved and who had survived him.

Whatever uncertainty there may have been regarding the status the three "mystery" children of the George J. Gould household would hold as heirs to the great Jay Gould fortune and whatever mystery may have attached to their existence have both been finally dispelled through the will of the late financier. Both were matters in which those who have followed the domestic vicissitudes of the noted family found no little interest, and both have now been settled with results that everybody probably expected. But they were settled without recourse to the courts, and that, to those familiar with the Gould failing for legal wrangles was something certainly not to be expected.

Will Contest Definitely Averted

So, after a tempestuous career filled with financial tangles and family rows in which brother fought brother in litigation and sons were often estranged from their father's fireside, George Gould has gone out of the world leaving more amity in the family than ever existed during his life, or at least during that period of it in which he held the $80,000,000 Jay Gould fortune in trusteeship. The will contest that seemed inevitable has definitely been averted, and his $30,000,000 estate, of which $10,000,000 was his share of his father's fortune, is on its way to distribution in a manner that appears to be pleasing to all of the eleven beneficiaries.

A little more than a year ago when Gould secretly married Guinevere Jeanne Sinclair, a former actress, and the two took passage to Europe on a honeymoon two mysterious children, about 5 and 7 years old, accompanied them. The bride had been known for several years previous to the wedding as "Mrs. Sinclair," the widow of a British war hero. There was nothing particular about the children's presence to excite general curiosity.

But before long, those en rapport with Gould affairs, having established the mythological character of the British war hero story, began to put two and two together. And the further they went with the addition the more those two children came to take on the appearance of potential Gould heirs. Naturally the outlook was not such as to gratify those of the financier's family who already figured that seven legitimate claims to heirship would be quite enough, without adding any of questionable origin. The heirs waited jealously for further development, for some sort of acknowledgment as to who the children were, and if they were who everybody thought, what they expected to do about it.

Developments came slowly and gossips were given plenty of time to thresh out the difficulty to their satisfaction, but their gossip proved nothing. Finally there came the first public mention of the children in a legal document. The occasion was the filing of papers providing for the guardianship of "George Sinclair Gould and Jane Sinclair Gould, children of George J. Gould and the present Mrs. George J. Gould." That seemd to be admission enough of their paternity. Still it was only an admission by inference, because it was understood that Gould had already filed proceedings for their adoption. It was possible that he might refer to adopted children as children of George J. and Mrs. Gould, without making thereby a public admission of fatherhood.

Next came the filing of a petition to have these two children and a third, not previously mentioned, declared legal heirs. The third child was described as Guinevere Gould.

That action was promptly met by a counter suit, entered by Malcolm Sumner, guardian for some of George Gould's older children, alleging that the children of the present Mrs. George J. Gould were not "the issue of George J. Gould within the meaning of the will of Jay Gould" and that they had no interest in the estate. That action was pending in the New York Supreme Court when, a few weeks later, Gould became seriously ill and died. Immediately after his death, his heirs began gathering their forces for a contest just so soon as his will should be made public, for it was felt that in view of his previous maneuvers in behalf of the younger set of children he would still try to make them full heirs in his will.

GEORGIAN COURT, The GOULD HOME ©KADEL & HERBERT

INTERNATIONAL

Shown at the top of the page are the seven children of George J. Gould by his marriage with his first wife, the former Edith Kingdon, six months after whose death he married Mrs. Guinevere Sinclair Gould, who is shown in the photograph immediately above with her children, called George Gould III and Jane Sinclair Gould. Just before his death, which occurred at Mentone, France, a year after his second marriage, George J. Gould admitted in his will paternity of these two children, and also of a third not shown in the picture. By a curious complication in family nomenclature there are now two sons and a grandson of George J. Gould all named George. The younger son and the grandson, too, are both known as George Gould III.

But the will carried a surprise. While establishing beyond doubt the paternity of the younger children by a reference to "my children, George Sinclair Gould, Jane Sinclair Gould and Guinevere Gould, the children of my wife, Guinevere Sinclair Gould," it made no attempt to strengthen their claim to any Gould inheritance beyond his private fortune.

Why Gould withdrew from the determined stand he had previously disclosed is a question for which there may be several answers. Whatever his inclinations may have been, no doubt he foresaw in all their unsavory detail the consequences of trying to place his younger heirs on an equal footing with the seven children of his first wife, the former Edith Kingdon. It was obvious that all the old scandals would be aired with many new and offensive particulars which would not be a desirable heritage for the young children even if they should defeat the contest. Perhaps, too, he had a lurking sense of shame over his double life and felt it incumbent upon him to square himself by bestowing partiality upon the children of Edith Kingdon. Whatever the motive, the result was that the seven older children got all of the $10,000,000 which was their father's share of the Jay Gould estate.

Of his personal fortune of $20,000,000, which remained, he left to his second wife $4,000,000.

The remaining $16,000,000 he divided equally into 10 shares for his 10 children, the second set sharing on the same basis with the first in his private holdings. The shares of the 10 children and that of Mrs. Gould are to be held in trust, but each can direct disposal of his or her part by will.

His Romance Recalled

The seven children by Gould's first marriage are Kingdon, Jay, Marjorie (Mrs. Anthony Drexel), Vivien (Lady Decies), George J. Jr., Edith (Mrs. Carol Wainwright) and Gloria.

Thus comes finally the settlement of part of one of the country's greatest estates which since the elder Jay Gould's death in 1892, had been watched by jealous eyes. Litigation over various matters affecting it filled the years from then on to 1919, when George was ousted as trustee by his brothers and sisters on the ground that the estate which totaled some $83,000,000 originally, dwindled to $65,000,000 under his management.

Now that his death has straightened out his involved financial and family entanglements, his unconventional romance, which was the most unusual of the many unusual Gould love affairs, is being recalled.

Playgoers who frequented the Forty-fourth Street Theater during the season of 1913-14 remember an attractive young actress by the name of Sinclair taking a feature part in the musical comedy called "The Girl On the Film." She had come to New York from London with the troupe in the fall and appeared as an understudy of Emmy Wehlen. It is also remembered that George J. Gould was seen in the audience on numerous occasions and it is said that he obtained an introduction to the charming actress, who was then about 20 years old, through the eminent British comedian, George Grossmith, an old friend of the financier.

As the season drew near a close, Gould and the young woman began to appear together on long walks out Fifth avenue or drives up the Hudson. The fact attracted comment, of course, but apparently was not thought of very seriously, for the married life of Gould and Edith Kingdon had to all appearances been a happy one and the elaborate social functions at the Gould mansion had continued with no suggestion of anything but devotion between the couple.

Eventually the theatrical season closed, and the London company, which had made anything but a financial success in its winter's run, returned to England. But it returned without Miss Sinclair, who gave no reason for her decision to remain behind beyond the statement that she "liked New York." She became established in an apartment on Riverside Drive and her appearance in public with Gould continued for almost a year.

Name Figured in Alimony Case

During that time the name of a "Miss St. Clair" coupled with that of George Gould figured in a negro porter's suit for reduction of alimony in a Brooklyn court. Mrs. May Macon, wife of the porter, made an affidavit to the effect that her husband worked in the private employ of George J. Gould "on certain premises on Riverside drive for one Miss St. Clair," a friend of Gould, and that on several occasions he had to do errands for "Miss St. Clair" at Gould's behest.

Mrs. Macon also told of work done by her husband at the home of another woman, a Miss Lenstrom, at 63 Riverside drive, where, she said, all the expenses of the establishment were paid by the financier. Gould, however, vigorously denied the charges in both cases.

Whatever may have been the facts in the case, Miss Sinclair dropped out of sight on the avenue soon after that and about the same time a young woman calling herself Mrs. Vere Sinclair, took up her residence in an old-fashioned mansion surrounded by spacious grounds and dense shrubbery on the Boston Post road, near Quaker Ridge. During the year or more that she remained there she was seldom seen in public, and little is known of her life or associations, but Gould was known to visit the place often.

Sometime later Mrs. Sinclair, who, at the time, was understood to be the widow of a British officer killed in the war, moved with her two small children into a palatial home that tops the hill of Manursing Island, Rye. There she lived quietly, but in luxury, and devoted herself chiefly to outdoor sports and care of the two little children, who, apparently had become members of her household during her residence in the Quaker Ridge neighborhood. She drove her own automobile of expensive English model and became expert at shooting, skating and tennis. Those who knew her there say that she studied diligently also and acquired a knowledge of literature, finance and corporation management.

In the meantime Gould was finding extraordinary attraction in the tennis courts at the Rye clubs and the sight of his yacht tied up at Rye Beach came to be a familiar one. Neighbors and tradespeople observed, too, that he spent as much of his time at the hill top mansion as he did at the clubs and it was common knowledge that the army of servants who looked after the place took their orders from him. Talk was so common in the club circles that it became stale and finally wore itself out, people taking Gould's double living for granted.

About 1920 Miss or Mrs. Sinclair took a town house at 323 West Seventy-fourth street.

HOW GEORGE GOULD, BY HIS WILL, AVERTED FIGHT OVER ESTATE

It was a handsome five-story stone structure opposite the house of Charles M. Schwab and only a step from Riverside Drive. There the children were observed on daily walks with their nurse, their mother, as before, keeping out of the public eye as much as possible. She still drove occasionally in her costly car and Gould came to her home with increasing frequency. Often he was seen to drive up hurriedly with his chauffeur in the middle of the day and remain for several hours.

Following the death of Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, which occurred on Nov. 13, 1921, when playing golf with her husband on their private course at Lakewood, N. J., little was heard of Gould's association with Miss Sinclair until their marriage was announced in Paris late in May, 1922.

Married at Lakewood, N. J.

First reports were that the marriage had taken place in France, but subsequent inquiry revealed that the ceremony had been performed by Judge Harry Newman at his residence in Lakewood, N. J., on May 1, just before the couple went to Europe. Judge Newman, who was an old friend of Gould, told afterward of officiating at the nuptials which were attended by three witnesses. The ring ceremony was used, he said, and resulted in a slight complication when the ring which Gould had provided for the occasion proved to be too small. The embarrassment prevailed only for a moment, however. Gould let good enough alone when the ring stopped at the middle joint of his bride's finger, kissed her on the forehead and the two went their way.

At the time of the wedding the two children, George and Jane, were about 5 and 7 years old. More mystery seems to attach to the third child, Guinevere, and some reports are that she was born in France after the marriage.

In the marriage license, procured at Lakewood, the bride gave her age as 29 and number of her marriage as "one." Her father, she said, was Alexander Campbell Sinclair of "Dakota." Gould was 58 at the time of the wedding.

By his remarriage he gave up property valued at $3,000,000 left to him by his first wife. It included the late Mrs. Gould's home at Fifth avenue and Sixty-seventh street, where in the past many magnificent social affairs had been held, and also the property at 177 East Sixty-fourth street. These buildings go to the seven children of the first Mrs. Gould.

Long in Failing Health.

Gould's death came hardly as a surprise to members of his family and others who knew him well. For eight years or so he had been in failing health and it is said that three months before his passing he realized that he had not much longer to live. During most of his stay in Europe he was suffering from high blood pressure and was constantly under the care of a physician.

The attack of pneumonia which ended his life is believed to have resulted from a cold he contracted when living in a houseboat on the Nile on his trip to Egypt in the winter. For a while following his death, it was reported that he contracted his fatal illness at the tomb of King Tutankhamen, but this theory was ridiculed by his private secretary, Schuyler Rice, who was with him in Egypt and who returned to the United States from France recently. Rice declared that Gould did not even visit the tomb, but remained in a hotel at Luxor, too ill to make the trip, while his wife and the children journeyed without him to the valley of the Kings.

George Gould's death marked the passing of the great Gould railroad dynasty. Though George was trained from a child to occupy the seat of power that his father had held in the financial world and gave exceeding promise as a young man of an illustrious career, he never quite measured up to the standard of business sagacity set by his famous parent.

In the faded files of the newspapers of 30 or more years ago, may be found a series of articles, popular at that time on "Men of the Day," in which prominent figures in social, business and professional life were analyzed from various standpoints.

A sketch of the occupation of each man was followed by a personal description such as would go on passports, by facts as to his habits of work and play such as would be of use to a detective, and by estimates based on his handwriting, the shape of his head and the lines of his palm.

Sketch of Gould 30 Years Ago.

One of these sketches was of George J. Gould and represents what George Gould appeared to be at 28 and what the career ahead of him promised.

It reads as follows:

"George Jay Gould, financier, railroad organizer and speculator.

"Might be called the Boy Railroad King. Is but 28 years of age. Popularly supposed to be 38. Looks and acts like a man of 40. Is to his father, Jay Gould, what William H. Vanderbilt was to Commodore Vanderbilt.

"Took active interest in his father's affairs before he was 21. Has natural faculty for the management of financial matters. Knowledge of railroads throughout the country inferior to none, not excepting his father's.

"Regarded in Wall Street as the coming man; is respected and feared by officers of competing railways.

"Passport: Age, 28 years; height, 5 feet, 9 inches; weight, 165 pounds; eyes, hair and mustache dark brown; head well shaped, firmly set on shoulders; eyes bright and snappy, but not large; nose small and straight; chin firm; jaws determined; feet and hands small; body sturdily formed; dresses fashionably, but not dudishly.

"Detective hints: Spends between eight and ten hours every day at office in Western Union building. Seldom leaves home in the evening. Favorite amusement, going to the theater with his beautiful wife. Likes yachting, horseback riding and bicycle riding. Has little time for any outdoor sport. Good judge of a horse and a good dinner. Smokes seldom. Drinks less. Rises at 7:30. Reaches office at 10 a. m. Remains until 5 or 6 p. m.

"Graphology: Deliberate in thought. Energetic in action. Conservative in friendships and business. Democratic in ideas. Capable of intense mental strain. Reasoning powers well developed. Versatile in thought. Self-reliant, but not overconfident. Unusually cautious. Advice not objectionable. Diffident about advising others. No political ambitions. Likes popularity. Ambitious to build independent reputation.

"Phrenology: Fair memory for facts and figures. Patient in business and social home matters. Systematic in everything. Great lover of music and paintings. Adverse criticism particularly distasteful. Endeavers to please fellowmen in everything. Possesses fine executive ability.

"Palmology: Makes few enemies. Is difficult to provoke. Philosophical over defeats. Strong mentally, but overtaxed. Modest. Good judge of human nature. Is not easily imposed upon. Kindly. Fear of imposition obstructs many charitable gifts. Not much of a talker. Deliberate temperament. Not easily ruffled. Fond of society."

That was written in May, 1892.

In a letter which the old hawk of Wall Street wrote just about that time to his eldest son, who made it public during recent litigation, he said: "My Dear Son—Do not work hard. Take plenty of outdoor exercise and plenty of air. I dare not think what would happen if anything went wrong with you."

In December, 1892, Jay Gould died, and his will made George J. Gould one of the trustees of the $80,000,000 estate.

Inherited Father's Enmities.

But George failed to live up to his father's expectations of him. He never became the power that the elder Gould had been. This fault, however, may not have been entirely his own, for in inheriting his father's fortune, George also inherited many of his enmities. In working out his plan to consolidate the Gould holdings into a transcontinental system, he alienated most of the other powerful financial groups, and had to go it alone. At one time success seemed assured, but then the tide turned and steadily and irreclaimably the roads his father had controlled, and those which he, himself, had added to them slipped, one by one, from his grasp.

As a closing touch to his career, he now reaches back from the grave to admit that while he was the head of one of America's proudest families, he lived a double life and that Guinevere Jeanne Sinclair's three children are his.

BANK CASHIER SHORT $1,500,000, HAS NOTHING TO SHOW FOR IT

American State institution more than $1,500,000 in bonds that belonged to the bank and that a formal demand for the return of these bonds had been refused.

The petition recites that about the year 1919, Richardson, president of the bank and treasurer of the investment firm; Drumm, and other bank officials engaged in speculation and unlawfully made large loans from the bank's funds to various persons and firms without entering them on the books of the institution. The unauthorized loans, it is asserted, total more than $1,500,000 and were not made for the benefit of the bank but for the benefit of the speculative enterprises in which Richardson, Drumm and the others were interested.

These peculations, Peterson alleges, were secreted from the Banking Department of the State of Kansas and from various bank examiners, the officers of the investment company aiding the bank officials in deceiving the examiners. Richardson, Drumm and the other defendants, he recites, conspried to furnish bonds to the amount of the loans and these bonds were placed in the assets of the bank. In November, 1922, the petition avers, when the State Banking Commissioner found the bank was short $400,000, the investment company sent over the required amount of bonds, which were counted in an assets, making the bank appear solvent. Then, after deluding the examiners, the investment company, according to the charges, withdrew the $400,000 in bonds and $617,604 in bonds additional.

Plot to Defraud Alleged.

The petition further recites that on June 15, 1923, H. A. Hoffman, as agent for the Brown-Crummer company, went to the American State Bank and, with the connivance of the officers of the latter institution, withdrew $350,000 from the bonds listed as assets of the bank and that the defendants, being officers of the investment company and the bank, then conspired to defraud the bank of $1,586,804 in bonds. Richardson and the other officers, it is declared, went into the vault and removed evidence of these bonds and receipts for the purpose of covering up the conspiracy.

The State Bank Examiner also alleges that the Brown-Crummer firm had on deposit more than $53,000 in the American State Bank on June 18 of this year and that R. E. Crummer, an official of both institutions, and Richardson, knowing of the bank's condition withdrew $53,068.79 of the deposits on that day, giving them a preference over the other creditors.

Peterson further states that the defendants in the suit also unlawfully abstracted records from the bank that would assist in setting forth the facts concerning the bank's condition and acts committed by its officers. The petition closes by declaring that the total amount due from the defendants to the bank is $1,639,372.79 and asks the court to deliver judgment for that amount, together with interest from the date of the suit.

Crummer's Reply to Charges.

Crummer, however, who is vice president of the Brown-Crummer Investment Co. and also a director of the bank, declares that the charges of Peterson are utterly without foundation and expresses confidence that the task of proving them so will not be dififcult when the case comes to trial.

"Since the American State Bank owes us approximately $175,000 in money deposited there," he said in a statement issued after the filing of the suit, "I was dumfounded when the Bank Commissioner called at our office and demanded the delivery of $1,639,872.79 in bonds for the bank.

"I replied that we had no bonds belonging to the bank and invited him to examine all of our records pertaining to our transactions with the bank. This he refused to do, but filed suit against us within 30 minutes.

"For a great many years this company, having the utmost confidence in the American State Bank and its officers, has maintained an active account therein, which involved the borrowing of large sums of money by us, always amply secured by bonds. As we paid these loans, the bonds held by the bank as collateral were redelivered to us. At no time during our business relations with the bank has it ever had in its possesion more than the usual reasonable amount of bonds in excess of our loans against them, and, to the best of our knowledge, neither the bank nor any officer thereof has ever made a request for bonds beyond the usual margin of safety on the loans made to us by the bank.

Was Large Depositor.

"At the date of the bank's closing, we had paid all of our obligations to it, in response to previous requests from the bank that we reduce the amount of our loans. When these loans were paid, all of our collateral against them was redelivered to us.

"Obligations of the bank to us consist of checking accounts, certificates of deposit and certified checks which will total approximately $175,000—probably the largest individual account owed by the bank. If we had had the slightest intimation of the real condition of the bank prior to its closing, we most assuredly would have made an effort to withdraw this money, just as any other sane-minded individual would have done.

"If this suit is well founded, then instead of being short, the American State Bank will be approximately $1,600,000 'over,' because it is generally understood that the failure was due to questionable oil loans aggregating approximately $1,600,000, the amount for which we are being sued. If, in addition to the questionable loans so made, bonds aggregating $1,600,000 have been taken from the bank without being paid for, then it obviously follows that the assets of the institution will be $1,600,000 more than they should be, because it cannot have both the alleged bad paper and the bonds."

Jacob Drumm was mowing the lawn in front of his Pattie avenue cottage yesterday afternoon. He led the way to his devastated garden back of the house and waved his hand toward the ruin there. Mrs. Drumm came to the door and they talked of the son in whose rise they had gloried and whose fall has crushed them, but has not impaired their confidence in him.

Drumm has been incapacitated for any but the lightest tasks by a partial stroke of paralysis, but the doctors told him he could make garden and thus provide the vegetable diet which they prescribed for him. He had the best garden in the neighborhood and was getting early vegetables from it. Then the flood came and destroyed it.

Fear of the effect of a shock to his father caused Phil Drumm to keep silence as long as he could. But there came a day when he had to tell.

"Be brave, mother, for dad's sake," he said, and she promised to be brave, and he told her all that he could. But in so far as his telling was an admission of blame she simply did not believe him. And neither did Jacob Drumm when he had to be told. And, not believing, the shock was not so great. And he stood it manfully, not doubting that when the whole truth is told, his son will be found to have been guilty of nothing except, perhaps, excess of zeal in behalf of the bank and his associates.

"I cannot think that God will permit him to be taken from us," said Mrs. Drumm, failing to keep back her tears.

"Never mind, mamma," said Jacob Drumm. "It will all come out in the wash."

CROKER WANTED WIFE TO KEEP UP FIGHT ON 'UNGRATEFUL' CHILDREN

and girls' schools. The charges are purely persecution and hypocrisy."

Croker, when interviewed about the same time, defended his action in leaving his estate to his wife.

"I am an old man," he said, "and I felt that my wife ought to own the homes in which we live. I have perfect trust in her and do not see that there is anything strange in my having given her the homes we occupy. I gave her my whole Irish estate because I knew she would take care of it.

"The thing which would amuse me if it were not so irritating is the concern my children apparently have about what my wife gets. In the first place, I will say that my wife has earned since we were married, in deals that she has swung herself, considerably more than we both have spent since we were married. If my wife was an extravagant woman, forcing her way into society down here by lavish entertaining that was dissipating my fortune, I can see how they might feel like making some complaint; but instead, we have one servant; we live very quietly and happily, and what we have spent she has earned twice over."

Following the trial in which Croker was declared competent to manage his own affairs, he returned to Ireland with his wife and spent most of his time there until his death, coming back to the United States occasionally to look after his interests in this country and engage in further litigation with his "foolish son." He never relented from his determination to disinherit the three children who had fought him, and, three months before his death drew, against the advice of his lawyers, the will that was to bring the three weeks' struggle in the courts of Dublin.

When the case came to trial all the old allegations made against his wife in former proceedings were renewed together with sundry new ones The most sensational of all, however, and the chief point on which the fight against the will was based was the allegation that she was the wife of another man at the time she married Croker.

Witnesses Taken From America to Ireland.

Witnesses brought all the way from America testified at great length and with conspicuous regard for detail, as to how they had known her as Mrs. Guy Marone back in Northhampton, Mass., in 1911-12. Several identified her in court as the tailor's wife and one or two even remembered little peculiarities about her gait and her voice.

Richard Davies, a Northampton man, took the stand and testified that the woman pointed out to him as Mrs. Croker was known to him as Mrs. Marone in Northampton and that the Marones had lived at his house. He declared that he had seen them both daily and conversed with them frequently during the term of their residence in the city. Mrs. Annie Davies, his wife, also testified to letting a room in the Davies home to Marone. In October, 1911, she asserted, Marone brought a woman there and introduced her as his wife. That woman, she said, was Bula Croker, and she was positive on the point.

Charles W. Swift of Northampton testified he had employed Marone as a ladies' tailor and that he had met Mrs. Marone. He then identified Mrs. Croker as the wife of the tailor. Attorney Addis of Northampton also testified to meeting Marone and his wife, living in a home adjoining his in June, 1912. Marone's wife, he said. talked frequently, telling him her history, saying she was of royal descent, an Indian Princess and had studied elocution. Addis positively identified Mrs. Croker in court as Mrs. Marone.

Other witnesses from Northampton and from Moncton, N. B., also told of meeting Mrs. Croker as the wife of Marone and one, a Mrs. Margaret McDonald of Moncton, mentioned a meeting in a Saratoga Springs dining room a year or more after the Marones lived at Moncton. On that occasion she noticed that Mrs. Marone had a peculiar habit of turning her toes in, she said, and proceeded to point out that same peculiarity in the defendant.

Old Friends Go to Her Aid.

Then old neighbors and friends who had known Bula Edmonson in Oklahoma before her marriage began to rally to her relief. There was Mrs. M. E. Adkins of Muskogee; Eugene S. Adkins, her son, and his wife, Mrs. Bessie Brady Adkins, in whose home the young woman had boarded when teaching. They couldn't quite understand how Bula Edmonson could have been a tailor's wife up in Northampton, Mass., at exactly the same time that she was living in their home and teaching school in Muskogee. Their stories about the girl's life, too, in other particulars seemed widely at variance with the Northampton tales.

Mrs. Croker, who previously had denied that she had ever been in Northampton, Mass., or had met Marone, was recalled to the stand just before the case went to the jury.

"Do you know Marone's occupation?" she was asked.

"I know nothing about him," she retorted. "I have no idea of his occupation. Neither do I know Mr. Swift or his occupation, and I do not want to know him. Neither in October, 1911, or at any other time did Mr. Marone introduce me to Swift as his wife."

"Did Marone say to Swift in your presence, pointing at you, 'That is my wife'?"

"Never."

"Have you ever been married or lived with Marone as his wife?"

"I have not. I told you I never met Marone in my life."

Missouri Woman Enters the Case.

The Court in charging the jury examined the evidence in detail, contrasting the testimony of the witnesses from Northampton with the evidence from Oklahoma. The witnesses from Oklahoma, the Court pointed out, were corroborated by contemporary documentary evidence. The Chief Justice, too, men-

Alkali in Soap Bad for Washing Hair

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is all that is required. Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily.

The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

MENACE TO HEALTH IN SEA-RIVER POLLUTION

David M. Neuberger Points Out That Legislation Is Needed to Halt Befouling of Water.

David M. Neuberger, President of The National Coast Anti-Pollution League in Field and Stream Magazine for July, claims that there will be wholesale disease and death for millions of people in the United States within a very few years because of sea, lake and stream pollution due to the tremendous increase in oil-burning ships, and to the pouring every year of millions of tons of poisonous waste into streams by mines, oil wells and factories. In 1911, he states the entire world's quota of oil-burning and oil-carrying ships was 364 vessels, with a total tonnage of 1,310,000 tons. In 1921 the world's quota had risen to 2316 vessels, with a total world's tonnage of 12,797,000, and this tonnage, Neuberger asserts, will before long make the coal burning an extremely rare sight on oceans, rivers and lakes.

Neuberger goes on to say that all these oil-carrying ships leave our coasts in cargo and come back in water ballast. When they near shore on the return they throw and pump bilge, oil waste, sludge and slops into the ocean. It collects on the water's surface some twenty or thirty miles off shore and wind and tides bring it landward. Here it mingles with deadly effect with the oil, tar, asphalt and other chemical discharges from the thousands of refineries and factories located on or near the coast, causing water pollution, fish and shell fish poisoning, contamination and destruction.

It is claimed that considerable and increasing areas of Long Island Sound and Delaware Bay are polluted by this poison, which is directly murderous to both the finny fish and shell fish and indirectly destructive to the humans who use sea food. Maryland has 200,000 acres of oyster beds and this industry, employing many thousands of men, it is said is growing weaker yearly. In Northern and Eastern Waters certain species of fish have disappeared. The catch of mackerel dwindled from 600,000 barrels in 1898 to 43,000 barrels in 1921.

Rivers in Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states, Neuberger claims, have become so terribly befouled that for stretches of from 50 to 100 miles no fish can live in their waters, and the banks and borders have been ravaged by this poinsoning so that nothing can grow there. In the anthracite coal district of Pennsylvania 20 tons of poison-laden, sulphurous water goes into the streams for every tone of coal produced, he says. In the Pittsburg bituminous district 10 tons of the same sort of water for every ton of coal mined is pumped into the streams, and every drop finds its way into a navigable stream or the tributary of one. Neuberger declares that "the increasing use of chemicals and oil in industry on land and in ships on the seas is growing to such proportions as to demand an answer."

As a solution, the National Coast Anti-Pollution League is advocating the passage of the Frelinghuysen oil pollution bill which is to come up before the Senate and Congress in December. Neuberger says this bill was favorably reported on Feb. 23, 1923, ordered printed and placed on the calendar. It is claimed that Senator Frelinghuysen exerted efforts to have the law placed on the statute books but, Neuberger in his article claims one man effectively blocked this legislation—Phillip P. Campbel of Pittsburg, Kan. According to Neuberger, Campbel, having been repudiated by his own constituents of the Third Kansas District, and serving his last two weeks as a Congressman, was presiding in the House as acting Speaker and refused to permit the bill to be moved or allow it to come before the House for action or vote. Senator Frelinghuysen, Secretary Hoover, Secretary of War Weeks, Senators Calder, Wadsworth, Lodge, and numerous Congressmen appealed to the man from Kansas, but Campbell wa sobdurate. As a last resort the President was appealed to and he tried to help, but it was of no avail.

City Club to Hear Talk on Ruhr.

"The Ruhr Situation and the Deadlock in Europe" will be the subject of a luncheon address before the City Club Tuesday by J. Henry Scattergood, Philadelphia manufacturer and bank director, who returned recently from the German territory occupied by French troops. During the war Scattergood was in France and Germany in the interest of the Quaker relief work. His most recent visit to the Ruhr was for the American Friends' Service Committee.

tioned the testimony which had been given concerning the service of writs by Richard Croker Jr. on his father and also the charges brought in the suit at Palm Beach. The jury, he declared, would probably think such conduct was unlikely to make the father regard his son favorably as an object of testamentary benefactions.

The jury had already returned its verdict vindicating the young widow and upholding the will when the most surprising evidence concerning the Marone afafir appeared.

It came in the form of a cablegram from Mrs. Roy B. Keys, wife of a telegraph operator at Belle, Mo., declaring that she had been the wife of Marone during the period figuring in the testimony and lived with him in Northampton, Mass.

When seen by a Post-Dispatch correspondent, shortly after her cablegram to Mrs. Croker was made public, Mrs. Keys refused to go into any details of her life except those applying to the period during which she said she was married to Marone.

"I was Mrs. Marone during the time these witnesses knew Mrs. Marone," she said. "They would admit it if they saw me. Neither Mrs. Croker nor the public has any interest in me other than that, and I will have nothing to say except on that part of my life."

Mrs. Keys and her husband live at one of the two small hotels in the town of 750 inhabitants and she holds herself rather aloof from the towns-people.

"I have known life," she said, "and find little here that interests me. I have traveled extensively. I speak three languages. To one who has lived in New York and who has known life in Havana there isn't much in the Ozarks which is attractive. I am content here only because I know my health is improving. The altitude is good for me."

There is nothing in Mrs. Keys' appearance which suggests the Indian blood, which admittedly Mrs. Croker has. Mrs. Keys is of medium height, has a clear complexion and blue eyes. Her cheek bones are not prominent.

She gave incidents of her life with Marone and mentioned the names of a number of persons of prominence with whom she said she was acquainted and who, she said, would readily identify her. She would not tell when or where she and Marone were married or where they were divorced. Though admitting she had been married once before she would not give the name of her first husband.

"In the fall of 1911 Guy and I were married," she said. "We went to Northampton, Mass., where Guy was employed at Swift's, a ladies' tailoring establishment. Guy had been living at the home of Richard Davies, and he took me there and introduced me as his bride. We lived there until about Christmas time when we went to New York. We did not like the Davies home. It was all right, but I had been accustomed to a different life.

"I might mention for purpose of identification, if anyone cares to follow it up, that in Northampton I met the Rev. and Mrs. Willis Butler. He afterward was assistant pastor to Dr. Gordon of Old South Church in Boston. Mrs. Butler invited Guy and me to have Thanksgiving dinner in their home, an invitation we accepted. We knew them again later on in Boston.

Tells of Events of the Time.

"After the winter in New York Guy and I returned to Northampton, but we did not go back to the Davies home. We went to another place, but I cannot remember the name of the people. It has been nearly 13 years.

"As summer approached in 1912 Mrs. Archibald Sessions, who was the daughter of Bishop Huntington, and whose husband was editor of a magazine, invited us to occupy her home while she was away for the summer. It was a beautiful old place on Elm street, just across from Greenlea Hall of Smith College.

"After a few months we went to Boston, where Guy was employed in a fashionable shop, the name of which I do not remember, and from there we went to Moncton, New Brunswick, Guy having accepted a position in Mrs. McDonald's millinery shop. He did not remain in that shop long, however, going into business for himself. We were in Moncton about a year and it was there Guy and I separated. I came west and after awhile married Mr. Keys.

"There could be no mistake about my identification if anyone who knew Mrs. Marone could see me. Guy had two brothers, Jack, a lawyer on Nassau street, and Dr. Carmen, a physician in Elizabeth, N. J.

"I think these names and these incidents are sufficient to establish my identity."

Mrs. Keys expressed regret that she had not made known her identity earlier. She said she had read of the Croker will contest and of the evidence on which the descendants of Richard Croker hoped to break the will, but that she had been unable to reach a conclusion to reveal herself to Mrs. Croker earler. She did not know that the case already had been decided in Mrs. Croker's favor when she sent her cablegram. She said she hoped Mrs. Croker would take advantage of the opportunity to use her as a witness if there should be further proceedings in the case.

This Way to Curl Hair Is Fine for Outdoor Girl

The silmerine method of curling the hair is the proper thing (for either bobbed or long hair) before going motoring, boating or golfing, or indulging in any outdoor sport or exercise. It not only gives the hair the most beautiful wavy and curly appearance imaginable, but wind or heat will not take the curl out. The curliness is quickly acquired and lasts much longer than where waving tongs are used. Besides, the hair is bright and lustrous, instead of dull and dead looking. When combed out it is as nice and fluffy as if it had just been shampooed. Just get a bottle of liquid silmerine at any drug store, follow the easy directions and you will be simply delighted.

We know women, young in years and full of the zest of living, who are always depressed and unhappy because of a few gray hairs that Farr's Gray Hair Restorer would so easily and harmlessly bring back to their original, natural color.

Farr's is no trouble at all to use—a few minutes in your own room is enough. It leaves the hair glossy, lustrous and soft; it is not sticky and will not rub off or stain the scalp; it is as harmless as so much water, and every bottle is sold with the positive guarantee that it cannot cause the slightest harm or annoyance to the hair or scalp. Price $1.00.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE

BY MY SOOTHING, GENTLE METHODS
No Hospital, Chloroform, Ether or Detention from Business

Those who are suffering with Piles, Fistula, Fissure, or any rectal trouble, should at once avail themselves of my mild, safe and sure treatment. It will pay you many, many times over.

CURE GUARANTEED

Remember, I guarantee a cure in every case of piles or not receive one cent for my services. This is certainly fair to the afflicted, all of whom should come and be cured now. Piles never get well by the use of salves, lotions, etc., but constantly grow worse. Your general health is more and more affected as the piles become larger. Then bleeding piles, blind piles, itching piles and other complications set in. The result is that your general health breaks. You lose time from your daily duties, suffer untold pain, and finally become wholly incapacitated.

FALSE MODESTY

Ladies, do not let false modesty stand in the way of a cure and happiness. I cure almost as many ladies as men, and have ladies' waiting rooms with a lady attendant always present.

BRITISH FORESEE A DEFEAT

LONDON, June 30.—Having won most of Europe's speed contests on land and water in recent years, Americans are going out after air records and according to British aircraft builders the blue ribbon trophy of aviation, the Schneider cup, for which flying boats and seaplanes will compete at Cowes next September is likely to cross the Atlantic unless this Government allows British competitors a substantial subsidy.

Once the trophy crosses the Atlantic it will not likely be brought back for years, the Government is warned, for the cost of sending machines to America to challenge its holders is said to be prohibitive. The most that the British air ministry will do, however, is to recall the fact that an Englishman won the cup last year without a subsidy and it is hoped this can be done again. If an English hydroplane wins, the Government will purchase the machine without the engine for £3000.

France, Italy and America will be the boldest bidders for the flying boat speed record. All are sending navy machines as entries.

STYLE SHOW IN OPEN AIR THEATER FROM AUG. 8 TO 25

The St. Louis Pageant of Fashion (style show) will be held in the Municipal Open Air Theater, August 8 to 25 inclusive. There will be 16 performances.

The Style Show Committee, desiring to foster the interest shown by the Latin-American countries, has inaugurated a publicity campaign throughout Latin-America. A special invitation has been extended to all of the leading merchants, Chambers of Commerce and other commercial organizations to send representatives.

Letters also have been written to the Consuls, American Chambers of Commerce and representatives of the United States Department of Commerce in these countries, asking their co-operation in bringing about a better understanding between the United States and her Latin-American neighbors, and to foster an interchange of commerce and friendly relations.

A THREE-TIME AD COSTS LESS, PRODUCES MORE.

PROMPTLY REPORT FAILURE TO RECEIVE RESULTS.

HIGHER BUILDING COSTS FORM NEW PRICE SKY LINE

Plenty of Capital on Hand, but Question of Values Restricts Sales From Setting New Record.

BUSINESS FOR JUNE IS UP TO AVERAGE

Demand for Flats and Apartments Less Active—Some Construction Has Been Deferred.

By Berry Moore.

While the closing week of June was productive of few transactions out of the ordinary run, many offers were reported for large holdings in both the business and residential districts. The month as a whole was fully up to the standard of its predecessors.

There is a plethora of capital available for real estate investment in St. Louis. There is a wide diversity of ideas, however, as to values, which is restricting, more or less, the volume of transactions, which otherwise might assume unprecedented proportions. A new skyline of prices has been formed with the increased cost of building material and labor.

There is a broad demand for improved business corners, extending indiscriminately to all parts of the city, and including sites available for business purposes, at fair prices. This is also true as to flats and apartments, which constitute attractive forms of investment at prevailing rentals.

The speculative demand for flats and apartments is not so keen at the present stage of prices as heretofore. The upward swing of prices of improved property, however, is only commensurate with that in the building industry, real estate agents declare.

Building Operations Active.

Notwithstanding the adverse situation as to construction costs, building operations are proceeding on a large scale, under the supposition that prices must necessarily remain at present levels, with the rental demand fairly absorbing the supply. Construction of residences and business buildings, on both a small and large scale, not in a few instances, has been deferred, owing to the advanced prices of building material and labor, sooner or later to swell the volume of building operations. Accordingly, any break in the prices of building material will be the signal for renewed activity in the building field.

Chauncey P. Heath returned during the week from a six weeks' tour of the East. Incidentally he made a study of conditions affecting real estate.

"The demand for business property, especially for corners attractively situated as sites for development on a large scale, according to his conclusions, will be the predominant feature in the near future, due to business growth and expansion, which has been retarded more or less by high building costs.

"The movement in St. Louis will have the stimulus of the bond issue, which provides for the expenditure of nearly $88,000,000 for civic and municipal improvements, he says. This will be especially noticeable in the business section east of Grand avenue, where large sections are to be condemned and transformed with plazas and boulevards, he pointed out. The money received by property owners under the condemnation proceedings, will be available for investment again in real estate. Thus the market, which is now surpassing all previous records, will be sustained indefinitely, he contends.

Higher Costs Indicated.

"General building costs throughout the nation are most likely to go higher than present levels with a corresponding increase in rentals, according to a statement issued by S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co., who recently returned from a European trip.

"Analysis of the building situation," he said, "indicates that we cannot look for lower building costs, and the public, therefore, cannot expect lower rentals. On the contrary, fundamentals have not changed since the war, during all of which time [illegible] have steadily risen with a few [illegible] periods of recession. There is a shortage of building through the country and there is also a shortage of workmen in the building crafts."

The Wagner-Grant-Bell Real Estate Co. yesterday purchased on behalf of clients, 150 feet on the east side of Leland avenue, one-half block north of Delmar boulevard in Delmar Garden in University City, which is to become the site of two three-family and one six-family apartment buildings. These operations which will involve a considerable outlay, will be financed by the Wagner-Grant-Bell Co., which has built from 35 to 40 apartment structures in this addition, many of which have been sold from plans before completion, and resold by the purchasesr in not a few instances at substantial profits. The company's sales for the week aggregated $62,000, exclusive of the building projects. It also effected the sale of 6063 Westminster place, an eight-room house, to a client. The company also announces the sale of a three-family apartment building at 746 Kingsland avenue to a client of J. I. Epstein.

14-Room House on Westminster Purchased by Ralph Stanley

RALPH STANLEY has purchased an attractive 14-room house at 4481 Westminster place, from the Fannie S. Ducan heirs. The sale war effected by the Cornet & Zeibig Trust, agent for the Duncan heirs, in connection with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., representing Stanley. The house occupies a lot 60x105. After alterations, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley will occupy the place.

The widening and improving of Watson boulevard to an 80-foot thoroughfare linking all the southwester suburban cities, and the proposed Hampton boulevard, which will intersect Watson boulevard in this subdivision, makes the property particularly desirable. CARDAIS CLOAK CO. LEASES FLOOR OF COLLIER BUILDING

The Cardais Cloak Co., manufacturer of women's garments, now at 806 North Sixth street, has leased the sixth floor of the Collier building, at the northeast corner of Fourth and St. Charles streets, for 10 years. The move was necessitated by expansion of business, the new quarters trebling the company's floor space. John F. Cogswell, o fthe Cornet & Zeibig Trust, represented both parties in the deal.

The Mullin-Walters Realty Company reports the sale of a four-family apartment at 841 Westgate avenue, North Parkview, for Nathan Waldman to William D. Samuels, who purchased as an investment. Both parties in this transaction were represented by the Mullin-Walters Co.

GURNEY COURT HOMES SOLD FROM PLANS DURING WEEK

Others Under Way in Development Made by Owner of Ground.

Construction of a number of additional homes is well under way in Gurney Court, Kingshighway and Magnolia avenue, facing Tower Grove Park. Several of these have been purchased from the plans, while negotiations are pending for others.

The owner of this court has sold none of the lots, preferring to erect all the houses and thus secure an attractive and harmonious whole.

All sodding, placing of trees and shrubbery has been done by the owner. In fact, everything has been done to bring these homes up to the highest standard, which will have the added attraction of facing Tower Grove Park.

The buildings are being erected by the Remmert Investment Co.

J. I. Epstein reports the sale for Norman Sadler and the Dresden Investment Co. of 912 feet of ground on the north and south side of Crest avenue, west of Kingsland, as the site for 24 apartments of two families each, to be constructed at a cost of approximately $360,000. SALES OF $1,000,000 MADE IN MOORLANDS Streets, Sewers and Light and Water Improvements Completed in Large Part of Addition.

Sales aggregating $1,000,000 have been made in the Moorlands to date, according to Shaw & Francis, special agents for the addition, working through the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. The sales ae indicative of the pesent demand for desirable home locations as the Moorlands is restricted exclusively for home purposes and no flats or apartments can be erected.

The Moorlands consists of Moorlands Park, where homes costing from $15,000 to $45,000 are being erected, and Moorlands Addition, which meets the demand of families of moderate means for a restricted place to build moderately priced homes. Shaw & Francis attribute the large number of sales to the fact that the addition is restricted exclusively for homes and to its location in the center of one of the finest residence sections of the city and only a few blocks west of Forest Park.

The addition is building up rapidly with homes. Improvements, including streets, sewers, gas, water and electricity, have been completed in a large part of it. Wydown boulevard, which was extended and paved through the Moorlands, making it a through boulevard from Forest Park to Clayton, is proving to be a most popular drive, and much of the traffic which formerly congested Clayton road is now going over this new boulevard.

BUNGALOW FURNISHED BY STORE ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Charles L. Geraghty, president of the Geraghty Building Corporation, which is erecting homes in St. Louis on a small cash payment plan, said yesterday that one of the bungalows built by the company in Arbor Terrace and furnished by Stix, Baer & Fuller, has been the object of much favorable comment. More than 900 persons inspected this house last week and registered their names, he said.

"This six-room bungalow," Geraghty stated, "has been erected on a general plan, for the purpose of putting up an A-1 building at a minimum cost. A similar type of bungalow on a 50-foot lot can be purchased for $6,000. This includes hardwood floors, beautiful electric light fixtures, plumbing, seven-foot concrete basement, heater, tile floor in bathroom, and many other conveniences.

The bungalows being erected in Darstmoor will be of a different type of construction from these in Arbor Terrace. One of these houses will be completely furnished. Both the Darstmoor and Arbor Terrace sample houses will remain open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. every day, so that prospective buyers may inspect them.

Going to Build?

Experience has taught that it is unwise to attempt to build unless one can establish an equity of at least 25% of the combined value of the ground and building. Don't start unless you have that much. If you build on a smaller margin, you risk almost certain loss of your investment. The place to accumulate your building fund is with your banker, not your builder.

When you are ready to build, accept no contract that does not state specifically: what you are going to get; what it is going to cost you; how you are to pay for it; and WHEN YOU ARE GOING TO GET POSSESSION.

DON'T RELY ON VERBAL PROMISES

Our contracts are specific and plain. If you are planning to build, it will pay you to investigate. We render a complete service; planning, financing and building.

How Much Has Your Rent Been Raised?

Figure up what you have paid landlords, then let us figure with you how, upon a nominal first payment and small monthly installments, you will be an owner and not a renter.

We were the FIRST in the field to combine financing, drafting of plans and supervision of construction.

You do not EVEN have to OWN a lot—we will buy a LOT for you anywhere you desire.

We can build BETTER and at a LOWER cost than any contractor in St. Louis.

We can save you MONEY because we eliminate many overhead charges that other contractors do not.

BUDGET SYSTEM COMPLETED BY CODE CONVENTION

Plan for Consolidation of State Boards, Bureaus and Commissions Sent to Engrossment.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 30.—A constitutional budget system for the State of Missouri was given the finishing touches yesterday by the constitutional convention and sent to engrossment. It is designed for the State government to live within its income and to render overappropriation of the revenue as difficult as possible.

The convention also adopted and sent to engrossment, in the same connection, as another part of the report of the Committee on Executive and Ministerial Departments, two sections ordering the Legislature to consolidate the seventy-odd boards, commissions and bureaus of the State government into 13 State departments.

Both political parties in this State have committed themselves one time or another to the elimination of useless offices and to the adoption of a budget system. Yet the Legislature in 1921 controlled by the Republican party tried to create a State budget system and to consolidate a large number of departments. The Democratic State organization straightway blocked operation of these measures by invoking the referendum against them, which resulted in their defeat at the election in November, 1922.

The Legislature elected in November, 1922, controlled in both houses by Democrats, then proceeded to over-appropriate the State revenue by about $2,000,000, according to estimates by Gov. Hyde, who, by executive veto, lopped that much off bills by which all of the State institutions and other activities had been given about what they wanted.

Under the proposed system, however, the Governor would prepare a budget, being empowered for that purpose to require aid and information of all State officers and department heads setting out money in the treasury, expected revenue for the ensuing biennium and the needs of the State departments, boards, commissions and institutions as presented to him and revised by him. Within 10 days after convening of the Legislature the financial needs of each house, as certified by the presiding officer, and of the judiciary, communicated as the Legislature shall determine would be furnished to the Governor for inclusion without alteration by him in the budget and within five days later the budget and an appropriation bill or bills covering general needs of the State government, would be sent to the Legislature by the chief executive.

Could Not Increase Bills.

The Legislature would have no power to increase any items of those bills, though it could strike out or reduce. The Governor would be allowed to supplement his bills prior to action on them by the Legislature, and after passage by the Legislature they immediately would become law without further action by the Governor.

After these executive appropriation bills were disposed of, the Legislature then could pass other appropriation bills, each of which would be permitted to deal with only one subject, however, and each of which would have to carry the means of raising the revenue to cover contemplated expenditures. Such bills would be subject to gubernatorial veto as at present.

The Governor and State officers would have the right to appear before the Legislature to explain their recommendations and the items of the budget system and the Governor's estimate of expected revenue would have to be accepted by the Legislature as the standard. In consolidating State departments the convention has decided that there shall be a Governor, Secretary of State, State Auditor, State Treasurer, Attorney General and State Board of Education and that all other functions of the State government must be exercised by these and not to exceed seven other departments to be created by the Legislature. All of the horde of boards, bureaus, commissions and similar offshoots of the State government now functioning here and over the State would go out of existence not later than Jan. 14, 1926, their functions having been previously allocated to one or other of the departments referred to.

Would Revise Salaries.

The convention also has decided that the Legislature should revise salaries of State officials, but has provided that after such revision no official shall receive any remuneration other than his salary. At present the salaries of the State officers, admittedly too low, have been increased by subterfuge principally by giving them fees for sitting on three ex-officio boards. This would be stopped under the proposed new section.

These departures were the work of the Committee on Executive and Ministerial Departments whose membership included E. N. Meader, Cassville, chairman; R. A. Pearson, Joplin; M. E. Ford, Maryville; B. H. Dyer, St. Charles; A. V. Lashly, Webster Groves; Joseph B. Shannon and Paul Conwell, Kansas City; Fred H. Eschmann, J. L. London, James Quigley and Felix McAdams, St. Louis.

The Judiciary Committee still is pounding away at its fourth attempt to devise a revision of the Missouri judiciary acceptable to the convention, and probably will report during the latter part of the week. R. E. Culver of St. Joseph is acting chairman in the absence from the State of J. A. Collett, chairman.

11,000 ALIENS ON SHIPS RACING TO ENTER THE U. S.

Large Number Also Massed Along Canadian Border—Many Will Have to Return Due to Limit on Each Nationality.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Eleven thousand immigrants from 42 countries last night impatiently waited on 24 liners in Gravesend Bay for the race into quarantine and admittance to the United States. Scores of aliens who leaned over the ships' rails gazing wistfully at the shores of America are doomed to disappointment, as several quotas will be filled by noon today.

The Italian liner Presidente Wilson, from Trieste, with 776 aliens aboard, was the first of the waiting fleet to cross the imaginary line at Quarantine shortly after midnight. The French steamer Canada, from Piraeus, Greece, with 949 immigrants aboard, was second. The Danish steamship Polonia, from Libau, with 741, was third.

The Presidente Wilson was officially timed at two minutes after midnight, the Canada a minute later and the Polonia at 12:04.

Order of Other Arrivals.

Other ships entered in the following order: King Alexander, British, from Piraeus, with 1328 immigrants; the France, French, from Havre, 878; Stockholm, Swedish, from Gothenburg, 1001; Nieuw Amsterdam, Dutch, Rotterdam, 899; President Adams, United States, London, 245; Washington, United States, Constantinople, 131, and the Aquitania, British, Southampton, 813.

A score more liners are racing across the Atlantic with other thousands of hopeful immigrants who must return to the Near East and Asia after spending the savings of a lifetime on the 5000-mile trip. Each of two ships which arrived in the bay yesterday from Greece had more than enough passengers to fill the quota for that country. All passengers on the comes in second will have to be returned.

The allotments for two continents, Asia and Africa, and six countries, Greece, Palestine, Turkey, Syria, Memal and Albania, will be filled by noon tomorrow, officials said, and people who have traveled all the way here from their distant home will have to return without setting foot on the mainland.

Twenty per cent of the quota from each country will be accepted during each of the first five months. After that, if the annual quota has been filled, no more may enter until next July.

8000 Steerage Passengers.

Eight thousand of the incoming aliens are steerage passengers. How these 8000 will be cared for is a matter of conjecture, immigration officials asserting today that the largest number that could possibly be squeezed into the Government buildings on Ellis Island was 2000. Many of these will have to sleep on benches their first nights in America.

Hundreds of other aliens are traveling first or second class, and these will be passed on and allowed to enter first, as they are not required to go to Ellis Island.

Of the 43 nationalities on the quota list, only one, Iceland will not be represented today. All the others, from Great Britain, with an annual quota of more than 77,000, down to Fiume, with a quota of 71, have citizens on the ships now down the bay.

Reports From Canada.

Reports from Canada stated that a large number of aliens were massing along the border, ready to step across at midnight. This will also cut the number in New York. The Greek quota will be the most quickly exhausted, as it allows for only 659, and the liner King Alexander, which arrived yesterday from Greece, carries almost 1700.

OIL CONCERNS IN RECEIVERSHIP THROUGH KANSAS BANK CRASH

Several Wichita Companies Involved Indirectly in American State Institution's Failure.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., June 30.—A group of Wichita oil companies, known as the Marigold Oil and Refining Co., the Consolidated Oil and Refining Co., and allied concerns, were in the hands of a receiver today as the result of charges of dishonest and irregular financing filed in the United States District Court at Kansas City yesterday by E. J. Powers of Kansas City.

Powers alleges he holds approximately $150,000 (par value) of Consolidated stock.

G. W. Kyle, who for several years was secretary of the Marigold company, has been appointed receiver for the concerns, at the request of creditors. Powers states as primary cause for his action the alleged discrimination between stockholders of the Consolidated company in payment of dividends. Some half-dozen companies now existing and formerly absorbed by existing companies are involved.

Appointment of a receiver for the concerns is said to be an indirect result of the failure 10 days ago of the American State Bank of Wichita. It is said that the bank held a mortgage on a 1500-barrel refinery at Cushing, Ok., to which the Marigold company held a quitclaim deed. The refinery formerly was the property of the Federal Refining Co. of Wichita, mentioned by Phil Drumm, alleged defaulting cashier of the bank, as one of the concerns to which he had lent large sums of money. Drumm is a director in the Marigold and the Consolidated companies.

Indebtedness of the companies will total approximately $300,000, Kyle estimated. Net assets are believed insufficient to cover the debts. An inventory is to be made immediately. Reports that J. Reynolds, president of the companies, had disappeared are untrue, according to Kyle, who said today Reynolds was in California with his family on a vacation and would return soon.

A complete story of the failure of the American State Bank of Wichita is published in the True Life section of today's Post-Dispatch.

EXPLOSION FATAL TO SOLDIER

Lee V. Rawlings, 22 years old, a soldier at Scott Field, died at the hospital there last night of burns suffered June 23 when a keg of powder he was using to signal airships flying from the field was exploded accidentally. He was in charge of a group which went to various parts of the country near the field and ignited small quantities of powder as signals for flyers.

On this occasion they were on a lot adjoining a brewery at the northeast corner of Belleville. One of his companions, thinking Rawlings was through preparing a signal, touched it off by an electric firing apparatus and a keg full blew up. Rawlings was burned all over the body. His body will be sent to his home in Pennsylvania.

PARIS, June 23.—Cardinal L of Rheims demands that the French Republic contribute directly to the support of the Roman Catholic cle gy of France. He has obtained the active co-operation of Henry Bordeaux, member of the French Academy. Bordeaux is pushing the in a series of articles appearing in the Echo de Paris under the title "The Great Pity of the Priests of France."

"It is a grave and dolorous problem," says Cardinal Lucon, "the deplorable status imposed on priests of France will have fatal sequences on the recruiting of clergy and eventually on the ual life and moral level of the try.

"Despoiled of its temporal possessions in 1906, the church has accepted its sentence with courage and resignation. The clergy, deprived of the modest subvention from the which provided its daily bread, mained unhesitatingly at its post. The parish priest is now even deprived of the right to free residence in the rectory because it is classed as property of the commonwealth. Often the pastor lives far from the church in a miserable room in surroundings which detract from the dignity of his holy vocation. priests are aging prematurely misery, and who will follow them?

"The Catholic clergy is tional clergy; if not in law nevertheless, in fact. It does wish to elevate itself pretentiously above the other clergies, but the remains. Our population feels foundly the benefit of the presence of the clergy in its midst and not consent to get along without "Opponents will say, no that the church and state are separated and that the state can no longer subvention the priests—religion is no longer a public service.

"However * * * the must pay its debts. The allowances paid by the French Government to the clergy were not gratuities it was permitted to suppress at will. These allowances were an indemnity which the state formally committed to pay in 1789 and 1801 when it took the temporal possessions of the church at that time. The was made with the Holy See in return for its consent to abandon to the seized possessions of the church. The state must still pay this debt, although it has separated itself formally from the church."

X. Y. Z.—Methods of analyzing and testing minerals may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Mines, Labor Department, Washington, D. C., or from the Bureau of Standards in the Commerce Department, Washington, D. C.

DR. S.—The method for removing ink and indelible spots from delicate fabric was published in the paper of June 17, under the signature "J. J. W." Buttermilk is also a harmless and often effective agent in the work of removing ink stains. Soak the spotted fabric over night in lopper milk, or if you can get it, very sour buttermilk. Next day rinse it twice in clear soft water and lay it in the sun, wetting it hourly with lemon juice. If the ink spot is not entirely gone repeat the process of soaking, rinsing and sunning.

K. S. D.—The program which was broadcasted over the K. S. D. the evening of May 23 was the music program from the Missouri Theater. The program follows: (1) Missouri Grand Orchestra selections, "Egemont," "Lis'ning on Some Radio." (2) Stuart Barrie performing at the organ. (3) Cliff Nazarro with George Hall and his Society Orchestra playing "Swinging Down the Lane," "I Love Me," "Kamenostrow," "Lost," "You've Gotta See Mama," "Hoosier Blues," "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," and other orchestral and organ selections.

BEE MAN.—The secretary of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, Jefferson City, will tell you how to rid the bee hives of ants. The following hints for the raising of honey bees are suggested. The adequate stores for bee hives should be more than 15 pounds. A laying queen with 1000 eggs laid per day is a good starting record. Nine full frames of brood combs is sufficient room for the queen to lay eggs (if she speeds up to 1500 or 2000 eggs a day in the best honey flow and it takes 23 days before all the bees leave their cells, it requires 2000x23 divided by 5600 cells per full frame excepting corners). If the bees have not enough stores, feed them sugar syrup. If the queen is lost or makes no brood, replace her by buying a new Italian queen. If you lack room, add more supers as needed. If you know what your hives weigh empty, you can tell how full they are by lifting them from the rear end with one hand.

O. H.—Three rules stand out in the directions for keeping a house free from flies: cleanliness, darkness and coolness. Open the windows wide, early in the morning before sunrise. Open the outer doors also and about 8 o'clock close them. Keep the inside of the house shaded by awnings, etc. The house should also be spick and span. The odor of lavender is obnoxious to the fly and a few drops upon a sponge will warn off the winged trespassers from the table upon which it is laid. You might get rid of hundreds a day by making a syrup of brown sugar, adding tartar emetic and setting saucers filled with it about the room. A syrup of sugar and water mixed with black pepper is also fatal to them. Cold green tea made strong, left to get cold on the leaves, then strained off, and sweetened inordinately is poisonous to flies. Set the syrupy mixture around the room in small saucers. It acts in a few minutes upon the pests.

R. B.—President Harding started in life as a printer's devil in Marion, Ohio, and worked there as a printer, reporter, circulation manager, business manager, editor and publisher before he entered politics. He is the first professional journalist to enter the White House. He was educated at the Ohio Central University. He was a member of the State Senate in 1900-1904, Lieutenant-Governor from 1904 to 1906. In 1914, he was elected Republican member of the United States Senate for the term 1915-1921. At the Republican National Convention in 1912 he nominated Mr. Taft for the presidency and he was chairman of the Republican convention in 1916, making the keynote speech. He won a certain reputation in Congress as an orator, but was not generally known as a prominent figure in politics, so his nomination for President was a surprise to the country at large. Harding's father was a country doctor whose forebears came from Scotland. Before going to Ohio, the Hardings were residents of Pennsylvania, where some of them were massacred by Indians. Others fought in the Revolutionary War. The mother of Warren, Mrs. Phoebe Dickerson was descended from an old-time Holland-Dutch family, the Van Kirks.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

E. S. H.—See answer to "A Reader."

H E. R.—You would need a merchant's license to carry a stock of postage stamps of foreign countries and of the United States.

D. G.—The law requires parties to give their true names when obtaining a marriage license. However, a marriage under an assumed name is a legal marriage.

A MOTHER—If the man promised to marry the girl she can sue him for breach of promise. If he seduced her under promise of marriage she could have him prosecuted and by commencing a prosecution she might induce him to marry her.

A FATHER—(1) The father can ask the court for the custody of the children, even though the divorce was granted by default. (2) The amount which the father would have to give the children would depend upon the circumstances of the case and upon the ages of the children.

A READER—(1) All Missouri bonus claims up to 111,000 were paid, then the bonus money was exhausted. A special election will be held about September 1, for the purpose of voting on an additional bond issue to pay the bonus claims which have not yet been paid. (2) The original Missouri bonus bonds were sold a year ago.

CAR OWNER—You will have to apply for a permit to operate a service car or taxicab at the City Hall, Street and Sewer department. They will require you to procure a City license from the license office. You then apply at room 410, City Hall, for your State automobile license and chauffeur's license and you will also need a Federal license, room 242, Customs House, Ninth and Olive streets. (2) No special permit would be necessary to operate over the Municipal bridge, you can operate to the end of the east approach on a St. Louis license. The car owner must have a chauffeur's license if he intends to drive his machine as a service automobile.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

E. R. S.—Sleeping on the ear will not cause deafness, the trouble is in the ear. You should consult an aurist.

WORRIED.—Worms will cause itching. The remedy for worms depends upon the kind of worms present.

C. S.—Do not attempt to treat yourself in such a case as you describe. You should consult a physician. You can be treated in any hospital for the trouble.

P. J. H.—Change of life is no doubt present in your case. We suggest 15 to 20 drops of fluid extract of ergot in water three or four times a day.

BOBBIE.—We do not know the preparation for curling hair that you mention; but we think such applications questionable, to say the least.

JULIA.—The stiff knee should be treated by a therapeutic lamp and massage. If a stamped addressed envelope is enclosed, requesting the name of a competent operator, it will be furnished.

A SUNDAY READER.—We do not think that the trouble you describe is due to the mercury that you have taken. The location of the cause would necessitate an examination and complete study of the case. Among the possibilities for the trouble are weak or fallen arches of the foot and pus absorption from some pus pocket.

FIVE KILLED WHEN STEAM FLOODS FIREROOM OF DESTROYER

Three Others Injured When Pipes on the Williamson Are Broken in Torpedo Tests.

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 30.—Five lives were lost aboard the destroyer Williamson today through the flooding of the fire room with steam and hot water. Three other members of the fire room crew were seriously injured and it is feared that two of them cannot recover. The dead are:

Doc Abernathy Millican, fireman, third class, Fairfield, Ala.

Harry C. Lincoln, fireman, third class, Newbern, N. C.

Clifford Latchford, fireman, third class, Lebanon, Ohio.

Joseph A. Giaquinto, water tender, second class, Lockport, N. Y.

Louis R. Blanchard, fireman, first class, Springfield, Mass.

The Williamson went out from this port early today to test torpedoes on the long range outside Narragansett Bay. Preparations were being made to fire the first torpedo when the accidental closing of a ventilator cover turned back the heated air escaping from the fireroom. The pressure caused the ventilator blower to fly to pieces and the steam and hot water pipes were broken. The eight men in the fireroom had no chance to escape.

At great risk, Lieutenant-Commander H. E. Knauss, in command of the Williamson, and other officers and members of the crew rushed into the fireroom and took out the injured men and the bodies.

Nine Seamen Hurt in Blast Aboard Cruiser.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—Nine seamen were seriously burned in an explosion today on the scout cruiser Richmond at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. All are in the naval hospital.

The cause of the explosion has not been determined, but some of the officers at the yard believed it was due to hydrogen gas which, leaking into a washroom where the seamen were congregated, became ignited and blew up. The washroom is beneath the radio room forward, and it was thought the gas leaked from auxiliary batteries.

PREACHER'S DUAL LIFE IN TWO STATES CAUSES LOSS OF JOB

Executive Committee of Georgia Farmers' Union Ousts the Rev. Roy E. Davis From Presidency.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., June 30.—The Rev. Roy E. Davis, president of the Georgia Farmers' Union, was removed from office at a meeting of the Executive Committee of that organization here late today. The committee alleged that it had been found that Davis had been leading a dual life in Texas and Georgia.

Its investigators, the committee stated, had learned that Davis had been convicted of the charge of cheating and swindling in Wise County, Tex., in 1917; that he came to Georgia and took the name of "Prof. Lon Davis, singer," later becoming pastor of a church at Acworth, Ga.; that he was removed by the congregation "for conduct unbecoming a minister," and that he had deserted a wife and four children in Texas.

These charges, it was stated, along with others, were substantiated by affidavits and photographs.

The committee announced that it had called the meeting at Macon with a view of giving Davis a hearing, but that he failed to appear.

The executive committee announced that the investigation into "the past" of the Rev. Roy E. Davis was under way before his arrest in South Georgia, a week ago on a charge of criminal libel. Davis is under bond now, it is stated, in connection with that case, the alleged libel being an attack upon the character of a white woman in the "Brick Bat," a publication at Meigs, Ga., of which Davis was editor.

Suits Against "Tony" Foley for $4430 Reset.

Two civil suits against "Tony" Foley for the recovery of alleged gambling losses were continued for the fourth time in the Circuit Court at Clayton last week. The amounts sued for total $4430. The resetting on each occasion was "by consent," of plaintiff and defendant.

Seven similar suits have been filed, in which the plaintiffs' losses at dice and betting on horse races aggregating $9114, are stated to have occurred at Foley's establishment during the first six months of last year. Three of these have been dismissed, two by the plaintiff and the third by the court because of failure to plead on a demurrer. Costs of $23 were paid by the defendant in one case and by the plaintiff in the others. The others are pending in court, after numerous continuances. The Wellston Hotel, at 6128 Easton avenue, fully described in the petitions as a "miniature Monte Carlo," was raided last September by Deputy Sheriffs.

U. S. WHISKY EXPORTS REDUCED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—The caution with which the prohibition unit is moving in its supervision over whisky exports was shown today by an announcement that during the last few months application for the export of more than 1,000,000 gallons have been either refused or held up for investigation. During the same period the permits granted covered only about 70,000 gallons. Most of the applications denied were for the export of whisky to English, Canadian or Cuban ports, and in many cases officials here withheld their consent because of a fear that the liquor would find its way back into the United States.

"BUYERS' STRIKE" CAUSING LULL IN BUILDING ACTIVITY

Seventeen Projects Totaling $13,035,000 Being Held Up Because of High Cost of Labor and Materials.

St. Louis, in spite of an unprecedented building boom this year, is experiencing a "buyers' strike" against high wages of artisans and high prices of materials. The result is noticeable in the falling off of building permits for the last month, compared with previous months.

Seventeen important projects with a total estimated "pre-advance" cost of $13,035,000 are being held up because of the high cost, a Post-Dispatch canvass yesterday showed. The cost figures are based on estimates made before the present rise began. These projects are:

Masonic Temple	$3,000,000
Jefferson Hotel addition	2,000,000
Jewish Hospital	1,500,000
Mullanphy Hospital	1,500,000
North Side high school	1,500,000
Unnamed project	1,250,000
Unnamed project	750,000
United Hebrew Temple	400,000
Lincoln school	250,000
Notre Dame church	200,000
Manufacturing plant	200,000
Town Club	175,000
Monkey habitat	140,000
Three residences	110,000
Apartment house	60,000

Several of those included have been delayed for the last year or more, awaiting a favorable market, although there was a sufficient price slump to start a building boom here last year. Some of these projects cannot be named specifically, because their backers are not ready to reveal plans.

"Buyers' Strike" Believed to Be On.

It is known that many lesser projects, including numerous dwellings, are being delayed on account of the cost, though detailed information is not available in a canvass. Some architects here deny that there is a "buyers' strike," a few think one is coming, but the majority interviewed are of the opinion it is on in full force. Building contractors have been expressing fear of a nation-wide "buyers' strike" for several months.

Prevalent opinion is that there will be some recession from the present price level. The advance of material prices is felt to be, partly at least, seasonal, with a corresponding decline, which has already been noted in the lumber market, looked for. There is a doleful shaking of heads, however, when the question of the peak wages artisans are receiving and the amount of work they do in a day is brought up.

7153 Permits in Six Months.

Building permits issued in St. Louis for the first six months of this year numbered 7153, for a total stated value of $20,312,548, which is less than actual cost. In the same period last year there were 5981 permits, for $11,152,826. In this connection the following table of permit totals for recent years is interesting:

1918	$ 6,352,582
1919	20,538,460
1920	17,694,078
1921	16,631,305
1922	25,202,806

With 1923 but half over, permits amounting to about 80 per cent of those for 1922 have been issued. The biggest year's total of permits in St. Louis previously was $29,938,693, in 1906. In the early months of this year permits were more than double those for the corresponding months of 1922; then in April and May they were less than double; this month they were $2,792,050, compared with $2,436,755 for June of last year.

Building Commissioner Milligan of the Board of Education has figured that the badly-needed North Side high school, for which it is proposed to spend $1,500,000, would cost about $1,850,000 at the present scale, but he believes a contract can be let for the structure at the lower figure by winter.

It is also proposed to spend $1,500,000 for the new Jewish hospital. Bids taken for this recently ran around $2,000,000. The project was then withdrawn from the market temporarily.

Comments By Building Men.

Discussing the situation, Tom P. Barnett, architect, said:

"The speculator is the real cause of putting the building business on the bum, not the material man or workman. The speculator's willingness to pay any price to have his apartments and other things erected, so long as he can continue to sell his bonds, is the root of the trouble. No legitimate building business can go forward today, while they are putting up this kind of apartment houses. There is a prominent contractor in my office now, who agrees with me."

"The cause," said Walter Rathmann of Klipstein & Rathmann, architects, "of high wages for artisans is the shortage of men. The industry needs more apprentices." Many others in the construction industry have agreed in this view.

"We," said R. E. Maritz of Maritz & Young, architects, "do high-class residential work, and the quotations for erection we are getting this year are about the same as last year. The price of building in the last five years has just seesawed up and down a little."

Albert B. Groves, architect, declared it was wrong to speak of "material" costs, and that virtually all the expense in connection with materials was for the labor of preparing them, hence that "labor" was the only factor to be considered.

President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service said that the only non-essential building planned by the city at present was the proposed monkey habitat at the Forest Park Zoo, and that this would be delayed.

E. J. McMahon, executive secretary of the Master Builders' Association, estimated the total cost of construction here had advanced, roughly, about 8 per cent since Jan. 1, and that artisans' wages had gone up from 15 to 25 per cent in that time. Commissioner Milligan estimated the total advance in this period at about 35 per cent.

Statements on Materials Prices.

Estimates and statements of a number of architects as to the rise in material prices since January follows: J. L. Mauran, "A material increase;" Tom P. Barnett, "About 12 per cent;" Wilbur T. Trueblood, "A little increase;" E. S. Klein of La Beaume & Klein, "Not over 15 per cent;" James P. Jamieson, "At Least 10 to 15 per cent, for a wild guess;" Preston J. Bradshaw, "About 15 per cent;" John I. Haynes, "Twelve to 15 per cent;" Angelo B. M. Corrubia, "Thirty per cent;" Henri Rush, "One and one-half per cent a month;" Walter L. Rathman, "Ten to 15 per cent."

Department of Commerce statistics for various important building materials show the price changes graphically. The average is given in the following table, treating the pre-war cost as basic or "100":

1913	100.0
Peak, April, 1920	299.7
January, 1923	187.6
February	192.4
March	197.8
April	204.3
May	201.5

June figures are not prepared, but it is believed a further slight decline will be shown for this month.

Wages of building workmen here in general are at the post-war peak scale, with some instances of even higher rates, of which the most notable is the wage of $14 a day recently granted plasterers after an unsuccessful lockout. This is $1.75 an hour, the highest building wage in the country. Bricklayers and stone masons are receiving $1.50 an hour. An average for other of the more important crafts is about $1.25 an hour. Increased wages are said to be general throughout the country. Most of the crafts here received increases during the spring.

AIRMEN AWAIT PRESIDENT'S ACTION ON ADDITIONAL PAY

Comptroller-General's Recommendation Would Deny 50 Per Cent Extra to Pilots Not Flying.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Officers of the Army Air Service on duty at headquarters here are awaiting with concern action by President Harding on regulations carrying into effect the provision of law under which pilots receive 50 per cent additional pay for flying.

Some weeks ago regulations were drafted which apparently carry out the intent of Congress to give additional pay to all flying officers in recognition of the extra hazard involved. Executive orders were issued carrying the regulations into effect. Comptroller-General McCarl later addressed a communication to the President containing several suggested amendments to the regulations which, if put into effect, would deny flying pay to pilots assigned to administrative work. This would cover all pilots on duty in the offices of the chief of the air service.

President Harding referred the suggested amendments to Secretary of War Weeks, who in turn sought the views of Major-General Patrick, chief of the air service. Gen. Patrick reported that if the additional compensation was denied officers assigned to administrative duties irreparable harm would result, since these men, including some of the most experienced pilots in the service, would lose touch with the art of flying, and the effect on morale would be disastrous.

Secretary Weeks approved the strong recommendations of Gen. Patrick, which reached the President just before he left for Alaska. All pilots doing administrative work are required to make a stipulated number of flights every month in order to be available for active flying service at all times. McCarl apparently seeks to construe the legislative provision as granting additional pay only to flying personnel in the field.

JUDGES OF INDUSTRIAL COURT ASKED TO CEASE DRAWING PAY

Suggestion of Gov. Davis, If Carried Out, Would Automatically End Workers' Tribunal.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 30.—The three judges of the Industrial Court will convene here Monday to consider a letter received today from Gov. J. M. Davis asking them to refrain from drawing their salaries and thereby voluntarily abolish the court.

In his letter the Governor said:

"I suggest to you, and invite you to voluntarily reduce the expenses of Court of Industrial Relations by refraining from drawing your stated yearly salaries, since you have no duties to perform such as was contemplated when the salaries were voted, and substitute in place of the yearly salary a meeting for one day in each month for general purposes of supervision, for which service you might accept $15 per day and actual expenses; that you leave at your rooms one clerk, to be steadily employed, to receive general information and keep in touch with the general labor situation as reported by the various inspectors and workers under your charge."

The Governor gave as his reason for this suggestion the recent United State Supreme Court decision which, he states, "Seems to imply that every power andd uty of the court, save what is covered in other statutes and imposed upon other departments of the State government, has been taken away."

HALF-BREED CHIEF OF KAWS HERE TO ADVANCE CLAIMS

Moses Bellmard Completing Plans Toward Obtaining Government Recognition of Debt Owed Tribe.

Moses Bellmard, Indian Chief, college graduate, and multi-millionaire in the making, was in St. Louis yesterday to complete plans toward forcing the Government's recognition of the debt owed the Kaw tribe of Indians, which climbs high into the millions.

Aside from being the business agent of what will soon be the wealthiest group of people in the world, Bellmard is interested in himself. He is not the buffalo-nickel type of Indian. His erect, dignified carriage, dark eyes, sun-tinged complexion, and black hair—its tendency to curl being inherited from his French mother—are the only indications that his father was a pure-blooded Kaw.

After his father had won his fight to take his children from the Kaw mission school with its old, rusty inefficiency, to which all Indian children were committed by Government orders until they were 18 years old, Bellmard was sent to Wentworth Military Academy at Lexington, Mo., where he played fullback on the football team. He was graduated with honors, and from there went to St. Benedict's College in Atchison, Kan., completing the four years work in two. He then came to St. Louis to attend a local business college, and while here met and married Miss Margaret Miller, then attending Soldan High School. During the war he served as captain in the 14[illegible] Infantry, and commanded a company composed entirely of Indians, and was twice wounded.

Deeply interested in his tribal history, he told a Post-Dispatch reporter how, long ago, after certain members of the Osage tribe when the tribe lived in Missouri, advised against a contemplated war, they were driven across the Missouri River near where Kansas City now stands, the pursuers calling after them "Kanza, Kanza," or "Kaw," which means coward. Kansas, it is said, derives its name from this event.

Sold Land to Government.

The outcasts settled in Kansas and lived there until 1873, when they sold their reservation to the Government for the appraised value of $1.25 an acre. They maintain they were paid 10 cents an acre which went to buy their present land in Oklahoma, and that there is still due them a total of $1.15 an acre. The land involved is in Morris County, Kan., and east and north of Topeka and along the Kaw river as far as Kansas City.

They treked to Oklahoma and settled next to their former brothers, the Osages, who have since become deliriously wealthy from oil interests. The Kaws, long known as the "poor relations" in the Indian tribes, scratched out a pitiful living just a few feet away from their bronzed friends who slid to and fro in $5000 motor cars. The Osages decided to bury the hatchet, and in 1922, Bacon Rind, a former Osage chieftain, offered to lend the Kaws a sufficient sum to send a delegation to Washington to press their claims.

Then things began happening. Complying with a request made by the Government, the Kaws assembled to elect a chief, the first since toothless old Washunga [illegible] to death in 1908. They elected Mrs. Lucy Tayiah Eads, full-blooded Indian and granddaughter by adoption to Washunga, as nominal chief. A squaw in control for the first time in history! But she was one of the "new women," a college graduate and one with years of experience as a trained nurse. As she was the mother of seven children, and could not give all her time to tribal management, The made Bellmar, a half-breed, also for the first time in history, assistant chief and business manager.

Not a year later, last March in fact, the first "gusher" came in, spouting liquid gold far down the hillside before it could be capped. Since then 66 others have sprung up, each seemingly richer than the last. Motor cars and diamonds are not rarities in the land of the Kaws any more. One young man, Emmet Thompson, who married Bellmard's cousin, is getting an allowance of $30,000 a month.

Some Not Fortunate.

Others in the tribe have not been so fortunate, and that is one reason for Bellmard's coming to St. Louis. As things stand now, the owner of the land on which the well is drilled derives all the income, while his next-door neighbor lives in the same poverty as of old. The Kaws insist there is a treaty with the Government which says that in event of the discovery of oil, gas or minerals all members of the reservation shall share alike. As there are but [illegible] members of the once powerful tribe, this treaty, if abided by, would make them all wealthy beyond words, and although the little band is at the lag end of its existence, it would, at any rate, go down "trailing clouds of glory."

Crawls on River Bed and Saves Boy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSON, Ky., June 30.—Eugene Hyden, a boy swimmer, saved the life of Jack Crain, 10 years old, when the latter had sunk for the third time in the Kentucky River near here and was on the bottom of the stream. Hyden treaded water and crawled on the river bed about 100 feet until he found Crain. Although nearly exhausted Hyden crawled out with the boy, who was unconscious.

LUCKY EITHER WAY.

THE Memphis Commercial-Appeal, in commenting on errors in grammar made by magazines, takes exception to an error in construction occurring in a story in which a character is made to say: "You will be lucky if you escape with only marrying one."

A man says this to another who is being beseiged by two ladies, and the Commercial-Appeal thinks he intended to say: "You will be lucky if you escape with marrying only one."

Now, after considering the question, it seems likely that there is more in Mr. J. H. Connelly's remark than is dreamed of in the philosophy of the Commercial-Appeal.

The history of matrimony gives color to the belief that, to whichever one of the ladies the gentleman might unite himself, he would be lucky if he escaped with only marrying her. Getting married is the easiest part of the affair. It is what comes afterward that makes a man sometimes wish a wolf had carried him into the forest when he was a little boy. It takes only a little nerve, a black coat, from five to ten dollars and a girl to marry. Women are sometimes so capricious and unreasonable that they demand that a man stay around afterwards, and board and clothe them, and build fires, and chop wood, and rock the chickens out of the garden, and tell the dressmaker when to send in her bill again.

We would like to read the story in question and find out whether the man was lucky enough to only marry the lady, or whether she held onto him afterward and didn't let him escape.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

"DEAR EDITOR: I want to ask a question in arithmetic. I am a schoolboy and am anxious to know the solution. If my pa, who keeps a grocery on Mills street, sells 4 cans of tomatoes for 25 cents, and 22 pounds of sugar, and 1 can of extra evaporated apples and 3 cans of superior California plums, for only"——

There! There! little boy; that will do. Tell your pa to come around and see the advertising manager, who is quite an arithmetician and will doubtless work the sum for you at the usual rates.

JIM.

"THANKS, young man, I'll sit awhile,
And rest while Betsy trades a bit.
We've druv 'bout twenty miles today;
I'm real tired. Just think of it!

"Me a-restin' on this here bench
'Mongst all these trees and flowers and sich;
A park, you say? It's a nice place
To drive your team and stop and hitch.

"Farm? Yes, we've got a good one;
Two hundred acres as fine as you'll see,
We're purty well fixed as to worldly things,
We've worked hard for it, Betsy and me.

"But there's one thing keeps me mighty sad,
We can't get over it, night or day:
Never an hour we don't think of Jim—
Ten years now, since he went away.

"Dead? No; just got mad and left.
Never a word have we heard from him;
Ten years of waitin', hopin' and prayin',
Jest fur one more sight of Jim.

"Jest about your height, young man;
Slender and straight as a stalk of corn;
Good as gold, but temper quick—
But, then, he was mine and Betsy's firstborn.

"I think if I could get hold of Jim's hand,
And kinder explain the words I said,
He'd know his old dad's heart would ever
Be just the same—but I guess Jim's dead.

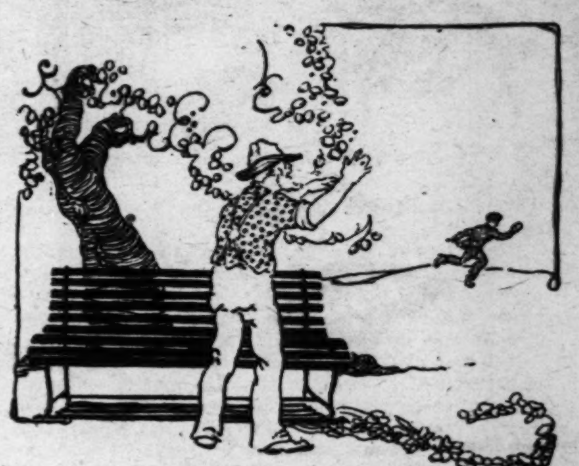
"Or he never—what's that you say, sir?
You Jim! My God! It can't be true!
Come to my heart, boy—closer—closer—
Can it be Jim—oh, can it be you?

"Run quick and call your mother;
She's in the store—come quick again;
I'll wait for you. Here! Police! Police!
That young feller's got my watch and chain!"

NO HELP FOR IT.

"JOHN," said a Houston grocer the other day to one of his clerks. "You have been a faithful and competent clerk, and in order to show my appreciation I have decided to take you into partnership. From this time on you are to have a share in the business and be a member of the firm."

"But, sir," said John, anxiously, "I have a family to support. I appreciate the honor, but I fear I am too young for the responsibility. I would much rather retain my present place."



"Stop that feller! He's got my watch!"

"Can't help it," said the grocer. "Times are hard and I've got to cut down expenses if I have to take every clerk in the house into the firm."

REASONS FOR UNEASINESS.

WHEN Sousa's band was in Houston a week or so ago, Prof. Sousa was invited to dine with a prominent citizen who had met him while on a visit to the North.

This gentleman, while a man of high standing and reputation, has made quite a fortune by the closest kind of dealing. His economies in the smallest matters are a fruitful subject of discussion in his neighborhood, and one or two of his acquaintances have gone so far as to call him stingy.

After dinner Prof. Sousa was asked to play upon the piano, of which instrument he is a he did so, performing some lovely Beethov and compositions by the best composers.

While playing a beautiful adagio mov minor key, the professor caught sight of casting uneasy glances out of the window pearing very restless and worried. Houston gentleman came over to the touched Prof. Sousa on the shoulder.

"Say," he said, "please play something Give us a jig or a quickstep—something jolly."

"Ah," said the professor, "this sad music your spirits, then?"

"No," said the host, "I've got a man in the yard sawing wood by the day, and he's been time to your music for the last half-hour."

THE PEWEE.

IN THE hush of the drowsy afternoon,
When the very mind on the breast of Lies settled, and hot white tracery
Of the shattered sunlight filters free
Through the unstinted leaves to the pied sward
On a dead tree branch sings the saddest
Of the birds that be,
'Tis the lone Pewee.
Its note is a sob, and its song is pitched
In a single key like a soul bewitched
To a mournful minstrelsy.

"Pewee, Pewee," doth it ever cry;
A sad, sweet minor threnody
That threads the aisles of the dim hot
Like a tale of a wrong or a vanished love,
And the fancy comes that the wee dun
Perchance was a maid, and her heart stirred
By some lover's rhyme
In a golden time,
And broke when the world turned false
And her dreams grew dark and her faith cold,
In some fairy far-off clime,
And her soul crept into the Pewee's
And forever she cried with a strange
For something lost, in the afternoon;
For something missed from the lavish
For the heart that died in the long ago;
For the livelong pain that pierceth so.

Thus the Pewee cries,
While the evening lies
Steeped in the languorous, still sunshine,
Rapt, to the leaf and the bough and the
Of some hopeless paradise.

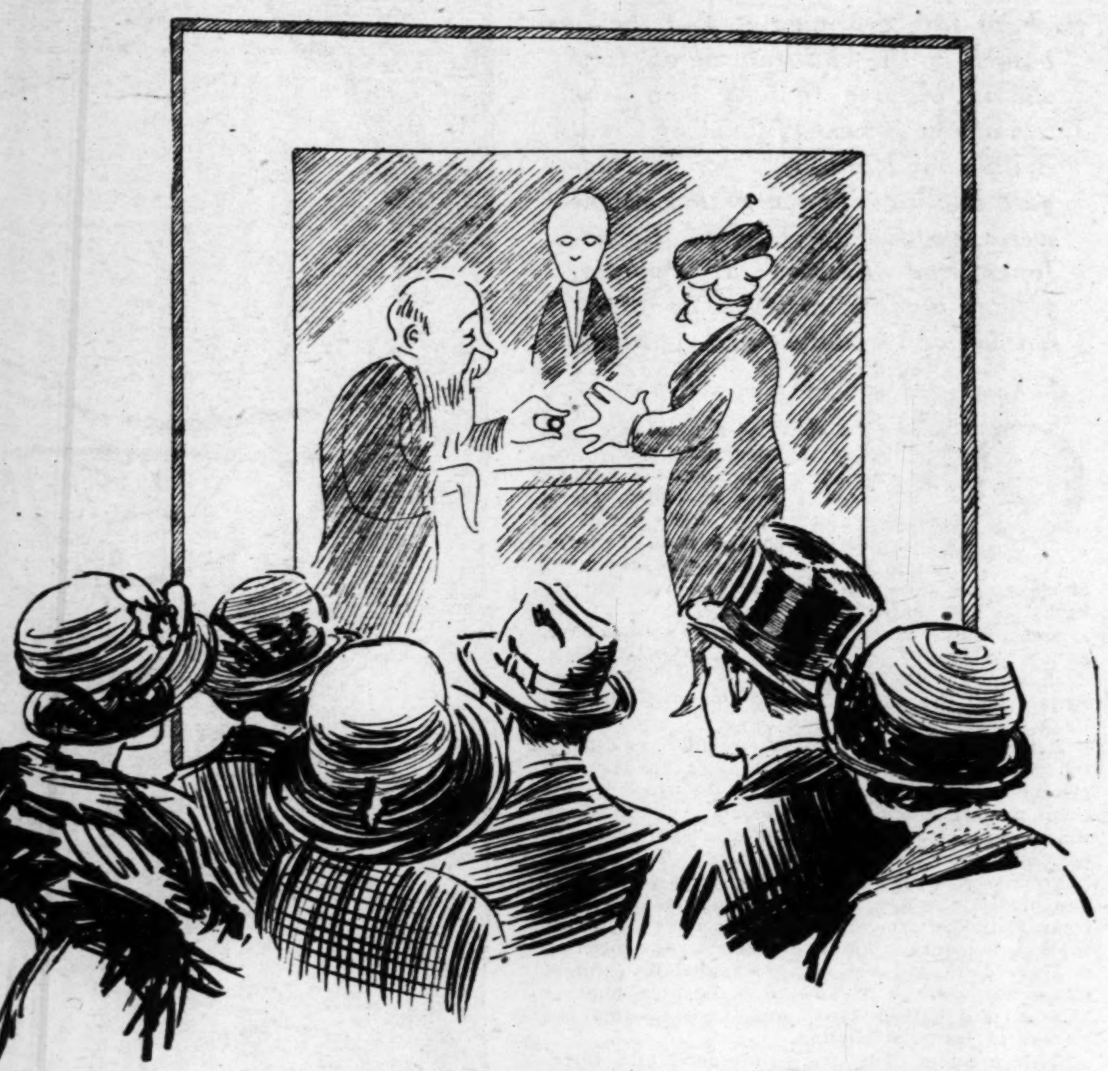
CARTOONS OF ROYALTY THAT SHOCKED LONDON

x Beerbohm, famous satirist, pictured the Prince of Wales as decrepit old man marrying his landlady's daughter—King Edward VII represented as a pudgy angel with wings and a harp — Everybody wrote to the newspapers about it—Supply of adjectives exhausted and adverb reserves called up—Beerbohm saved the day by having the cartoons withdrawn :: ::



The satiric drawing of the Prince of Wales was the center of an indignant throng.

ALL of the adjectives in the English dictionary have been mobilized since Max Beerbohm, greatest of British cartoonists, dared to exhibit alleged comic drawings caricaturing the Prince of Wales and his grandfather, the late King Edward. Thousands wrote letters to their favorite newspapers protesting against the Beerbohm cartoons. Such was the weight of public opinion that the objectionable pictures were withdrawn from exhibition at the Leicester Galleries in London after they had been on view only one day.

Editors and writers of letters to the papers characterized the drawings as "in exceedingly questionable taste," "astonishing," "execrable," "exasperating," "offensive," "disloyal," "shocking to the sensibilities," "in the worst possible taste," "a miscarriage of wit" and "unpardonably impudent." These and hundreds of other phrases and adjectives were bad enough, but what must have hurt Beerbohm worst of all was the curt comment of one editor that the pictures in question were "not funny."

There were gasps of astonishment when loyal Britons with respect for traditions and all that sort of thing saw the great cartoonist's caricature of the Prince of Wales.

The Prince is represented as a wretched old man with white hair, standing in a forlorn attitude before a table in a register office, and looking disconsolately at his "bride"—a woman in gaudy clothes. His suit of coarse worsted hangs on him like a sack.

The caricature is called "Long Choosing and Beginning Late," and down the side Mr. Max Beerbohm has inscribed the following explanation, which purports to be an extract from the Times dated Nov. 10, 1972:

"An interesting wedding was quietly celebrated yesterday at the Ealing Registry Office, when Mr. Edward Windsor was united to Miss Flossie Pearson.

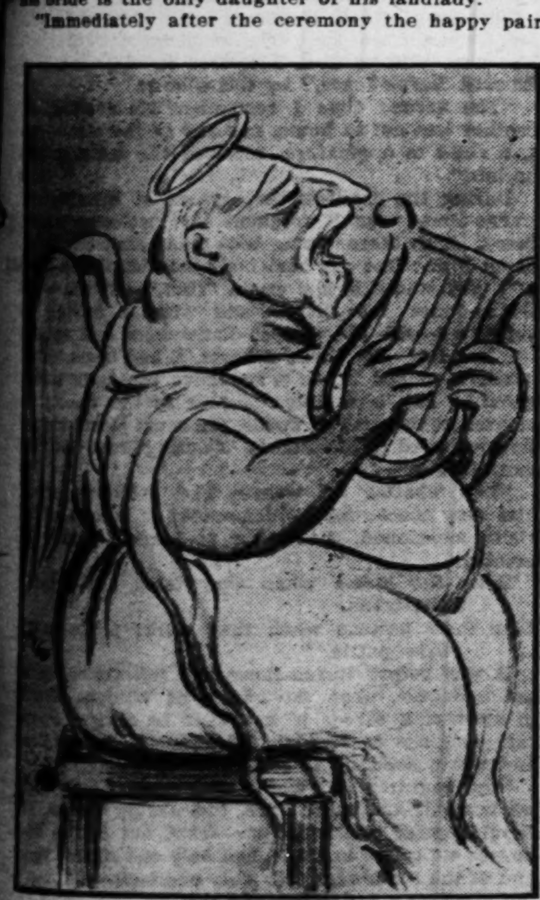
"The bridegroom, as many of our elder readers will recall, was at one time well known as 'heir-apparent' of the late 'King' George.

"He has for some years been residing at 'Balmoral,' 85, Acacia terrace, Lenin avenue, Ealing, and his bride is the only daughter of his landlady.

"Immediately after the ceremony the happy pair traveled to Ramsgate, where the honeymoon will be spent.

"Interviewed later in the day, the aged mother-in-law confessed that she had all along been opposed to the union, because of the disparity between the ages of the two parties—the bride being still on the sunny side of 40.

" 'I had always,' she said, 'hoped that my Flossie was destined to make a brilliant match.' Now that the knot was tied, however, the old lady was evidently resigned to the fait accompli. 'I believe,' she said, 'that Mr. Windsor will make a good husband for my girl, for I must say that a nicer, quieter gentleman or more pleasant spoken never lodged under my roof.' "



This representation of the late King Edward VII evoked storms of censure.

Those who had been bowled over by the sight of this caricature of the Prince of Wales received the coup de grace when they saw the one of King Edward VII. In this picture Edward is represented as a fat-man exhibit at a fair, clad in a scant white garment, the arms red and bulging. In his hands a lyre is clasped and a cheap gilt ring hangs like a halo over his head as if suspended by invisible wires. Wings sprout from between his shoulderblades and the title of the picture is "Angel Edward."

There was one noted exception to the disapproving chorus.

Sir Gerald du Maurier arrived with Lady du Maurier shortly afternoon, when the room was not so crowded. He looked at only one or two of the drawings before someone took him across to where a silent group of people stood before the cartoon of the Prince of Wales.

The famous actor fixed his eyeglass, gazed at the picture critically for a moment or two, and then leaned forward to read the long, closely scrawled inscription at the side. Then he laughed heartily.

"I think it is terribly funny," he remarked to a friend standing near. A few minutes later he had bought the cartoon.

So far as is known no one else took this extremely liberal view of the cutting satire in the Beerbohm drawings. Sir Herbert Cory, a member of Parliament, called the attention of the authorities to the cartoons and suggested that something should be done to prevent their exhibition. He seriously considered bringing the matter up for discussion in the House.

Sir Claude Phillips, a noted art critic, had this to say about it in the London Daily Telegraph:

"Ten or 12 years ago—a little more or a little less—the writer of the present notice was highly honored. 'Max'—the brilliant and redoubtable Max Beerbohm—included his portrait among those of many worthier people gathered together in his exhibition at the Leicester Galleries. The letterpress in completion of the drawing was, speaking from memory, 'Sir Claude Phillips doing his best not to find my caricatures in the worst possible taste.' There has been a gap of years; events that Max himself has not ventured to turn into comedy have shaken the world to its foundations. And still the unfortunate individual named above has gone on striving to persuade himself that these unique caricatures are 'not in the worst possible taste.' And let it be borne in mind that the question has become one of a certain importance. Now a climax has been reached, and we must say frankly, though with all regret, that so far as the caricatures are concerned in which Mr. Max Beerbohm goes out of his way to play hornet to members of the royal family of England, past and present, there is no longer any question—they are assuredly in the worst possible taste."

Visitors who had paid 10s 6d to see the Beerbohm exhibition denounced the artist's taste and demanded that the offensive cartoons be taken from the walls. The managers replied that they intended to let the cartoons stay where they were. They changed their minds after receiving the following letter from Beerbohm:

"My Dear Messrs Ernest Brown and Phillips: Away down in the country I have seen only three of the newspapers. From these I gather that certain of my drawings in your galleries are likely to shock the susceptibilities of the general public. You, who are on the spot, will be better able than I to judge whether or not these drawings should vanish or remain.

"I take no stand in the matter. No question of principle is involved. The question is one of taste merely, and I cannot strike a dignified attitude and say to the public, in solemn tones: 'My taste, believe me, is perfect.'

"The drawings objected to were conceived, as you know, in a spirit of light-hearted fantasy; but if the public is likely to read any shadow of seriousness into them and accordingly to regard them as unkind and even 'disloyal,' I think it would be well to avoid this misunderstanding of my disposition (in which, as again you know, there is no unkindness and certainly no disloyalty) by removing those particular drawings from the exhibition. Yours very sincerely, MAX BEERBOHM."

After being the sensation of a day the pictures were withdrawn. There were sighs of relief from those who had criticised them and a chuckle of satisfaction from Sir Gerald du Maurier, who ordered the Prince of Wales cartoon packed and sent to his lodgings, declaring that he considered it a rare bargain at the price, which was approximately the equivalent of $200.

THE REMARKABLE MARRIAGES O A PAR

Perhaps fate arranged it that the husbands, or the children, of all four should become famous men: the son of one is now Premier of Great Britain, and another's son is Rudyard Kipling—The two other sisters were wedded to Edward Burne-Jones and Edward J. Poynter, young, obscure artists who afterwards won renown and baronetcies :: :: :: ::

ONE does not think of a parsonage as a place where the daughters make brilliant marriages. The manse, or rectory, or whatever it may be called, seems curiously aloof from the world of wealth and fashion. It is true, of course, that in individual cases the daughters of clergymen have won the hearts of very eligible bachelors and shared great careers.

And groups comprising two or three sisters have, each member thereof, married exceptionally well. Such were the famous Gunning sisters of Great Britain and the beautiful Langhornes of Virginia, U. S. A.

But when Stanley Baldwin recently was made Premier of Great Britain, the highest honor which can be achieved in all the far-flung empire, that event marked a climax in the history of parsonage romances, the latest in a series of events quite unparalleled.

Premier Baldwin's mother was Louisa Macdonald, daughter of the Rev. George B. Macdonald, a Wesleyan Methodist minister. Of three other daughters in that parsonage family, Georgiana was married to Edward Burne-Jones, the pre-Raphaelite painter; Agnes was married to Edward J. Poynter, another painter who gained fame, and Alice became the mother of Rudyard Kipling.

Both painters were made Baronets, and Poynter was president of the Royal Academy. Rudyard Kipling's renown in literature is so secure that he can snap his fingers at the post of Poet Laureate, so strangely withheld from the poet of imperialism, and master of the short story.

Such are the places which have been filled by the four daughters of a Wesleyan Methodist minister. Not only were the family always in the modest circumstances to be expected from the father's position, but the rules required them to move to a new church once every three years. Moreover, they were modest, retiring girls, submitting cheerfully to a somewhat rigorous code of life.

them were, I didn't think womankind really was so appalling."

This little story illustrates the audacious computation of numbers recklessly random and so fluently written or spoken as at first almost to deceive the elect, which grew into a joke well known to intimate friends of Burne-Jones, but sometimes startling to others. Says his widow, in the "Memorials":

"This was brought home to us the only time I remember Mr. Gladstone coming to the Grange, when Edward told him, as they walked in the garden, that in the branches of a fine old hawthorn growing there, 801,926 birds nightly roosted, and was checked by the interest this statement aroused in his hearer, who courteously inquired, 'How many birds did you say?' "

The Macdonald home in London was within half a mile of Burne-Jones' lodgings, but he never went to see them on Sundays, nor did the family as a rule go anywhere on that day except to chapel. The lodgings were, however, almost exactly opposite the chapel of which the Rev. Macdonald was minister, and sometimes after service, as the congregation filed out, the eyes of a girl amongst the slowly moving crowd were lifted and for a moment saw his face watching at a window.

"One day early in June," writes Georgiana, "my mother called me into her room and told me that Edward had been to see my father and herself, and then she went on with what seemed to me to have been written from the beginning of the world, and ended by saying that they left the answer they should give him entirely to my decision. There was no difficulty in her seeing what that was, and we knelt down together to ask for the blessing of God upon it. I was not quite 16 then.

"Looking back, I feel the deepest respect for my parents because they never discussed with me the 'prospects' of my marriage; my father asked Edward no questions about his 'position,' but, so far as my judgment goes, acted as a minister of the Christian religion should do, seeking nothing but character and leaving the question of fortune altogether on one side. Neither he nor my mother had at this time any idea of Edward's genius, but they liked him very much and trusted him completely; by the young people of the house he was recognized more clearly, and the advent of 'Mr. Edward,' as the children called him, was of infinite importance to more than one of them."

His sweetness of temper and his endless fun were the qualities which drew their adoration.

Now began an engagement which lasted for four years to a day, and they were married on June 9, 1860, at Manchester. Says Lady Burne-Jones: "The conditions on which we started life were: practically no debts, except of work to Mr. Plint (a Leeds manufacturer), and the possession of about 30 pounds in ready money; and I brought with me a small deal table with a drawer in it that held my wood-engraving tools. Three days before our marriage, however, came a note from the unfailing Mr. Plint: 'The two pen-and-ink drawings are to hand today. I inclose order for 25 pounds, which you may need just now.' So here was riches."

When Agnes Macdonald married Edward Poynter, his 'prospects' were no more promising than those of young Burne-Jones had been. He was but an impecunious artist, the son of an architect. There was no reason to foresee that his scholarly pictures ever would bring him fame and social position, or that he would become president of the Royal Academy and a Baronet.

About such practical matters this quiet, studious daughter of the parsonage thought little, if at all. Like her sisters, she paid no heed to the material things. Yet she lived to see herself the wife of one of the greatest English artists of his time.

Certainly, when Georgiana and Agnes Macdonald married unknown young artists, the family had no reason at the time to congratulate themselves for financial reasons. And when Alice gave her hand and heart to John Lockwood Kipling, the event looked to them almost like a calamity. Not that they had any dislike for Mr. Kipling, of whom, on the contrary, they were extremely fond. But he was "going out" to India, where the wife of Wilfred Heeley, a dear friend of the family's, had died in a day from cholera, less than three years before.

"Our parents trembled at sending a daughter into the same risk, but the appointment was to Bombay, with its sea breezes, was terminable at pleasure after three years, and seemed so exactly suited to John Kipling's talents and taste, that they refused to take the responsibiliy of urging him to remain in England."

In some ways, Alice Macdonald seems to have been the most remarkable of the girls. Like all of them, she was good-looking, quiet and bright. It is worth noting that Rudyard Kipling dedicated "Plain Tales From the Hills" to his mother, as "The wittiest woman in England." There is no doubt that both parents contributed to the extraordinary gifts of Rudyard.

And, remembering his rhymed flings at art with a capital A, it is amusing to note the connection by marriage with Burne-Jones.

In the year that Rudyard Kipling was born, the elder Kipling was appointed professor of architectural sculpture in the Bombay School of Art. For several years he was engaged in making casts of the mythological sculpture of the rock temples in the central provinces. Later he was appointed curator of the Government Museum at Lahore, which figures in the great tale of "Kim" as the "Wonder House."

John Lockwood Kipling's most important book is "Beast and Man in India," ill-planned and discursive but a mine of information about India. Critics interested in the growth of the famous son have traced back to that book a good many things which the son used afterwards in his Indian tales. One example is material for the story of the elephant who refused to work while his master was absent on a drinking bout. In the preface to "Life's Handicap," Rudyard Kipling says: "A few (of the tales), but these are the very best, my father gave me." Those who knew the elder Kipling speak of him as a man of deep culture, a talker, witty, cynical and entertaining, and a good friend to his friends.

Louisa, the youngest of the four sisters, was the only one who made what would be termed a "good marriage" in the worldly sense. She was actually at work on wood cuts for Morris' "The Earthly Paradise," and looking forward to spending some busy years on the several hundred planned, when her engagement was announced to Alfred Baldwin, wealthy ironmaster.

Despite the money, Louisa Baldwin has remained the quiet, modest daughter of a Wesleyan Methodist minister. The Baldwin millions did not become the center of their family life. Louisa saw to that. Her son may be, and is, the Prime Minister of Great Britain. But her grandson is a Socialist. And all of them believe that there are many more important things in life than guineas. Even Premier Baldwin, they say.

A novelist who had the temerity to depict an humble parsonage from which issued forth four lovely daughters to such splendid marriages as befell the four Macdonald sisters would be set down not only as a scrivener of little invention but also as one of cool impudence. Probably it would mark the end of his career. Yet what happened in the Rev. Macdonald's family is history. And may perhaps serve as excuse for some novelist in the future.

St. Louis Was A Movie Center When

Orrin T. Crawford had no star to hitch his wagon to, but he made pictures anyway — Members of cast were stage actors at night—First studio was at Jefferson and Gravois avenues and the sky was its roof—Bang-tailed horses used by the James Boys who mounted from the wrong side—Ambition was to own 400 theaters and make the pictures to show in them :: ::

ROMANTIC tales of the fabulous salaries paid to motion picture actors, actresses and directors in this golden age of the silver sheet are sad reminders to some St. Louisans that Opportunity knocks but once. They had their big chance to achieve screen fame when St. Louis was a moving picture center and Hollywood had not yet mushroomed into existence.

It is only a decade, or at most a decade and a half, back to the paleozoic age of the movies and it is interesting, though the process be tinged with regret, for these men and women to revert in memory to the days between 1908 and 1912 when they were riding bang-tailed livery stable horses in Wild West and train robbery scenes and receiving a smaller wage as movie stars than is now paid to the man who sweeps the floors of a Hollywood studio. They sigh when they remember the old movie lot at Jefferson and Gravois avenues, from which some of them had to hurry back at nightfall to the Fourteenth street theater at Fourteenth and Locust streets. They were motion picture stars by day and stock company actors and actresses by night—and few of them received more than $25 a week. There were rare occasions when they went "on location" at such great distances from the center of production as the Chain of Rocks, Maplewood or Clayton.

The late Orrin T. Crawford was the movie impresario behind these activities. He was a man of tireless energy and great ambition. Primarily he was a theatrical stock company man, and one of the best in the business. He had a very capable stock company playing at the Fourteenth street theater, and his original dream of conquest had a theatrical, not a movie setting. It was his plan to dot the city with neighborhood theaters, in which would be given dramatic performances with stock companies. Now, there was, and still is, in St. Louis a most astute showman named Michael Nash. Though his financial resources were not so great, he was closer than Crawford to the pulse of the amusement loving public.

Nash was the Omar of the movies in St. Louis. He put up the first tent in which to show pictures. From the start he "stood 'em up." He invested his surplus in tents and more tents. His enterprise turned Crawford's ambition into a new channel. For the first time he saw the possibilities of moving pictures as a neighborhood attraction.

Edward N. Dustin of 2606 South Grand avenue, long a close business associate of Crawford, remembers with what zeal the new idea was developed.

"I'm going to buck Nash," said Crawford one day.

"How?" asked Dustin.

"Wherever he has a tent show, I'm going to build a theater next door to it or across the street from it."

"And what are you going to show?"

"Moving pictures."

"Where are you going to get the pictures?"

"Make 'em myself."

"It takes money to hire actors."

"Well, what have I got that Fourteenth street stock company for? They can work in the pictures in the daytime and act at night."

And they did.

One can imagine that these players had little time for relaxation, though they smilingly asserted that making pictures was more fun than they had ever had. A stock company at best is a hard-worked aggregation. It is always doing three things at once: appearing in this week's play, forgetting last week's and learning next week's.

Bob Werth, who now peddles Metro films on the mush-for-breakfast and alibi-coffee circuits in the St. Louis trade territory, vividly recalls those days when St. Louis was blazing the trail to Hollywood. He kept a scrapbook of "stills" of some of the movie thrillers made by Crawford's company, known as the Atlas Film Corporation. He has good reason to remember it because of the Pooh Bah character of his services. He was director and leading man in the motion picture company.

When his day's work on the "lot" or "location" was done he started all over to catch up with his duties as press representative, advertising manager, supervisor of bill posting, manager and understudy at the Fourteenth street theater. For these manifold activities he received $75 a week—a princely salary in those days. Once a week he had to make an early morning tour of the city to see that the billposters had properly displayed the theater's "paper." Staying up late on this job was no excuse for being tardy on the moving picture lot.

The first woman star in a St. Louis production was Belle Barcus, who at the same time was leading lady of the Fourteenth street theater stock company. She never was entirely won over to the movies and she is now the proprietor and director of a touring stock company. She appeared in several of the earlier Crawford productions. Later there were other women stars, among whom were Dorothy Dorris, Peggy Worth, now in vaudeville; Mrs. Randolph Gray and Mrs. Florence Gillihan, whose most notaperformance was the assumption of a masculine role in "The Hidden Hand."

It was Crawford's ambition to build and own 400 moving picture theaters, in which he would show only pictures made by his own company. It was the same idea which later was worked out successfully by Adolph Zukor and other modern movie magnates, but Crawford did not realize on it. His first neighborhood house was the Novelty, on Easton avenue near Grand avenue. This originally was a double-deck theater, with different shows on the first and second floors. A single admission served for both shows. In his later houses he eliminated that feature. Among the theaters built by Crawford and his associates were the Union, Montgomery, Arco, Kings, Bremen, Maffitt, Pershing, Shenandoah and Cherokee. In 1909 he built the Hopkins Opera House in Louisville. This had a seating capacity of 3200 and for many years it was rated as the largest motion picture theater in the world.

Crawford's activities in the moving picture field lasted into 1912, or possibly a year later. Few St. Louisans realize the large number of pictures he made. In the later days of his activities he sent his company to considerable distances for "locations."

Several circumstances conspired to force abandonment of his plan to show the pictures only in his own theaters. There was brisk competition from New York and Chicago studios and from a rival local concern known as the St. Louis Motion Picture Co. This was organized by Otto Goebel and financed largely by Iowa farmers. Crawford's principal financial associates in the movies were H. E. Aitken and John Frueler of the Mutual Film Corporation and C. H. Hutchinson of the American Film Corporation.

A trail was blazed by Crawford when in 1911 he made "The James Boys in Missouri," the first three-reel feature made in America. To the modern movie fan, accustomed to features running up to nine and even 12 reels it will seem incredible that no longer than 12 years ago the production of a three-reel picture was regarded as a notable, but daring, experiment. The production of the James Boys film cost Crawford's company $2280. Today a picture of the same length, made with the most rigid economy, cannot be made at a cost of less than $3000 to $5000 for each reel, or a total of $9000 to $15,000. Thus have costs of production mounted.

Dustin recalls that the filming of "Sitting Bull" in Oklahoma cost Crawford's company $2100. This was a two-reeler. Many Indians were used as extras, the original scale being $1 a day for ordinary redskins and $2 a day for chiefs. After a few days they struck for $2 and for $5 a day for chiefs. They got it. The usual pay for extras now is $10 a day. While filming this picture it occurred to Dustin that there would be a fine opportunity to make a scene representing Custer's fight. He estimated the cost at $5800. Crawford thought this was too steep and the opportunity passed. Several years later Thomas H. Ince filmed Custer's fight at a cost of many thousands of dollars and made a big profit on it.

Another Crawford picture made in Oklahoma was "The Cowboy's Revenge." Several of the scenes were shot on the army reservation at Fort Sill, with soldiers taking part. By this time the salaries of actors had mounted to a scale of $30 to $50 a week and the regular pay of extras was $1.50 a day.

Dustin chuckles when he tells of queer accessories used in making "The James Boys." The largest single item of expense was $400 for the rental of horses from a St. Louis livery stable. The horses were an odd assortment. Some had docked tails, some were hunters and jumpers and others were gaited saddlers and high school prancers. Only English saddles were available. Most of the actors supposed to be hard-riding bandits had never set foot in stirrup. They mounted from the right or left side, as suited their fancy, and to cover up their mistakes it was deemed necessary to insert a title line which read: "So skilled were these daring horsemen that they could mount from either side." In point of fact, the horsemen were so unskilled that Crawford took out liability insurance to cover any damage claims for equestrian injuries to the James Boys and their gang. This is said to have been the first time insurance of the kind was taken out by a motion picture company.

Most of the scenes were shot in and around Maplewood. The principals were stock company actors. Fisher was Jesse James. William Crinley, now an important executive at the Mary Pickford studio, enacted the role of Frank James. The actor assigned to play Gov. Crittenden failed to show up and Dustin took the role on short notice. The extras were high school boys and members of a minstrel troupe then playing in St. Louis.

"The James Boys in Missouri" was a great box office success for those days. It netted a profit of $17,500. Even then the censorship bugaboo was threatening the freedom of the screen and but for this Crawford would have made more money with the picture. To his consternation he found that Texas would not permit the showing of motion pictures in which there was any gun play and New York, while not barring display of weapons in a picture, would not permit any billboard advertising posters in which firearms were shown.

Another of Crawford's

FOOLS AND THEIR MONEY: Amusin

Johnny Medley, office boy and "director" of the Independent and West Middlesex Life and Fire Assurance Co., was only an incidental victim of the two old rogues who got $1,800,000 out of the English easy marks—They paid Johnny only a dollar a week and fined him 50 cents every time he had dirty cuffs, and finally the worm turned—But, by that time, thousands of fish had been caught -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:-

JOHNNY MEDLEY was mad all over. He had high reason for being mad. Wouldn't it make you mad, even you, if you were a director in a great life and fire insurance company, got only $1 for attending each board meeting, and every week or so got fined half of that for appearing with dirty cuffs? And, besides, just suppose it was a part of your day's work to sign all the insurance policies because you could write better than anybody else in the company offices; to answer the doorbell as a sort of flunkey or "buttons," and to dust the desks and sweep the floors as a plebeian porter in off moments. Suppose all this, and then ask yourself if you wouldn't get mad as a hornet about the seventeenth time they fined you for not being tidy about your cuffs. And only $1 a week if you drew your full pay.

Of course, a dollar a week was more to Johnny Medley, away back yonder in 1838, than the same sum would be today. Probably it would buy as much as $3 or $4 will buy in 1923. Nevertheless, Johnny Medley, the worm, feeling himself unjustly ground under the heel of the plutocracy, the men higher up in his company, slowly but surely made up his mind to turn. And when at last the worm did turn, things began to happen. This wellnigh unbelievable, yet true, tale of Mr. Billy Knowles, Mr. Bill Hole and Johnny the Worm should be begun now at the beginning, from which point it promises to go forward with leaps and bounds.

It was in 1836 that Mr. Billy Knowles of London hit upon the get-rich-quick plan for which he had been groping blindly through at least 50 of his 65 years. Billy had been brought up as a shoemaker, and he was a middling good one. But the cobbling line, even though that was in the days when lords and ladies had their boots made by hand and the neighborhood cobbler who knew his trade could get a profitable clientele by sticking faithfully to his last, was not the only line of industry pursued by Mr. Knowles. That ambitious individual had a side line that was more profitable, albeit rather perilous. Billy smuggled as well as cobbled. Sometimes he smuggled unwisely and the law clutched him. There was a period of doing his bit in prison. Then, back to his last. But ever and anon the smuggling game lured him, and he got some more unlawful gains; though such was his taste for high living that, when he found himself right on the edge of growing old, he also found himself not much richer than the well-known church mouse.

But now, at last, Mr. Billy Knowles had the great idea. He cast about amongst the old-timers with whom he had been associated in smuggling and anchored upon Mr. Bill Hole, an astute rogue. The precious pair held a private conference in Billy's shoemaker shop, with the door locked. Mr. Hole liked the proposition. Mr. Knowles said:

"Well, Bill, how much have ye got?"

Mr. Hole announced the sum of his savings. Mr. Knowles did likewise as to his.

"All right, Billy," said Bill. "If you say it means money, I'm with ye."

"There'll be enough to get the printing done," said Billy, "and to take that house I told you of, in Portman Square. It seems a lot to lay out, but we must have our offices in a respectable neighborhood, don't ye know."

"Ay, ay!" assented Mr. Hole. "Billy Knowles, ye've got a head on ye that I never thought ye carried."

Provincial papers in England presently appeared with advertisements of the Independent and West Middlesex Life and Fire Assurance Co. Long name, but high-sounding. Sometimes, in a scheme like that, the name's the thing. All that title appealed to the populace.

The company undertook to insure lives at premiums smaller than any other concern required, and it offered larger annuities than any of its competitors. The plan was simple. You paid in $1500 at once; then for the small annual sum of $24 you were insured for $1000, payable to your beneficiary at death, and you received $120 a year as long as you lived. In those times $120 a year was enough to support an average family in England if administered with rigid economy.

The company, according to its advertisements, had a capital of $5,000,000 and had been incorporated for many years. Its banker was the great Bank of England, and some of the lesser yet important banks were named as being identified with the management. The offices of the company were in that most respectable part of London, Portman Square; which fact—the only actual fact in the whole mass of misrepresentations—gave high tone to the enterprise.

Applications for life insurance poured in from the country districts. Apparently they came so numerously that the fire-insurance idea in the original project was dropped. Life insurance was the thing. Mr. Billy Knowles was not sufficiently prepossessing in personal appearance to exhibit himself as general manager of the company. Nor was Mr. Bill Hole qualified by nature for that post. Besides, both of these elderly gentlemen had public records hinting strongly of prison experience. Consequently it behooved the promoters to keep themselves in the background. But Mr. Knowles had a brother-in-law whose record was clear and who was a good looker and could carry fine clothes well. He was a paperhanger.

"Tom, I'll make a gentleman of ye and pay ye $800 a year to boot," was Billy's proposition.

"I'm yer oyster, Billy," said Tom.

And so the paperhanger became general manager of the Independent and West Middlesex and did the honors in Portman Square. After a time, the early income from rural policyholders having enabled the management to dress up the offices in fine form, advertisements of the concern began to appear in London papers. The business grew by whoops and hurdles.

General Manager Thomas Petty found that he must have more help than Messrs. Billy and Bill could give. He selected as office boy and porter one Johnny Medley, a not overbright lad of 15. A schoolmaster was taken on as treasurer. There must be, of course, an auditor. Mr. Knowles remembered pleasantly a bartender of his smuggling days. This gentleman accepted the auditorship of the Independent and West Middlesex. There must be, also, a board of directors. All the employes, including Johnny Medley, were made directors. The board met each week, on Friday. Seems to have been nothing superstitious about old Billy and Bill. Friday was a handy day, inasmuch as the board declared dividends then on the week's business and the income enabled the two old rogues to hold high carousal over the week-end.

As a matter of fact, the only actual business of the directors was to dress well and wear rings and other jewelry. Every Friday at the board session Mr. Knowles had inspection, and any member who had failed to show up in sartorial splendor befitting a director of the Independent and West Middlesex was fined two shillings, or half a dollar.

Poor Johnny Medley, whose weekly salary was fixed at $1, predicated upon attendance at board meetings, lacked income sufficient to keep his linen laundered, and frequently the stern and inflexible Mr. Knowles withheld half his salary because the boy's cuffs were dirty. Being a simple-minded lad, Johnny did not resent this at first. He felt rather big to be a company director, and that was some compensation for Johnny.

The company was quite accommodating to its clients. Other insurance concerns required a doctor's examination before issuing a policy, and insisted upon birth certificates, pedigrees and the like. The Independent and West Middlesex required none of this foolishness. All it required was the cash, $1500 down, and the next day the policy was delivered to the happy insured party thus settled on Easy avenue for life or death. Hundreds of people visited the Portman Square house and paid in their money, receiving policies superbly printed in several colors.

Neither Mr. Billy Knowles, Mr. Bill Hole nor Mr. Tom Petty wrote a hand that would pass muster as signature to such important documents as life insurance policies. It was discovered that Johnny Medley wrote a hand exactly suited to the purpose. So Johnny, in addition to his duties as office boy and porter, became signer in chief of all the policies issued. Some days he suffered from writer's cramp along toward evening. Moreover, the ink from the goose-feather pen had a pesky way of getting on the edges of Johnny's cuffs, and too often that happened along toward board-meeting day. Altogether, Director Medley had a difficult job.

After a few months of increasing prosperity the company had agents all over England. It was stated on apparently good authority that applications came in faster than Johnny could fill out and sign the policies. A subclerk was hired to

After another year at $1 a week minus the soiled-cuff fines, Johnny Medley at last began to wake up. The process was slow. It may be that some of his folks who had observed Mr. Bill Hole or Mr. Billy Knowles driving about in costly carriages hinted to Johnny that perhaps he wasn't drawing down the salary to which he was entitled. In any event, Johnny finally muttered, at one of the board meetings when ink was discovered on his cuffs, that he was a downtrodden worm and maybe might turn if they kept on crushing him. He was 17 then and felt a man's size.

The Knowles-Hole outfit laughed at Johnny.

"Keep yer mouth shet," demanded Mr. Billy, "or ye'll be gettin' the sack."

"But, Billy, after all," suggested Mr. Bill, "don't yer think we might give Johnny a leetle rise?"

But the head of the house was firm. Johnny kept his job, though he did not keep his mouth shut, as the sequel will show. In March, 1839, appeared an article in the Scotch Reformer's Gazette warning the public against the Independent and West Middlesex Life and Fire Assurance Co. "It is a false and fictitious company," declared Peter MacKenzie, the editor. "There is no greater parcel of tricksters in London. We shall not rest contented until we chase them out of every city in Her Majesty's dominions."

Mr. Knowles and Mr. Hole instructed their lawyers to smash the paper which thus had had the insolence to attack their company. Suit was instituted. They lost, but they sued again. Editor MacKenzie had spent $10,000, nearly all of his capital, in defending his course. Nevertheless, he kept up and at it, publishing further attacks on the Knowles-Hole outfit.

Strange to say, the more the fraud was denounced the more victims it got. The articles in the Scottish paper were read and discussed in London; the suits against the editor were matters of common knowledge; and yet the fish bit more hungrily than ever, and Johnny Medley had writer's cramp nearly every day by 2 or 3 p. m.

At a great dinner given by Mr. Billy Knowles a stranger burst into the banquet hall.

"You and Bill Hole are swindlers!" he yelled, "and your office in Portman Square is a robber's den! You both ought"——

"Throw him out!" ordered Mr. Billy Knowles.

The food and the wines were fine. Nobody heeded the denunciations of the poor fellow, who was thrown out bodily and went mumbling down the street.

But it is quite possible to overplay a paying game. If Messrs. Billy and Bill had paid Director Johnny Medley $2 a week, let us say, instead of one lone dollar, and if they had not insisted on fining him for soiled cuffs acquired in their service, maybe Johnny would have kept his mouth shut instead of going around town and denouncing the Independent and West Middlesex as a set of pirates and ingrates.

By that time Johnny was a large-sized lad; in fact, about as big as they grow in London, on the average. His voice had taken on a semibaritone twang, and he was no longer the quaver-toned kid that had found his unprogressive job three years earlier and jumped at it. At 18 Johnny was so big that he rather hated himself for continuing to work at $1 a week, divided by two if occasion warranted. In short, Johnny the Worm had reached the turning point at last, and he turned.

"They're a bloomin' lot o' pirates, they are," boomed big Johnny in his base voice, when he visited the public house around the corner to buy a mug of 'arf-'n'-'arf. "Old Billy Knowles useter to be a smuggler, he did, and old Bill Hole smuggled along with 'im. I got their private history from a poor fish they skinned alive in a bloody rotten deal 'fore they ever thought up this 'ere life insurance game."

"W'y don't ye get ye a stiddy job, Johnny?" inquired the smiling barmaid.

"'Cause Old Billy won't lemme off long enough to look for one," Johnny replied; "but I'll show em"——

One Monday morning the boy director found the door locked when he arrived. He waited outside for some time. Nobody came to open up shop. Then Johnny glanced through a window. The place was empty. All the furniture and the carpets had been removed. The Independent and West Middlesex Fire and Life Assurance Co. had closed down. Mr. Billy Knowles and Mr. Bill Hole and all the directors—save only the more or less faithful Mr. Johnny Medley, now about 18 and feeling 40—had disappeared.

"Jus' what I tol' ye," remarked Johnny to those who came to have policies written or to draw annuities. The news got around town rapidly. Panic-stricken, hundreds rushed to Portman Square. They stood in awestruck groups outside the premises, lamenting the loss of the savings of lifetimes.

For nearly three years the company had operated, unhindered save by the Scotch editor's righteous onslaughts. It had collected in premiums more than $1,800,000. A great many of the victims now found themselves destitute. Aged servants, retired on the annuities, had to find service again. Some policyholders, who believed they had provided for themselves and their children, died of broken hearts.

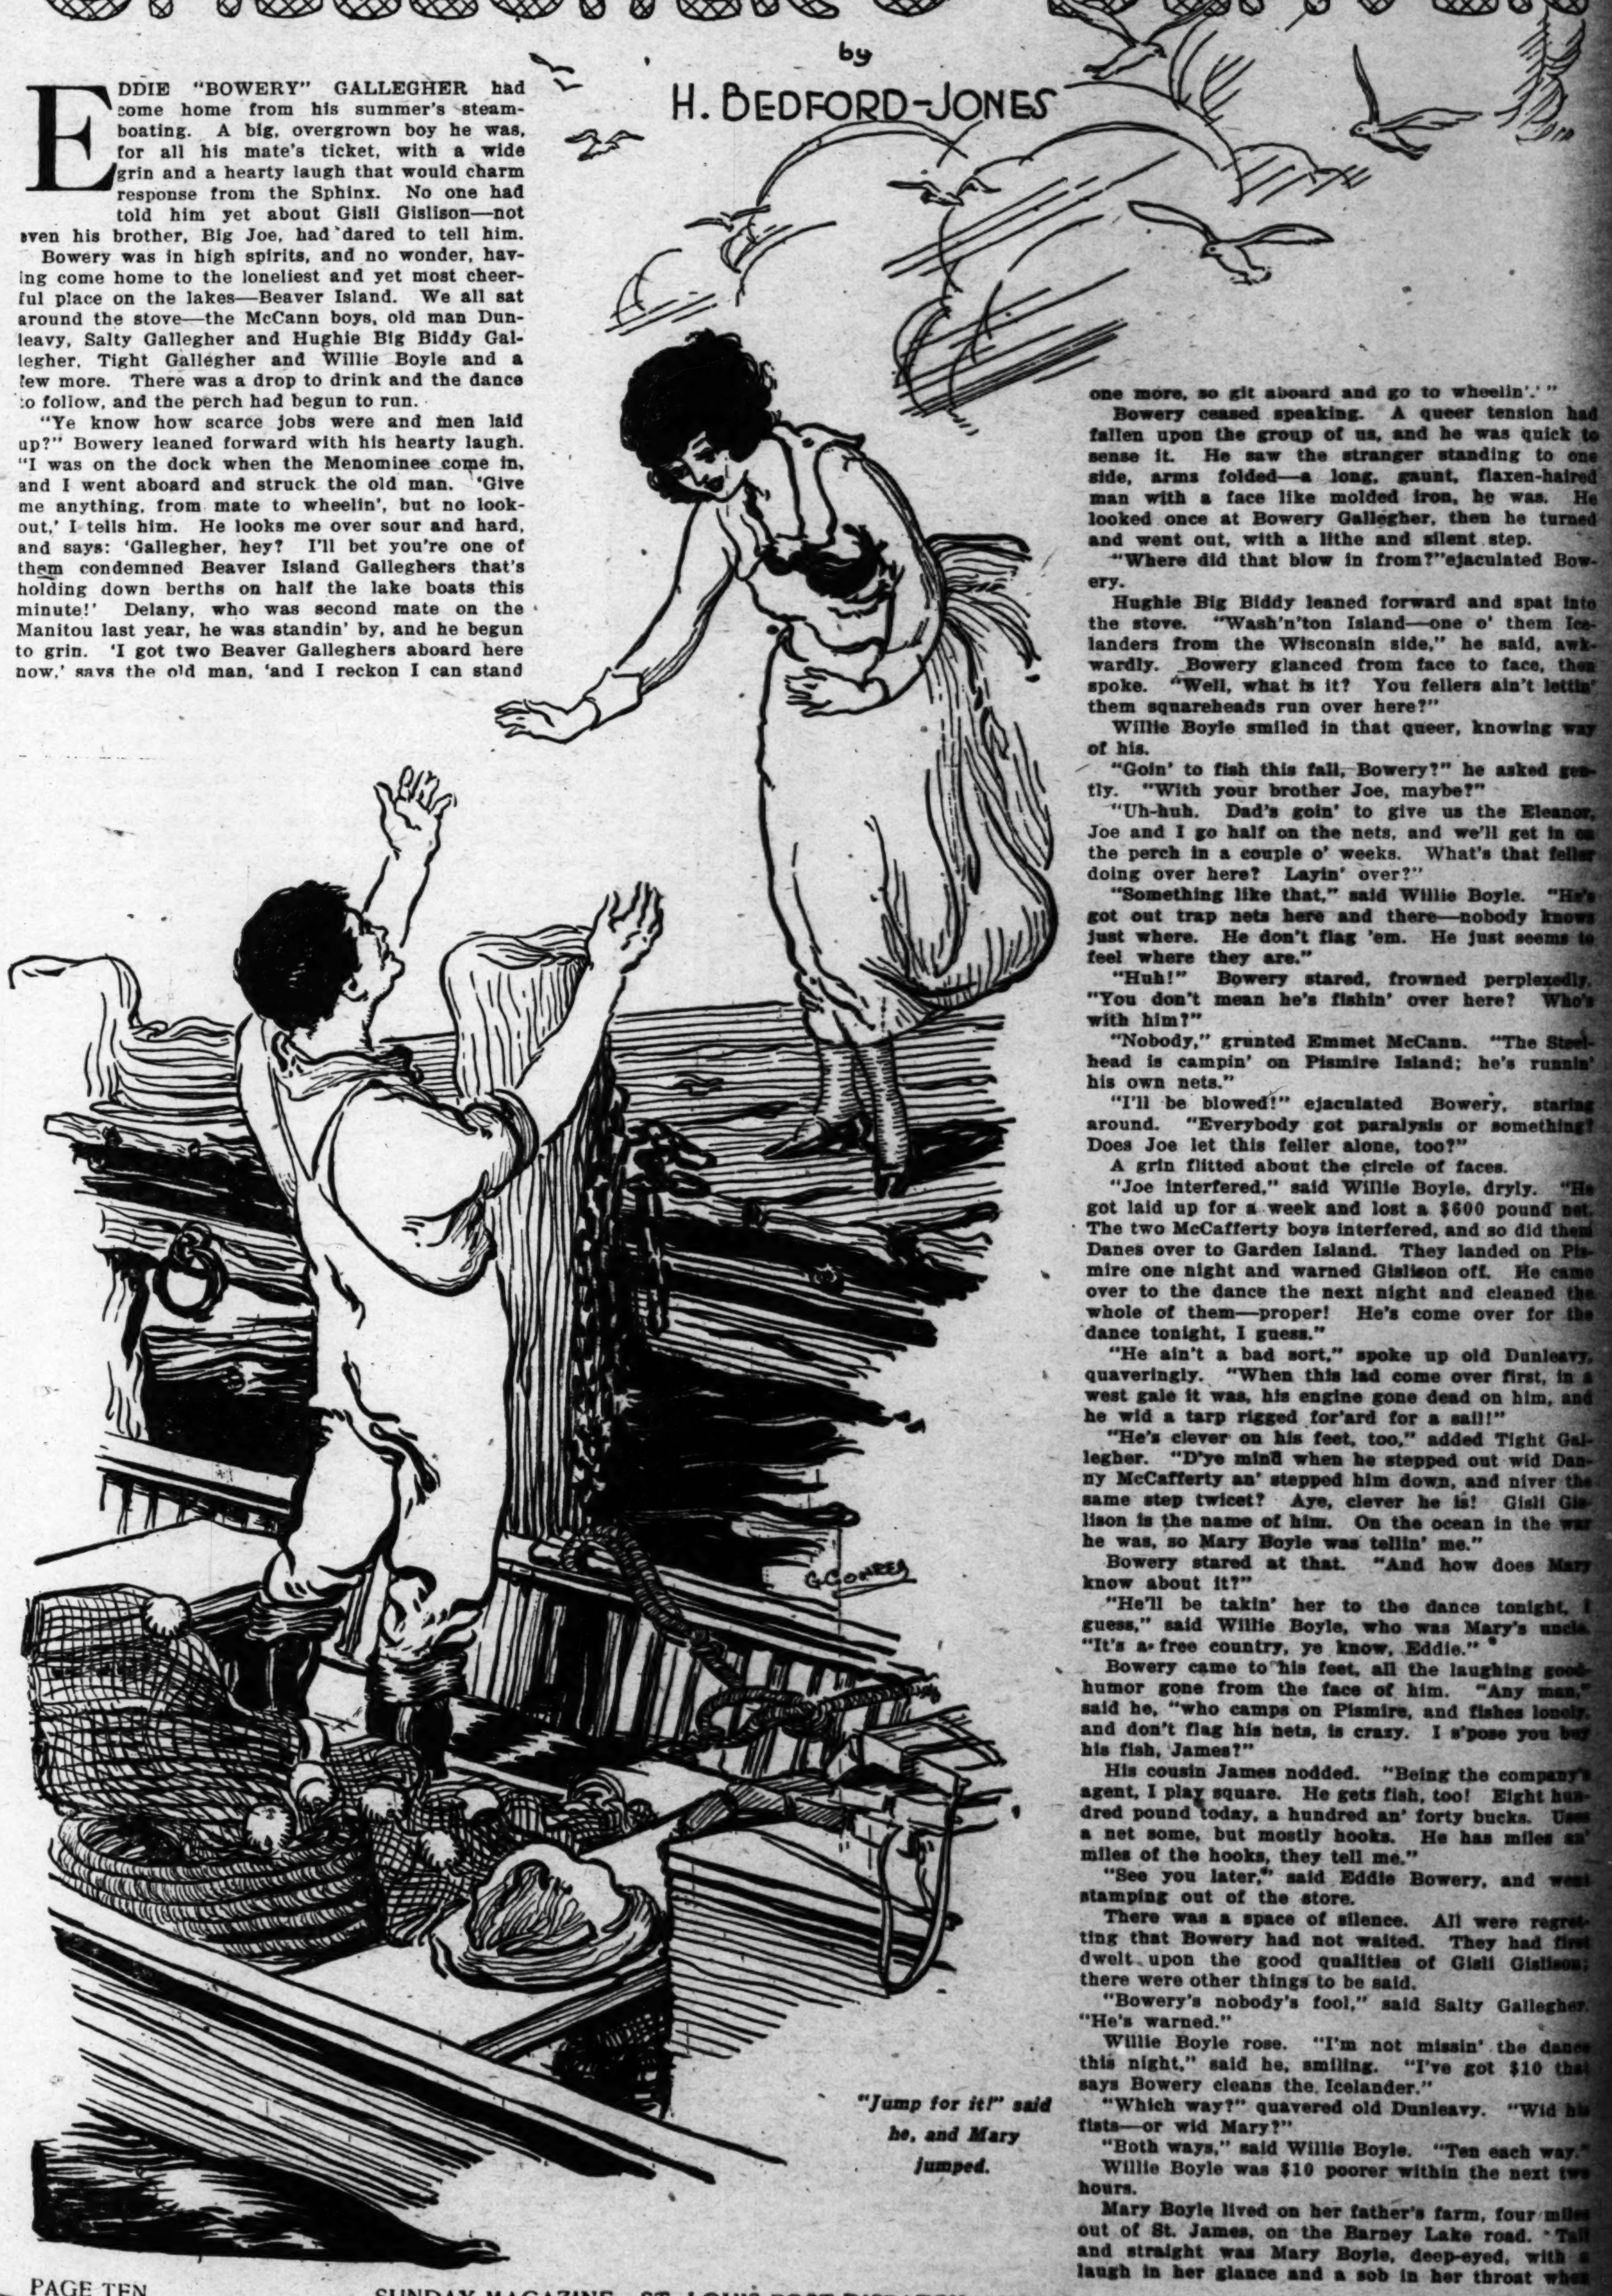
For years afterward some of the deluded ones were petitioning the Government for relief. The Government, having nothing to do with the swindle, could grant no relief. Mr. Billy Knowles, at 68, had retired with the fortune he always said he intended to have before he died. It is assumed that he changed his name, along with his place of residence. Mr. Bill Hole also retired with a handsome if tainted competence.

And, finally, let us trust that Johnny the Worm turned over a new leaf and got his cuffs laundered at least once a week, though on that point history is silent.

GALLEGHER of BEAVER

by

H. BEDFORD-JONES



EDDIE "BOWERY" GALLEGHER had come home from his summer's steamboating. A big, overgrown boy he was, for all his mate's ticket, with a wide grin and a hearty laugh that would charm response from the Sphinx. No one had told him yet about Gisli Gislison—not even his brother, Big Joe, had dared to tell him.

Bowery was in high spirits, and no wonder, having come home to the loneliest and yet most cheerful place on the lakes—Beaver Island. We all sat around the stove—the McCann boys, old man Dunleavy, Salty Gallegher and Hughie Big Biddy Gallegher, Tight Gallegher and Willie Boyle and a few more. There was a drop to drink and the dance to follow, and the perch had begun to run.

"Ye know how scarce jobs were and men laid up?" Bowery leaned forward with his hearty laugh. "I was on the dock when the Menominee come in, and I went aboard and struck the old man. 'Give me anything, from mate to wheelin', but no lookout,' I tells him. He looks me over sour and hard, and says: 'Gallegher, hey? I'll bet you're one of them condemned Beaver Island Galleghers that's holding down berths on half the lake boats this minute!' Delany, who was second mate on the Manitou last year, he was standin' by, and he begun to grin. 'I got two Beaver Galleghers aboard here now,' says the old man, 'and I reckon I can stand one more, so git aboard and go to wheelin'.' "

Bowery ceased speaking. A queer tension had fallen upon the group of us, and he was quick to sense it. He saw the stranger standing to one side, arms folded—a long, gaunt, flaxen-haired man with a face like molded iron, he was. He looked once at Bowery Gallegher, then he turned and went out, with a lithe and silent step.

"Where did that blow in from?" ejaculated Bowery.

Hughie Big Biddy leaned forward and spat into the stove. "Wash'n'ton Island—one o' them Icelanders from the Wisconsin side," he said, awkwardly. Bowery glanced from face to face, then spoke. "Well, what is it? You fellers ain't lettin' them squareheads run over here?"

Willie Boyle smiled in that queer, knowing way of his.

"Goin' to fish this fall, Bowery?" he asked gently. "With your brother Joe, maybe?"

"Uh-huh. Dad's goin' to give us the Eleanor, Joe and I go half on the nets, and we'll get in on the perch in a couple o' weeks. What's that feller doing over here? Layin' over?"

"Something like that," said Willie Boyle. "He's got out trap nets here and there—nobody knows just where. He don't flag 'em. He just seems to feel where they are."

"Huh!" Bowery stared, frowned perplexedly. "You don't mean he's fishin' over here? Who's with him?"

"Nobody," grunted Emmet McCann. "The Steelhead is campin' on Pismire Island; he's runnin' his own nets."

"I'll be blowed!" ejaculated Bowery, staring around. "Everybody got paralysis or something? Does Joe let this feller alone, too?"

A grin flitted about the circle of faces.

"Joe interfered," said Willie Boyle, dryly. "He got laid up for a week and lost a $600 pound net. The two McCafferty boys interfered, and so did them Danes over to Garden Island. They landed on Pismire one night and warned Gislison off. He came over to the dance the next night and cleaned the whole of them—proper! He's come over for the dance tonight, I guess."

"He ain't a bad sort," spoke up old Dunleavy, quaveringly. "When this lad come over first, in a west gale it was, his engine gone dead on him, and he wid a tarp rigged for'ard for a sail!"

"He's clever on his feet, too," added Tight Gallegher. "D'ye mind when he stepped out wid Danny McCafferty an' stepped him down, and niver the same step twicet? Aye, clever he is! Gisli Gislison is the name of him. On the ocean in the war he was, so Mary Boyle was tellin' me."

Bowery stared at that. "And how does Mary know about it?"

"He'll be takin' her to the dance tonight, I guess," said Willie Boyle, who was Mary's uncle. "It's a free country, ye know, Eddie."

Bowery came to his feet, all the laughing good-humor gone from the face of him. "Any man," said he, "who camps on Pismire, and fishes lonely, and don't flag his nets, is crazy. I s'pose you buy his fish, James?"

His cousin James nodded. "Being the company's agent, I play square. He gets fish, too! Eight hundred pound today, a hundred an' forty bucks. Uses a net some, but mostly hooks. He has miles an' miles of the hooks, they tell me."

"See you later," said Eddie Bowery, and went stamping out of the store.

There was a space of silence. All were regretting that Bowery had not waited. They had first dwelt upon the good qualities of Gisli Gislison; there were other things to be said.

"Bowery's nobody's fool," said Salty Gallegher. "He's warned."

Willie Boyle rose. "I'm not missin' the dance this night," said he, smiling. "I've got $10 that says Bowery cleans the Icelander."

"Which way?" quavered old Dunleavy. "Wid his fists—or wid Mary?"

"Both ways," said Willie Boyle. "Ten each way."

Willie Boyle was $10 poorer within the next two hours.

Mary Boyle lived on her father's farm, four miles out of St. James, on the Barney Lake road. Tall and straight was Mary Boyle, deep-eyed, with a laugh in her glance and a sob in her throat when "Jump for it!" said he, and Mary jumped.

A Tale of a Girl, Rival Lovers and Their Thrilling Fight

she sang the Irish songs beside her mother's melodeon, and a gray witchery under her black brows that had stirred the heart of more than one man. Back from school had come Mary Boyle to help the sisters teach the youngsters their reading and writing, and she could handle a boat with any man, or gaff and pull as the motor roared and the lifter brought in the lacy nets and the big whitefish went hurtling into the tub below.

Up the white gravel road came striding Gisli Gislison, and turned in at the gate. Mary came running from the kitchen. When she saw who it was, she paused in the doorway and the sparkle died out of her eyes.

"Good morning," said Gisli Gislison. He came forward to the veranda and halted by the step.

"Is it my father you'd like to see?" asked Mary, with a lift to her brows.

Gisli Gislison smiled at her. "You know well enough, my dear, that it's not," said he. "Have you time to talk a little?"

Mary bid him to a chair. He refused that, but stood by the veranda post and looked at her.

"Mary, I've no man helping me." His voice was smooth and inflexible. "I've a few trap nets, and a tub of gill nets in the boat, and miles of hooks, which is the only way I can fish alone. But I can feel the fish. That's a living and more, my dear. I can buy a farm on Garden Island from the Injuns"——

"Please!" broke in the girl, pleadingly. "No, no, Gisli—please don't! You must not."

"And why not?" he asked, ice gleaming in his eyes.

"I—I don't love you," she returned.

"Love makes love, my dear," he said.

The girl shook her head. "No."

"You will not?"

"It's impossible. Don't ask me."

"Then I'll not. I'll come and take you."

For a moment she was in shaking dread of him. Then the blood came to her cheeks, and anger.

"How dare you!" she flashed out. "If my father heard you, he'd take the whip to you"——

"And I'd break his neck," said Gisli Gislison, calmly. "Listen, my dear! All these weeks you've walked and talked and danced with me, and now that your man is home again you think that you can forget it. But you can't. I'll come and take you—like this."

He put out a hand to her arm, and his fingers were like a steel band encircling it. And at that she gave him a man's blow, drawing blood from his lips and cutting her knuckles on his strong white teeth. Gisli Gislison smiled at the blow and nodded. She shrank.

A flivver rattled to a halt before the farm and Bowery Gallegher jumped out. The car drove on. Gisli Gislison loosed the girl's arm as Bowery came up to them.

"What's goin' on here?" snapped Bowery, seeing the look in Mary's face and the blood on the Icelander's lip. "Is he botherin' you, Mary?"

"It's my affair, Eddie," she said, quietly. "Gisli, get away from here. I never want to see you again, understand?"

Gisli Gislison smiled and turned to Bowery, who met his gaze with a black scowl. "You heard her," he said. "Get out o' here!"

"You're a nice boy," said Gisli, imperturbably. "But you get mad too easy. Next time you get mad—look out! I'm a better man than you are, and I take what I want. Good-by"

"Better man than I am, is it?" said Bowery. "Off with your coat, then"——

"Enough o' that!" Old Tom Boyle had come out to the door, and a dour man he was. "You, Bowery! I heard how ye did be fightin' this felly for an hour until he put ye out wid a kick—and I'll have none of it. You, what's yer name! Git off'n this place and stay off'n it, and keep yer eyes off'n my girl or I'll be puttin' a load o' buckshot into yer carcass. Git!"

Gisli Gislison smiled a little, and walked away.

"What ye want here, Bowery?" growled Tom Boyle.

"Come up to tell Mary that we got 600 pounds yesterday, first trip," said Bowery, and laughed.

"Come in and eat dinner," said Tom Boyle.

For three weeks Gisli Gislison held his lonely camp on Pismire Island.

He was not a good man to bother or disturb. One day a fish tug from Cheboygan came drifting past the harbor and Emmet McCann went out to her and brought her in with two battered men aboard, one of them with four ribs broken. Gisli Gislison had found them at one of his trap nets, robbing it of perch. There was some talk of getting the Sheriff from the mainland, but nothing came of it.

Bowery and Big Joe made luck with their fishing, and the second September gale was well due to arrive, when Big Joe caught his foot between boat and wharf. On Sunday Big Joe sat with his foot in a chair and a week's rest ahead.

In the afternoon Bowery was visiting at Tom Boyle's farm, and told of the bad luck.

"It's not the week's layoff that I mind, but the loss of gear and a big haul we'd counted on Monday. We've had two traps out for a week up the Garden Island shore, and we left a new gill net out over Sunday, and if a storm comes up we'll never see that net again. Besides which, some o' them blasted Charlevoix men set a trap for bass near the wreck on Hog Island, and two boxes o' fish from that trap would mean a hundred clear. Not a man to be got to help me, neither."

"You mind yer eye, Bowery," growled Tom Boyle. "Fishin' bass is ag'in the law, and robbin' other men's nets"——

"They've no right in our waters," said Bowery, "and as for the law, ain't this Beaver Island? How about you slaughterin' them mallard two weeks ago?"

Tom Boyle grinned at that, and said no more. But after a little Mary spoke up, a flash in her gray eye. "Eddie, what about taking me to help you? I've not been on the lake all summer, and I can handle the boat or haul nets while you gaff! I'll go out tomorrow if you'll say the word!"

To the cheeks of Bowery crept a rich glow. For well he knew that he had only to speak his heart on the morrow to come home with finer fish than any lying in the tub.

"Done with ye!" he exclaimed. "We'll get off at 6, and by noon we'll be done and go ashore on Garden to have dinner with the Danes."

That afternoon Bowery Gallegher walked back to town singing at the top of his voice. At the crossroads he met the priest, who gave Bowery a hard look. "Eddie Bowery," he said, "is it drunk you are?"

"Mighty nigh it, father," and Bowery laughed with all his heart.

"When will ye give over these wild ways?" said the priest, sternly.

"Tomorrow night, praise be!" said Bowery.

That night Bowery told his brother, Big Joe, about taking the boat in the morning. "It's two men's work," said Joe.

Bowery came to his feet. "And it's two men's work to carry the likes of you, ye big elephant!" says he, and stoops over with his two hands to the seat of Big Joe's chair. Then he came up, and Big Joe with him, and a laugh on his lips.

"If we had Tight Gallegher here to fiddle, I'd do a step with ye," said Bowery, and set Big Joe on the floor again, and never a puff from him. "Will I do?"

"Ye'll do, ye blackguard!" said Big Joe; and himself could not have done the same trick.

At 6 in the morning Bowery had the Eleanor clean as a whistle when Mary Boyle came down to the wharf. Bowery stood in the boat below.

"Jump for it!" said he, and Mary jumped. He caught her and swung her down, and seated her in the stern.

"Take her out, while I mind the engine," and he shoved out, and in two seconds the open boat was heading down the harbor.

A gray morning it was, the wind switching from west to southwest and kicking a bad sea up the channel.

"Head for Pismire," said Joe, when they had cleared the light and were reaching for the Garden Island channel. "We'll get right over to Hog Island and attend to them bass, then work back under the lee of Garden, where our own nets are."

"It'll be blowing before noon," said Mary.

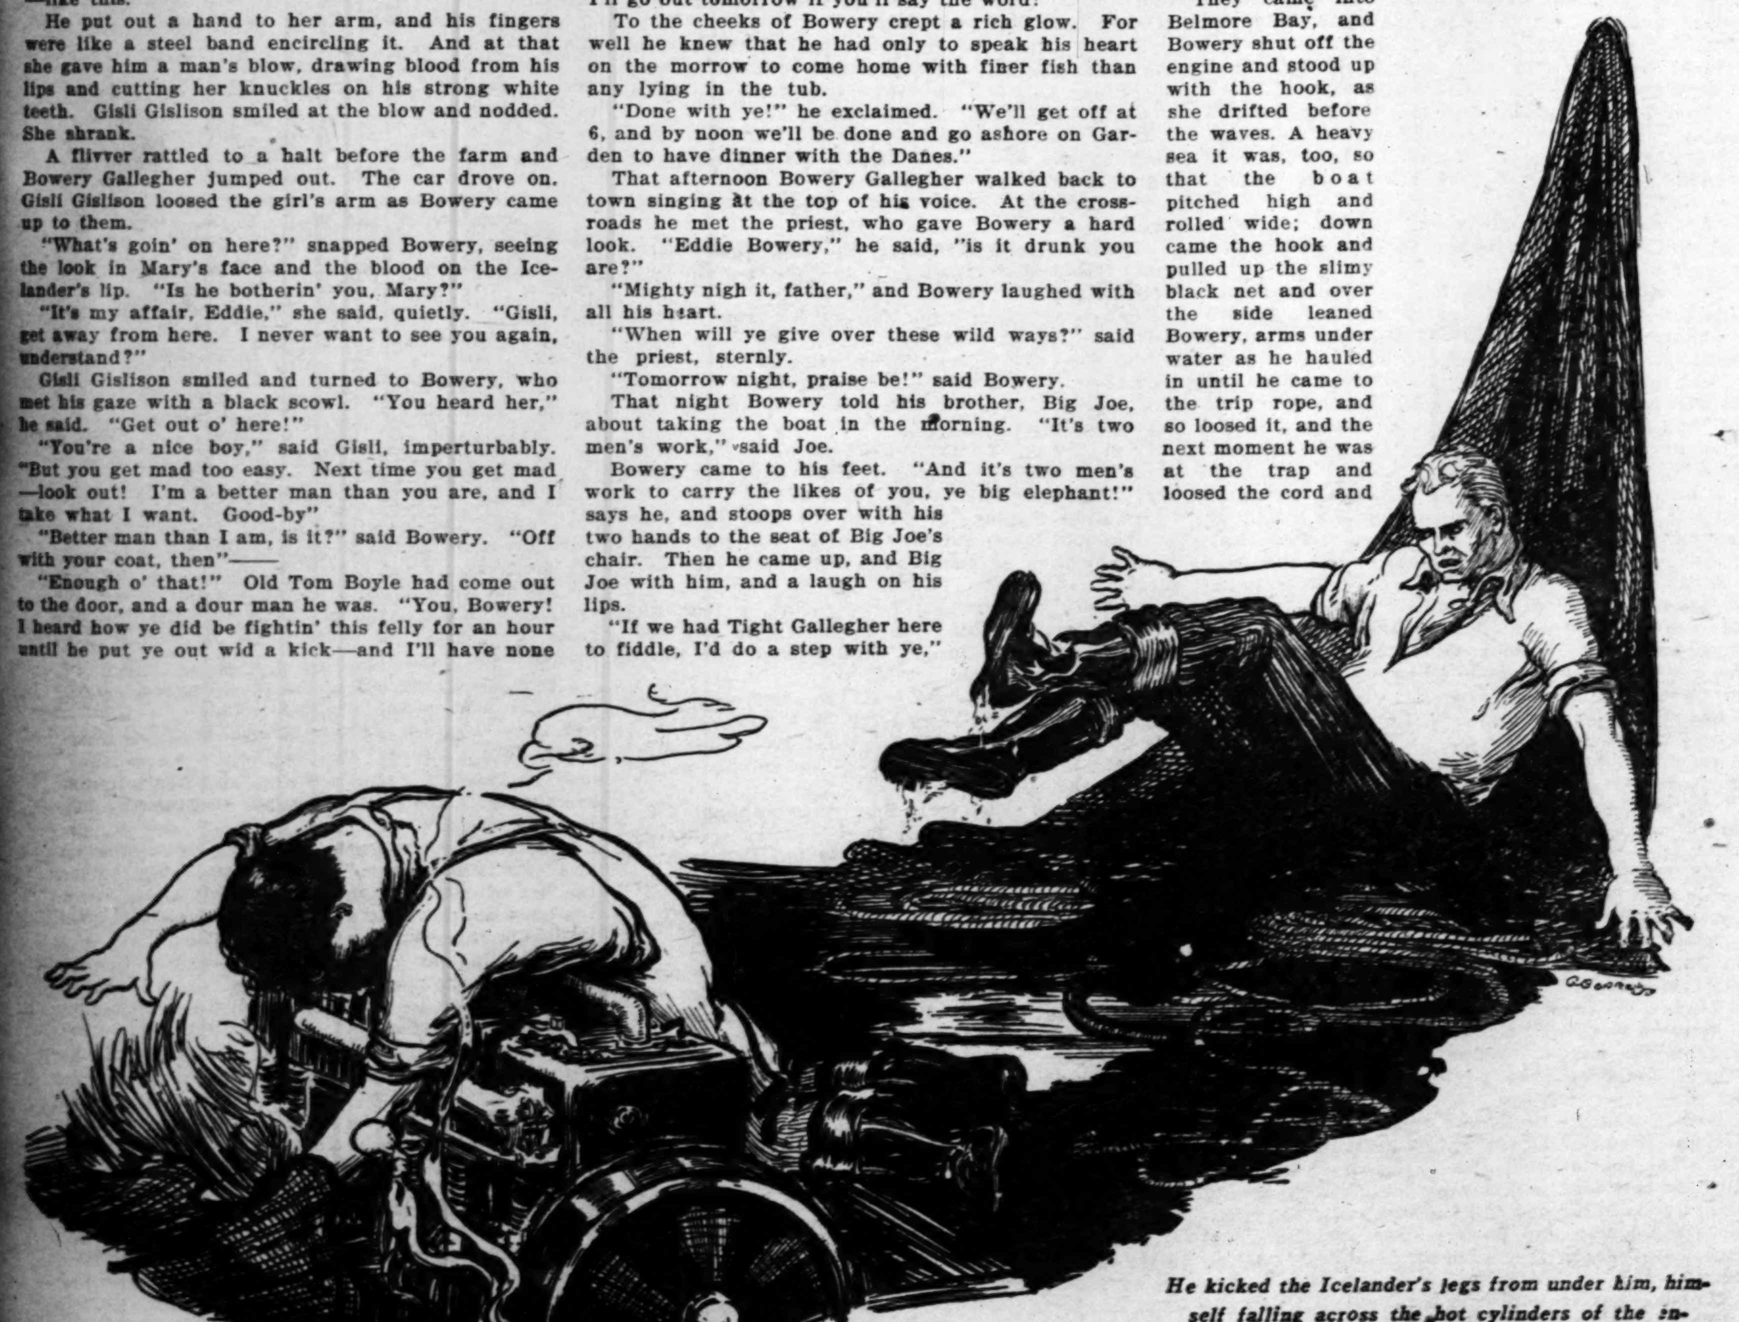
"Let her blow," and Bowery grinned as he primed the pump. "I'll give ye some oilskins in a minute—hello! Look who's yonder."

The girl glanced off to port, where a gray speck was creeping in through the channel toward them. At her question, Bowery chuckled. "It's the Icelander—he's been over to High Island, gettin' nets in from the blow." His pumping done, Bowery brought oilskins for the girl, and took the helm himself. Mary Boyle marveled, for Bowery was sitting beside her, talking and laughing, and hardly taking his blue eyes from her face; yet the boat was like a horse that feels the hand of a master on the reins.

Bowery held well out beyond Pismire, which was a mere tree-studded dot of sand, and at the spar buoy came about for the end of Hog Island reef. Two miles north of Beaver was Garden Island, and due east of that was Hog, with Pismire down below and between them. All inside this triangle, and outside it here and there, was shoal water, studded with bowlers and long reefs, so that a man would have heavy sorrow on his hands if he took a boat hereabout, and he all ignorant of the channels.

The Eleanor was soon past the Hog reef and rounding up for Hog Island, while behind them the Icelander drew in and vanished behind Pismire.

They came into Belmore Bay, and Bowery shut off the engine and stood up with the hook, as she drifted before the waves. A heavy sea it was, too, so that the boat pitched high and rolled wide; down came the hook and pulled up the slimy black net and over the side leaned Bowery, arms under water as he hauled in until he came to the trip rope, and so loosed it, and the next moment he was at the trap and loosed the cord and



He kicked the Icelander's legs from under him, himself falling across the hot cylinders of the engine until his ribs were seared with the heat.

So he caught up the coiled line that was by him, and over the side he went.

had the bass under his fingers. A box of big bass they had there, and that was $50, Mary throwing the small ones back. That was two hours gone and 12 miles behind them, when Bowery threw over the flywheel and pointed west for Garden Island and his own nets. There was a scud of mist and gray slime that hid Garden from sight, so Bowery got out his compass and laid it between the feet of him, and laughed into Mary's eyes.

"It'll be a storm by afternoon," said Mary, taking the tiller, her cheeks flushed with the sharp wind.

"Hear the fog whistle from Squaw Island driftin' on the gale? Let her blow." Bowery's rich laugh broke out. "We'll be drinkin' coffee with old Nels, and if ye don't like the weather he'll take ye home in his big tug, Mary."

"Oh, will he?" She laughed back at him. "Speak for yourself, Eddie Bowery! I'm satisfied where I am."

It was an hour or more before they picked up the Garden shore and Bowery got his bearings; then there were the nets to be got, and the traps to be opened, and the lines to be knotted again under the water. Because Mary was with him, Bowery had brought boxes for the fish, and he stacked them up forward with the tubs of nets atop them.

"Four hundred pound, and that's a hundred and twenty," said Bowery, as he took the tiller and headed for the Danes' cove. "Listen to the wind howl outside! It'll be sweet work crossin' the channel back to Beaver!"

"And you soaked to the waist," said Mary. "How long will it be, Eddie, before the life will go out of your big shoulders?"

"Never, praise be!" said he, and laughed out. "Dad's near 70, he—and has he ever said a word o' rheumatism? Not him. The Galleghers are a tough lot."

Near noon they came into the little cove midway the east side of Garden, where old Nels and his two sons had held ground for 30 years. There were the three of them, mending nets, by the ice shed, and their big, fast boat at the dock.

A hearty greeting they had from Nels and Pete and Ole, and all trooped up together to the house under the singing cedars. Now there was laughter of women and killing of chickens, while the good beer that Nels brewed was fetched in, with heady sand-cherry wine for the table. Coffee, parched black and made strong, and new bread hot from the oven, and butter, golden from the churn; never was a better or more open-to-all table than the Danes set forth when visitors came.

But it was neither beer nor wine that held Bowery. Gallegher's spirits high. When the cigars and pipes were lighted and the dishes cleared off, Mary spoke up.

"My mother wanted me to bring home two of your big red hens and a rooster with them, if you could spare them," said she.

"Ja, sure!" said old Nels, and rose up from his seat. "Aye see dem birds down to de icehouse. You come?"

So they went out, while Bowery was telling about the fine French barometer that he won from Delaney in a crap game.

It was a cry from old Nels that brought them out, as he came staggering up among the trees, and blood black in his matted whiskers.

"Dot Icelander!" he yelled. "He's ban take her"——

Bowery was the first down to the dock, with old Nels and the boys and the women all streaming after him. The boat of Gisli Gislison was heading out to clear the bowlders, with never a soul showing aboard her. Once she lurched and yawed about, then righted to her course, and Bowery knew that Mary had done her best in that moment and could do no more.

He stood gazing, while old Nels cried out how the Icelander had leaped on him and struck him down, and had lifted Mary aboard and gone. Bowery crooked his finger at the two boys.

"Give me a hand here," said he, and the three of them lifted out the nets and the boxes of fish to the dock. Then Bowery lifted old Nels in his arms, and carried him to the boat, dropping him in the stern.

"Ye'll not catch him," yelled Pete. "Nor will we!"

"Go after him, you and Ole!" roared out Bowery Gallegher, throwing off his line. "Go after him in your own boat, for I'll stop him or drown doin' it!"

The two boys jumped to their big boat, and when Bowery headed out of the cove he looked back to see her following. Then he set the tiller, and laid old Nels against it, while he poured oil into the engine and screwed down the cups over the bearings.

He peered at the boat ahead, seeing that she was low in the water and steady as a rock.

"He'll circle into the channel, knowing well that few men would follow him that way," Bowery muttered.

He came back to the tiller and headed in along the Garden shore. He knew that Gislison must travel two legs of a triangle, so he himself was taking the third leg across the shoals and through Stony Reef, though it was six years since he had taken a boat that scary way.

Bowery filled the gas tank, heaved the rest of the spare gasoline overboard, and followed it with everything he could tear loose except the life belts. Then he came back into the stern.

Under the drive of the spray old Nels had come back to life and was lifting his red, dripping whiskers over the rail to see.

"Ye ban fool!" he sang out. "Not wan foot water on de reef!"

"There'll be less than that under us when we get there," said Bowery, as he threw down a life belt beside Nels.

He took the tiller while Nels got his arms into the belt and tied the straps.

The slow time dragged along, and now they were past the eastern tip of Garden and heading for Stony Reef ahead. Even here, in shelter of the reef, the waves ran high.

"Ye'll not catch him!" yelled old Nels. "He ain't around Pismire yet—we got him!" sang out Bowery. "Mind the tiller while I con the way."

He went leaping forward to the box, where he stooped and threw out the life belts in a loose mass, then stood up on the prow watching the bowlder-strewn water ahead.

Straight for Stony Reef they drove, a long line of shoal running out from Garden Island and ending off to the left in two shallow sand pits where the waves burst high.

The Eleanor wallowed over the shoal water, and began to zigzag back and forth, with Bowery standing up on the tossing prow and putting out his arms to right or left, while old Nels shoved his weight against the tiller.

A wild yell came from Bowery as he sighted the Icelander's boat at last. Back aft came Bowery, pausing at the engine to pour in oil, then jumped to the stern and seized the tiller. He put the Eleanor square at the roof.

"Over with ye!" he shouted to old Nels. "Over and make the sand spit—ye can wade it!"

Just then she struck, came free, struck again with a rending smash, and stayed where she was. Bowery leaned forward and threw the engine into neutral, then came up and gripped the arm of Nels. "Over, or I'll throw ye!" he roared.

Nels scrambled overboard, and with his weight gone the boat lifted. Bowery threw in the clutch and she began to forge ahead, though she was taking in water fast from the crash. Nels gained his footing and scrambled toward the spit of sand, and the boat slid off into deep water and headed out into the channel welter.

Straight south across the bow of the Icelander's boat Bowery held her, while the waves thundered down, and broke over her with every crashing impact of the bow. Bowery hung a tarpaulin over the engine. "Better man than I am, hey?" he yelled. "Prove it, ye yellow-haired devil!"

The larger boat drove straight for him, while he still headed down across her bow. The only opening aboard her was aft, where Gisli Gislison sat at the tiller.

The two boats held steady, unswerving, while up before Bowery rose a veil of driving mist as the whirl of the flywheel churned up the rising water. The larger craft hurled down at him, and suddenly above her box appeared the yellow hair of Gislison, he standing with foot on tiller and looking ahead with the ice-cold eyes of him, since from below he could not see under her bow. Not 40 feet of water held the two boats apart, and the Icelander's craft was headed to strike the Eleanor fair amidships, for Gislison would give no warning of his intent.

Then, holding his upper body unmoving, Bowery slid out his foot through the sloshing water, and when his toes touched the clutch lever he shoved with all the strength in him. That reversed the engine, checking the boat's speed and pulling her back and at the same instant Gislison swung tiller with his foot to strike the Eleanor astern and send Bowery under with her.

At that play the Icelander lost. The Eleanor seemed to jump backward under his very eyes; then the bow of his boat rose above her on a sea and came down upon her gunnel, and the open boat rolled with the crash, but drove her engine into the bow of the other and ripped the planks out.

Bowery Gallegher was not under that bow, as the Icelander wanted him, for the crash came forward of his seat, and he was in the air and leaping for the bow space of the larger boat, forward of her house.

Bowery hauled himself over the rail and looked up to see the Icelander whirling at him, with foot upraised. He took the kick, for he had to, and came to his feet with hurt ribs and a fist flung out; a moment the two men stood in that little space of deck and swung at each other, while the boat drifted about in the trough of the sea and rolled under their feet, the bow slowly going down into the water.

"Better man than I am, hey?" said Bowery, and laughed as he struck. "Prove it, then!"

A wave burst over their feet and legs. Startled by that, the Icelander flung up his head and a fierce look came into his cold face as he saw they were going down; then he sickened Bowery with a cruel blow under the belt, turned and went leaping toward the stern along the side of the box, and Bowery staggering after him with white lips. By now the rollers were bursting clean over the bow of the craft, and in her lee floated the scattered life belts from the Eleanor, as Bowery had figured when he loosed them.

Gislison disappeared under the box, and Bowery came at last to the opening. There in front of him was the Icelander, and beyond the figure of Mary Boyle, stunned and motionless.

A net spread wide in his hands, Gislison came erect, as he made to fling the net over Bowery. The net flew, but wide of the mark, for Bowery let himself go feet first beneath it and kicked the Icelander's legs from under him, himself falling across the hot cylinder's of the engine until his ribs were seared with the heat and he jerked himself clear. Barely in time was the jerk, for Gislison was erect and whirling on him, but Bowery kicked the feet from under the man once more and set him sprawling across the tubs of nets and the long coils of line with the bloater hooks.

In that instant Bowery caught at Mary, lifting her with one arm, and scrambled back to the rising stern of the boat. What happened after that he was not sure, for around them swelled a black tide of water.

But as he went he thought of the Icelander down below—and a laugh was on the lips of him.

The Danes' boat came up, and they pulled Bowery out of the water with Mary in his arms and a life belt clenched in his fingers; and, letting the boat drift, they rolled the water out of the two. Bowery was the first to come around, and he swung himself over, coughing, until he stood on his two feet. "What are ye waitin' for?" he said to the boys.

"For the Icelander," said Pete, squinting at him.

With that, Bowery thought of the man down be-

The Unseen Criminals Who Terrorized A Town

By BEN LUCIEN BURMAN.

(Isei Otsuka, secretary to the Home Department, Tokyo police, while attending the international police conference in New York, told the writer this story of a curious bandit gang which terrorized the City of Tokushima, Japan.)

A FEW years ago an American-made film, "Zigomar," was exhibited in Japan and attracted great attention throughout the island kingdom. "Zigomar" was a ferocious bandit, in that indefinite region of the Wild West where everything happens. At the head of his band, he swept down upon the nearby ranch towns, shot up the saloons, robbed the stage coaches and held up the churches, savagely slaying all who resisted him. Thus, in a brief time, he amassed and spent millions of dollars.

Crime is not committed in Japan with the same immunity as in America, for less difficulty attends detection. It is a small country, bounded on all sides by seas. Escape, with the alarm given and all ports watched, is almost impossible. The population is homogeneous, foreigners not many, and as is common in monarchies, every resident is registered, every movement known to the police.

Facilitated by the flimsy, tinderbox construction of the Japanese house, arson is one of the commonest crimes, not for insurance, but for love. As, for instance: Ito Akiko, a black-haired, dove-voiced maiden, loves with Oriental devotion Osame, the sleek inn keeper of Kyoto. Osame, at first devoted, too, beholds at the dance his new Geisha girl, Karejino. Instantly enamored, he forgets the dove-voiced Ito.

Ito does not forget. One night, when the faithless lover lies in his chamber, soundly sleeping upon the cushions, the girl provides herself with gasoline, matches and a bundle of rags, steals through the empty streets, and stops at the lover's house. Laying the rags along the ground, next the wall, and soaking both them and the paper-boarded structure with the inflammable fluid, she strikes a match.

In a moment the house is ablaze. Unless Osame be lucky he is trapped, consumed and love avenged. Content, Ito slays herself, or is executed.

But here shall be told the story of gigantic arson whose motive was not love.

Letters to rich Japanese merchants threatened that unless large sums of money were produced, their houses would be burned—and they were—Then a shrewd and patient chief of police solved the mystery and identified the "master mind" of the band, one of the last persons in Tokushima who would have been suspected, but he confessed the amazing truth :: :: ::

In the busy city of Tokushima, before his shop stuffed with silks, sat the fat Inoya Oguchi, smiling and serene. He was happy, rich, his appetite excellent, the health of his wife good, the children who were to place his picture upon the ancestral altar fatter each day. The silk business was thriving. He had lived thus some 50 years. Why not, if the gods did not suddenly call, 50 more?

Leisurely he opened the scanty morning mail. A letter was there, posted at Osaka, in a hand he did not recognize. A personal letter, he perceived at once, not from the silk manufacturer or the English dealer. From a friend on a journey, perhaps. He put the puzzling envelope aside a moment; then, when the other letters had been scanned, returned to it. He read, and read again, his flabby body trembling.

"Oguchi," curtly began the message. "You are rich—too rich. We are poor. We give you five days. If by Tuesday of the next week, at 9 o'clock in the night, you have not dug a hole by the Sacred Bridge and in it placed 50,000 yen, we will burn your house and all your properties.

"SODESUKI, THE BANDIT."

To which was added: "Tell the police of this and we will also kill all your family."

Fifty thousand yen was then the equivalent of $25,000.

His face a pallid yellow, Oguchi rushed next door to consult his friend, Izuma, the money lender.

"What shall I do?" he lamented. "Fifty thousand yen! It is a ransom for a Prince, a Mikado!"

"Do not pay. Inform the police. They are all powerful," counseled Izuma.

"But my family. They will be slain."

"It is a trick. The bandits will do nothing. Tell the police."

Unconvinced, Oguchi besought other acquaintances. All advised the same. Finally the silk dealer, persuaded but fearing, waddled off to the post of the police.

"I am in grievous distress," he sighed, and showed them the letter. The officers scrutinized, examined the postmark, deliberated and decided.

"Prepare the 50,000 yen," they ordered. "Put the money in a box, and before 9 of Tuesday bury it by the bridge. We will have four officers in garb of citizenry, standing nearby, in places inconspicuous. When the bandits arrive, we will arrest them."

Dolefully, on Tuesday, Oguchi lifted from its hiding place in the garden his treasure box—banks in Japan are few—counted out the money, and placed it in a tin container. Despite official assurance that all would be well, it was a joyless silk dealer who shuffled off to the great white bridge and with a small shovel dug a hole. He buried the box, the police waited in the darkness. Ten o'clock, 11 o'clock, midnight passed. Still no one, except the coolie returning home late from the paddy field, the rickshaw man back from a long journey.

At dawn the money still lay in the box, untouched. Oguchi, again smiling, joyful, shoveled off the dirt, assured by the officers that the bandits were only amateurs, frightened away, and that the episode was ended. It seemed the truth, for seven days went by with no more letters, no more threats. Once more Oguchi sat placidly before the shop, musing of his happiness and heaven.

On the next Tuesday night, exactly two weeks later, the establishment was burned to the ground, and all its contents destroyed. This much of their threat the bandits did not execute: no member of Oguchi's family was harmed.

Now it was Nogita, the food merchant, who received the letter, this time postmarked Yokohama. He, less eagerly, told the police. Again the money was buried; again the officers waited; again no one appeared. Men were employed to watch the house; like Oguchi's, it was consumed. The wealthy inhabitants went about in terror. Each mail was dreaded. The letters arrived with increasing frequency; from Kobe, from Tokyo, fram Nagasaki.

Some of the merchants did what the bandits demanded, depositing the money and saying nothing. In such cases the boxes of money were carried off,

Exactly two weeks after the letter had been received, demanding money, the establishment was burned to the ground and all its contents destroyed.

Petrified Lightning and How It Happens

"WHAT is a fulgurite?" is the question that puzzled a learned educator the other day. Perhaps a million of the visitors to the American Museum of Natural History last year are similarly ignorant and would like to be informed, so we appealed to Dr. E. O. Hovery of the museum's department of geology, who said: "Look at the series of fulgurites which has been placed on exhibition in the Hall of General Geology and Meteorites on the ground floor of the museum, beyond the North Pacific Hall." The specimens are from widely scattered parts of the earth and they represent the fulgurites formed in the rock of Mount Ararat, as well as those made in the loose sands of Illinois, Michigan and the Desert of Sahara.

But what is a fulgurite? It is glass which often is produced when lightning strikes a mass of rock or a bed of dry sand and melts the material along its path. It is an effect of the most powerful electric furnace known to man. Fulgurite is not properly a mineral or yet a single kind of rock, but it is a true glass, similar to the volcanic glass familiarly known to all as obsidian. The fulgurite glass is made by the melting of the bed through which the lightning has passed and it marks the path followed by the electric current. When in sand, the fulgurite is composed mostly of the fused mineral quartz or quartz and feldspar, but when in or on rock it has a chemical or mineralogical composition which varies with the kind of rock that has been struck, whether that may have been the granite-gneiss of the Adirondacks or the granite rocks of the Nevada mountains, the Alps and the Pyrenees or the old lavas of Wyoming and Mount Ararat of Biblical fame.

We usually find this lightning-formed glass in the shape of more or less irregular tubes. The tube may be only a small fraction of an inch in diameter, but larger ones are more common and some even two and one-half inches across have been found. Usually they are only a few inches in length, but in a European museum a specimen several feet in length is displayed. Sometimes the tubes are irregularly circular in their inner outline, more often they are flattened ellipses. Many tubes have their walls crushed together as if by the pressure of the surrounding material before the glass had time to harden. The inside of the tubes is smooth and highly polished—a glassy surface—the outside is rough and irregular in shape, depending upon the extent to which the melting heat has affected the sand and the number of sand grains which have become embedded in the glass. The tubes in rocks are frequently solid or nearly solid glass, and sometimes the glass boiled over out of the hole on to the surrounding rock. When the lightning has struck the corner of a rock mass a tube has not been formed, but the glass has been plastered irregularly over the rock surface. Such films of fulgurite have been observed not only on rocks from the summit of Mount Ararat, as shown in the exhibit, but also on some from the mountains of Mexico, the Alps, the Pyrenees, the Auvergne and elsewhere. Think of the magnitude of the force that can penetrate compact rock, or even loose sand, in the manner indicated to the depth of inches or feet and raise the temperature of the refractory minerals in its path to the melting point of quartz within the nine-hundred-thousandth part of a second, which is the duration of time allotted by the physicists for the passage of an electric spark!

The nature and origin of fulgurites, or lightning tubes, has been known to scientists for a century, they having first been described in 1821 by Arago, a famous French astronomer and physicist, and later by a long line of other investigators, but it fell to the unusual lot of William Hallock, a professor in Columbia University, to see the bolt of lightning fall in August, 1920, which broke asunder granite-gneiss on the side of Slit Rock Mountain in the Adirondack Mountains, and formed many areas of fulgurite on the surfaces of fragments which were thrown about.

When St. Louis Was a Moving Picture Center

big hits was "Nick Carter," the title of which caused expensive litigation. Street & Smith, publishers of a dime novel series under the same name, sued Crawford for infringement of the title. This is said to have been the first suit of the kind in the movie industry. Crawford won out, but the cost of fighting the suit wiped out his profits on the picture.

Abandoning his original idea of producing films only for use in his own theaters, Crawford embarked in the "state rights" business, then an important branch of the industry. Great producing and distributing companies had not yet entered the field. Pictures were made and the rights to distribute and exhibit them in the various states were sold to the highest bidder. Many of the best pictures of that day were thus distributed. It was a big and complicated business, calling for the services of many agents and middlemen whose integrity could not always be relied on. Unscrupulous agents, often without the knowledge of the producer, would sometimes sell the same state rights to two or more persons. This was done with some of Crawford's pictures, and though he protested that he knew nothing of it and though he did his best to straighten out the tangles, at great expense to himself, these occurrences gave the state rights business a black eye. These occurrences, failing health and the gradual encroachment of big Eastern companies into the distribution field marked the passing of his golden movie dream.

Yet Crawford left no mean impress on the records of those comparatively early days of the industry. Besides "The James Boys" some of his pictures which are still remembered were "The Dalton Brothers," "The $10,000 Jewel Mystery," starring Belle Darcus; "The Hidden Hand," with William Crinley, Peggy Worth, Dorothy Dorris and Florence Gillihan; "The Taxicab Mystery," "The Midnight Express," "The Reporter's Revenge," "Deadwood Dick," "Sappho" and "Paul Revere."

One of his big "special features" was "From Sing Sing to Liberty." The plot of this was suggested by an ex-convict who drifted into St. Louis. This man played the leading role and also delivered "lectures" at the theaters where the picture was shown. Another "special" was "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse." Exhibitors complained that this was so saturated with pathos that the piano player could not play for weeping.

The Crawford production of "Sappho" had one of the earliest "revel" scenes. It was made by daylight in Cafferata's Cafe garden, at Delmar and Hamilton avenue and would not be considered very daring in these days of "million-dollar productions."

Crawford, though he started first, did not have the movie field to himself in St. Louis. The St. Louis Motion Picture Co. made fewer pictures, but some of them were real forerunners of the present day successes. The best of these were "Regeneration," "Perils of the Plains" and "On the Mexican Border," all of which were made for Warner Bros., who today are among the best known independent distributors. Edith Sterling and Dot Farley, later a Mack Sennett star, were developed here by the St. Louis Motion Picture Co.

"On the Mexican Border" was made in 1913 at the old Union race track, at Union boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue, now the site of the mammoth General Motors plant. Members of Battery A and Troop B took part. The shooting of the picture was witnessed by so large a crowd that it was necessary to call out mounted policemen to prevent spectators from encroaching on the "location."

After 1913 little effort was made to produce feature pictures in St. Louis, though several pictures made in Hollywood were financed here, including "The Unfoldment," in which Florence Lawrence, a star of the early days, returned to the screen last season.

Though the St. Louis motion picture field has lain fallow for nearly 10 years, there is every indication that it will again come into its own as a producing center. Films are now being made on an ambitious scale by the General Film Manufacturing Co. at University City, under the direction of Romaine Fielding, who, according to the Film Daily of New York, has produced, directed or acted in 299 motion pictures. W. Christy Cabanne, a St. Louisan who made good as a director in Hollywood, has returned to his native city to produce his next picture. Gilbert P. Hamilton, original director of the St. Louis Motion Picture Co., also has returned and is busy making "The Spirit of St. Louis," a film being made under municipal auspices to exploit the history and greatness of the city.

And the producers now filming pictures in St. Louis are spending dollars where Crawford and his contemporaries spent pennies. Only the other day this paragraph from an Eastern publicity agent reached the desk of the photoplay reviewer:

"The motion picture industry is getting out of its infancy as rapidly as could be expected. Robert Ellis, art director of Fred Niblo's unit of Metro-Louis B. Mayer productions, sent out a hurry call for 15 carpenters and offered $9 a day. In the truly infantile days of the industry the carpenters would have been expected to be actors when they were not carpentering and $3 would have been a real salary."

It is indeed a far cry back to those "good old days" when stock company players were moving picture actors by day and real actors by night.

the property of the merchants left undamaged. Others, more courageous, informed the authorities. Despite unceasing vigilance, their homes were devastated.

All efforts of the police were fruitless; never had they encountered such supercriminals, where at each move they were checkmated. The incendiaries left almost no clews, and always succeeded. The single clew discovered seemed valueless; at the house of Nogita, the food merchant, lay a few shreds of charred but unburned cloth the malefactors had failed to carry away. This was examined under the miscroscope; every dealer in the neighborhood questioned as to whom he had sold such fabrics. Nothing was learned. Officers visited the great stores in the cities of the letters' postmarks; their customers were too many for identification.

Conflagration followed conflagration. Curiously, the sphere of the criminals did not extend, but continued to center in Tokushima. The Police Chief concluded that the members of the band must be living in the city itself, or at least in the country nearby. Working on this hypothesis, and collecting the letters, all in the same clear hand, he assigned himself a colossal labor.

He would examine the writing of every student who in recent years had attended the Tokushima schools—an expedient that meant infinite research, perhaps in vain, but might bring success. The threat notes on a table beside him, he pored over thousands upon thousands of records, each with the name of the student attached, noticing each turn of the brush, where here a stroke was heavy, here light. He slept little. The work required time; each week's delay would mark another burning.

Out of the mass of documents he was able to choose several hundred specimens of handwriting whose characteristics somewhat resembled the bandit warnings; then from these 20 where the peculiarities were almost identical. The names of the 20 having been noted, an inquiry was instituted into their lives, whether coolie, fortune teller, farmer, merchant. After the investigations most of them could no longer be suspected.

Then the dates of the arsons were compared with the individuals' movements. Was Herogo, the carpenter, in the city on the days the buildings were fired? By this process several more were eliminated; others, called before the police, gave indubitable proof of their innocence.

Finally only one was left. One whom, it appeared, it would be folly to summon—a poor schoolboy, Okizu. The chief did not believe it possible that a mere child was the author of this consummate deviltry, yet he might be the instrument. A policeman was accordingly dispatched to the boy's home; he entered the Chief's office coolly, as though it was his classroom. His face, as he answered the keen-edged questions, was imperturbable.

"Is the handwriting in this letter yours?"

"No."

"It exactly resembles yours."

"Can that be my fault? It is not my handwriting."

"Do you know who wrote this letter?"

"No."

"Did you help fire any buildings?"

"No."

Steadfastly he denied all knowledge of any crime, protesting he was only a schoolboy of books and kites. What could he know of burnings and bandits? But when rigid demands were made to ascertain the exact manner in which he employed his leisure, his answers became evasive. He was held for further examination.

Meanwhile his home was searched and there evidence was found giving to the chief's theory that the boy was a tool an appearance of fact. The evidence was a quantity of white cotton fabric, the exact counterpart in texture of the pieces left unburned at the house of Nogita, the food merchant.

Confronted with it, the boy made changing excuses, persisted in denials of guilt. The police, now certain, placed him in jail for trial. Weary, isolated, his youthful bravado suddenly collapsed; he confessed.

The confession was one to surprise the police, and amaze the populace. He was not an instrument; he was the chief. Writing the letters, he had sent them to friends in other cities to mail. Studying the faces of each Tokushima policeman, he was instantly able to know when the merchants depositing the money were accompanied by officers. When they were not, he took the box and disappeared. His extreme youth prevented suspicions that otherwise might have arisen.

Aided in the preparations by students acting under his direction, he himself had struck the matches which punished the defiant. The students were poor; so, too, was he. He needed money. He had seen the film "Zigomar," and beheld how easy it was to become rich in America by organizing a bandit brotherhood. Why not in Japan, as well? Fascinated, he had communicated the plan to his fellows. They agreed, naming him chief.

How successful he became in adapting to his province the tricks of the American original, Tokushima and the police know.

Today, Dead-Eye Dick and Snake Simon may receive thousands of dollars each week, and thousands of small New Yorkers may cheer while the noble outlaws single-handed slay—on the screen—10 Arizona rangers, but it is doubtful whether to a certain grown-up schoolboy, Okizu, on his emerging from a Japanese state prison the movies will ever be the same.

the expression of his face, which was one of cool determination and force of will. His jaw was square and firm, and his eye gray and steady, with that peculiar gray glint in the iris that presages more danger than any other kind of optic.

The bully looked around and saw that someone had declined his invitation.

He repeated it in a louder voice.

The small man rose to his feet and walked coolly toward the desperado.

"Excuse me," he said, in a low but determined tone. "I'm a little deaf and didn't hear you the first time. Gimme whisky straight."

And another story was spoiled for the papers.

INFORMATION FOR THE PUBLIC.

QUESTION: Please give me a recipe for managing a husband, making over an old navy blue skirt and lemon pie.—Boadicea.

Answer: Do not ask him for money. Appear happy and contented until he comes home and then rip out and cut on the bias, turning the back without adding unnecessary frills or whipping over. Also strive to please, but if not sweet enough, add less lemon. Run around with only a narrow strip of braid, in some dark shade, and take off when quite hot.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

HIS coat was rusty and his hat out of style, but his nose glasses, secured by a black cord, lent him a distinguished air, and his manner was jaunty and assured. He stepped into a new Houston grocery yesterday, and greeted the proprietor cordially.

"I'll have to introduce myself," he said. "My name is ——, and I live next door to the house you have just moved in. Saw you at church Sunday. Our minister also observed you, and after church he says: 'Brother ——, you must really find out who that intelligent-looking stranger is who listened so attentively today.' How did you like the sermon?"

"Very well," said the grocer, as he picked some funny-looking currant with wings out of a jar.

"Yes, he is a very eloquent and pious man. You have not been in business long in Houston, have you?"

"Three weeks," said the grocer, as he removed the cheese knife from the box to the shelf behind him.

"Our people," said the rusty-looking man, "are whole-souled and hospitable. There is no welcome too warm for them to extend to a newcomer, and the members of our church in particular are especially friendly towards anyone who drops in to worship with us. You have a nice stock of goods."

"So, so," said the grocer, turning his back and gazing up at a supply of canned California fruits.

"Only last week, now, I had quite an altercation with the tradesman I deal with for sending me inferior goods. You have some nice hams, I suppose, and such staples as coffee and sugar?"

"Yep," said the grocer.

"My wife was over to see your wife this morning, and enjoyed her visit very much. What time does your delivery wagon pass up our street?"

"Say," said the grocer, "I bought out an old stock of groceries here, and put in a lot of new ones. I see your name on the old books charged with $87.10 balance on account. Did you want something more today?"

"No, sir," said the rusty man, drawing himself up and glaring through his glasses. "I merely called in from a sense of Christian duty to extend you a welcome, but I see you are not the man I took you to be. I don't want any of your groceries. I can see the mites in that cheese from the other side of the street, and my wife says your wife is wearing an underskirt made out of an old tablecloth. Several of our congregation were speaking of your smelling of toddy in church and snoring during the prayers. My wife will return that cup of lard she borrowed at your house this morning just as quick as my last order comes up from the store where we trade. Good morning, sir."

The grocer softly whispered "There Won't Anybody Play With Me," and whitled a little lead out of one of his weights, in an absent-minded way.

Grease-Proof Paper Has Many Uses

THE mere mention of grease-proof or waxed paper always brings to the mind pictures of sandwiches. It has, however, many other uses. It will be found to be clean and sanitary besides being economical and always ready. In the home it will prove a great scheme for the prevention of spots. A wise mother will place beneath her small daughter's plate a sheet of this paper as a crumb and spot catcher. Needless to say, it does help to cut down the size of the weekly laundry. It is the little things that count, and this one little thing saves the tablecloth and helps to reduce the soap expense as well.

Kitchen tables and bread boards require just so much work for the removal of crumbs and stains. A sheet of paper spread out over them prevents fruit stains and catches crumbs. These crumbs can then be easily emptied into the crumb jar for future use. Grease paper spread over the bread board will also catch any stray flour or crumbs.

Groceries must be emptied from large bags into kitchen tins. Try spreading a sheet of this paper beneath the sugar or coffee tins to catch wandering grains. A little thing, to be sure, but so many grains of sugar make a pound, and the amount saved will be surprising. Some of us place a newspaper where it will catch the overflow, but stop and think where newspapers travel. The road does not always lead through "Spotless Town."

What do you do with left-over croquettes? Do you know that if they are wrapped in heavily waxed paper they will hold their freshness for the next day? Oranges cut into halves and placed in the icebox without protection dry out quickly, but if covered with a small portion of this paper they will keep juicy for some time. Many things can be kept in this way.

The family medicine chest needs protection from dust and dirt. Why give the germs a chance to swim in liquid that your indisposed one has to swallow? Cover it for the sake of safety.

These are only a few of the other uses for this paper. Silver will not turn dark if wrapped in it. Tarnishing is brought about by the active affinity of sulphur for silver, their chemical union producing a dark-looking surface. When silverware is wrapped in waxed paper it is protected because of the air-tight nature of the wax.

Gallegher of Beaver

low, and the bloater hooks and the lacy nets spreading out with the water. So he caught up the coiled line that was by him, and over the side he went, a laugh on his lips as he vanished.

Mad the boys thought him, and loud they cursed as the boat drifted in the fog and mist, and the waves drove them. Then Bowery was up again, and reaching for the gunnel. They dragged him in, and he so exhausted that he could only grin at them and jerk his hand at the line. They pulled it in, and there was a heavy weight on the end; and that same was Gisli Gislison.

A full half hour it was before they brought the Icelander round. Bowery rose and looked down at Mary, and saw the flush on her cheeks. Then he looked at the boys, and his eyes twinkled.

"Off wid ye!" says he. "Turn her over. We'll pick up Nels and go back for them chickens, not to mention a warm fire and a cup o' hot coffee, and a bed for Gisli Gislison. Glory be, it's a fine day!"

The boys stared at him. "Crazy Gallegher!" said Ole.

"Sure!" A great laugh bubbled on the lips of Bowery. "Sure! The Beaver Island Galleghers are all crazy! Let's go. I told the priest I'd be taking the pledge tonight and I'd not keep him waiting."

Handmade roses in dainty shell pink, against a background of white, were the decorations on this prize-winning car at the Joplin (Mo.) Golden Jubilee. The Joplin Y. W. C. A. designed and decorated the float.

When you face the day with a system clogged by poisons

YOU know the feeling. Aching forehead, a torpid brain, your whole body heavy and lifeless.

It is because your system is clogged with the poisons of constipation. As one noted authority says:

"Constipated individuals often feel tired all day, and disinclined for either mental or physical exertion. They may suffer from insomnia, and are apt to wake unrefreshed"

Today—an almost universal tendency

The human body, like any other engine, throws off every day a great quantity of waste. It can no more run efficiently with this waste piling up inside than a gasoline motor can run if you stop up the exhaust.

That is why so many human ailments can be traced back to constipation. Unless these waste products are kept moving, they stagnate and turn into deadly poisons that flood the whole system. And so the first thing that doctors want to know—no matter what you consult them for—is whether you are regularly getting rid of these poisons.

The real reason why thousands suffer

Our whole mode of life is unnatural today. We take less and less physical exercise. We work under constant nervous strain. And instead of the coarse, raw foods of the forest for which our bodies were built, our modern civilization demands a delicate, concentrated diet which gives the muscles of our intestines no real work to do.

It is these muscles which, by a series of powerful contractions, keep the waste products moving. Nature intended us to stimulate and exercise them regularly—instead, our modern diet lets them get soft and flabby. They fail to act. Day by day poisons flood our system.

At last people are realizing that cathartics and purgatives are worse than useless. Not only do they upset digestion by tearing away the food in the body while the system is still at work on it—but they require larger and larger doses in order to blast their way through. And at last the intestinal muscles, weakened still further by this artificial purging, refuse to respond at all!

What this does to the muscles of your arm, Fleischmann's Yeast does to the muscles of your intestines—gives them normal, healthy exercise

The only way to relieve constipation permanently is by exercising the intestinal muscles as Nature intended.

That is why physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today—not as a medicine, but as a fresh corrective food which gives the intestinal muscles regular, natural exercise.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which mix with the waste products in the colon, softening them and increasing the bulk of the waste. This greater bulk gently encourages the muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of regularly exercising the intestinal muscles as the only way to relieve constipation and all its evils. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active—and that it loses its laxative effect when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast is in no sense a purgative and does not produce immediate violent action. It is a nourishing food not a digestion-disturbing medicine—and like any other food, it must be eaten regularly to secure results.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

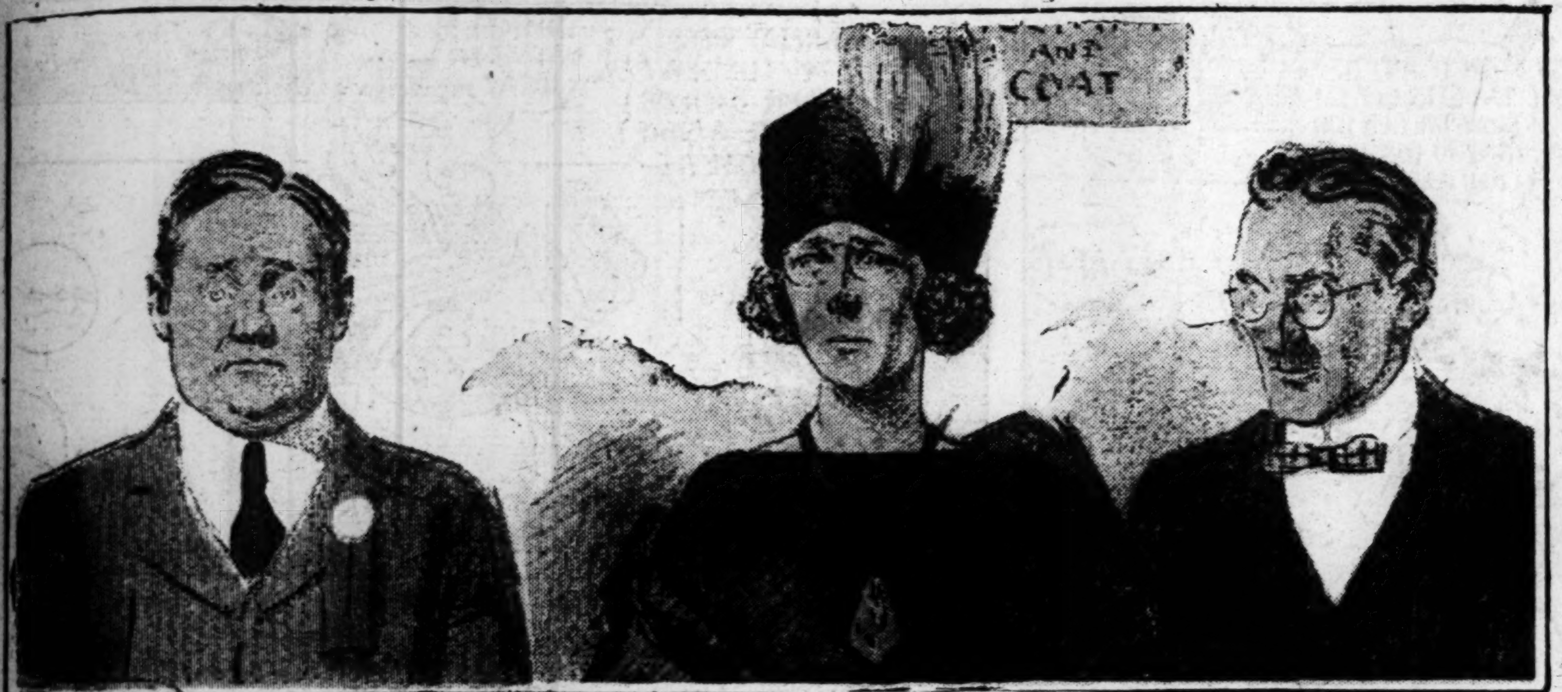
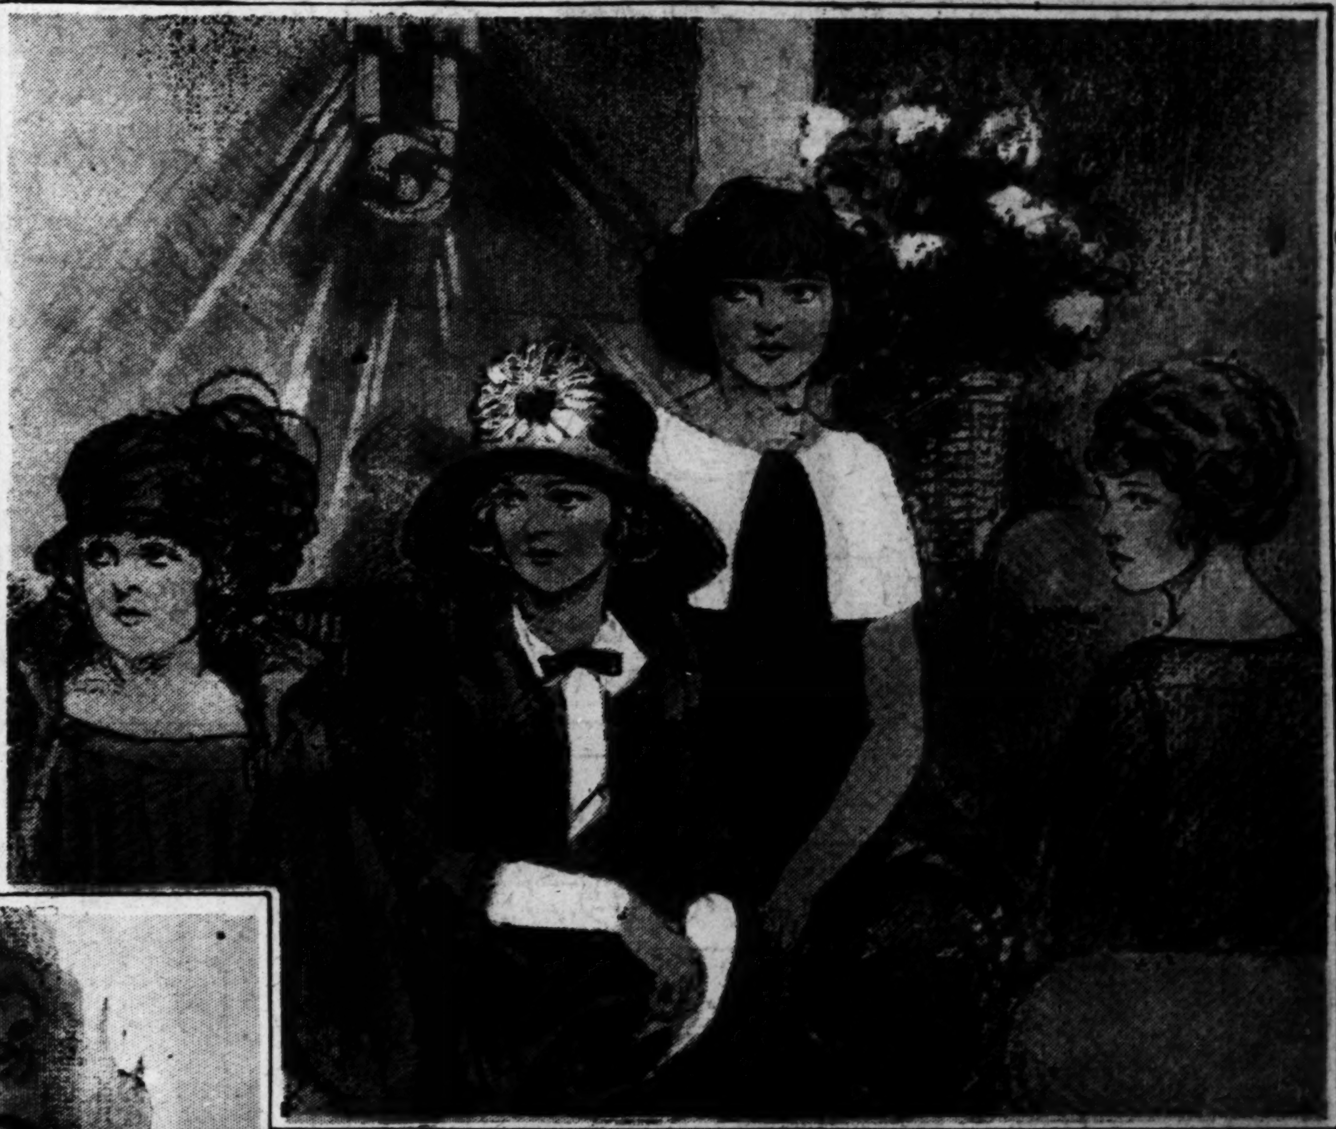
SUMMER VISITORS TO THE CITY

(COPYRIGHT)

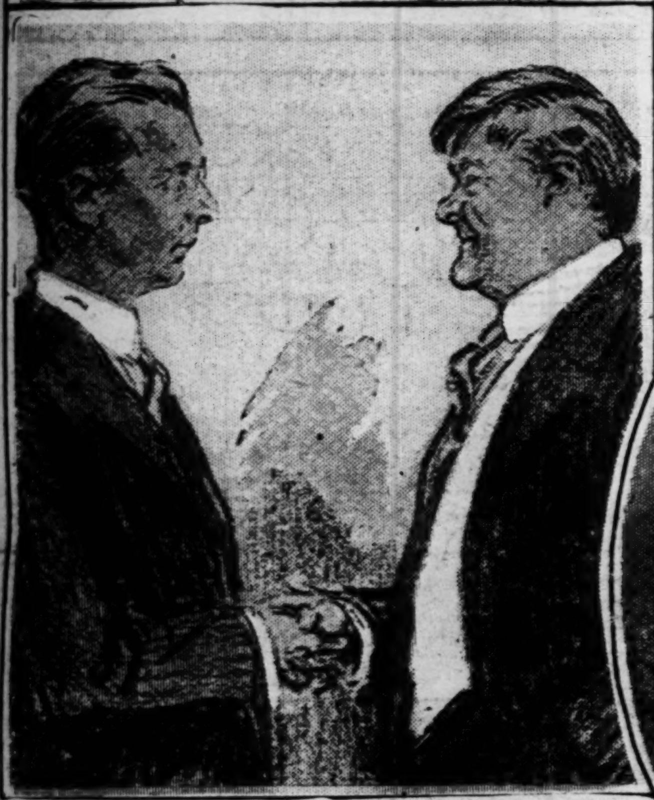
By W. E. HILL



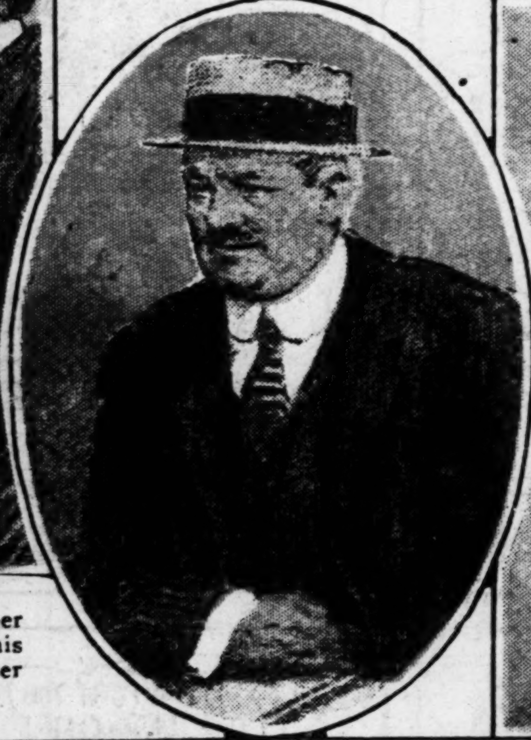
Beating the hotel prices. Here we have a gentleman on a convention and a bride and groom—no less. Evenings they are awfully swell, dining with the glass of fashion at the Hotel Palmetto-Ritz, in the diamond room, but 8 a. m. finds them at breakfast around the corner of the quick lunch, keeping down the overhead expense



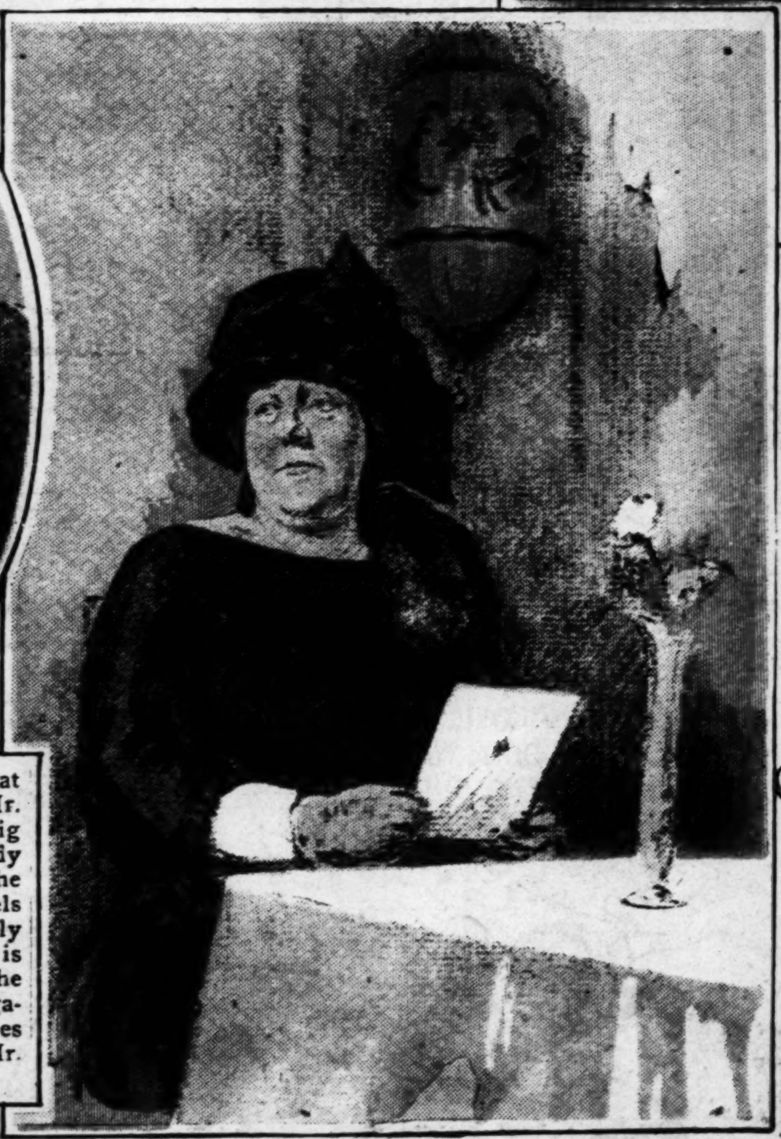
The prize beauties from the small towns. Four out of six prize-winners in a newspaper beauty contest are waiting anxiously in the hotel lobby to be interviewed and maybe photographed. A trip to the city was the award for just being beautiful.



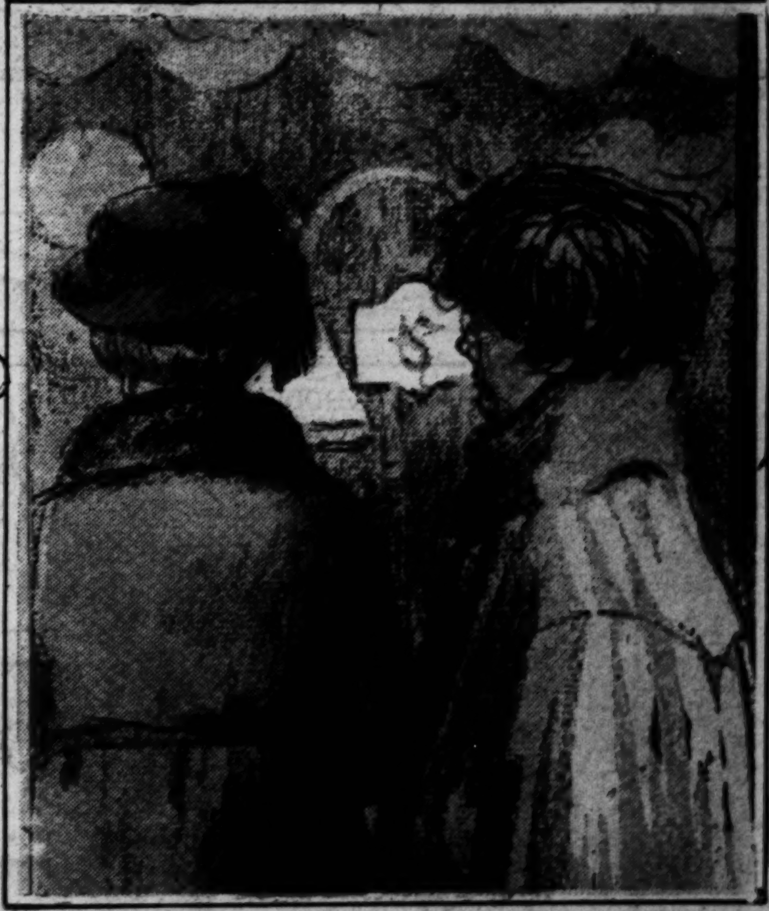
The visiting politician. "I used to be a newspaper man myself," says Senator Wighlie, hurling his personality plus at a defenseless newspaper reporter in the hotel lounge.



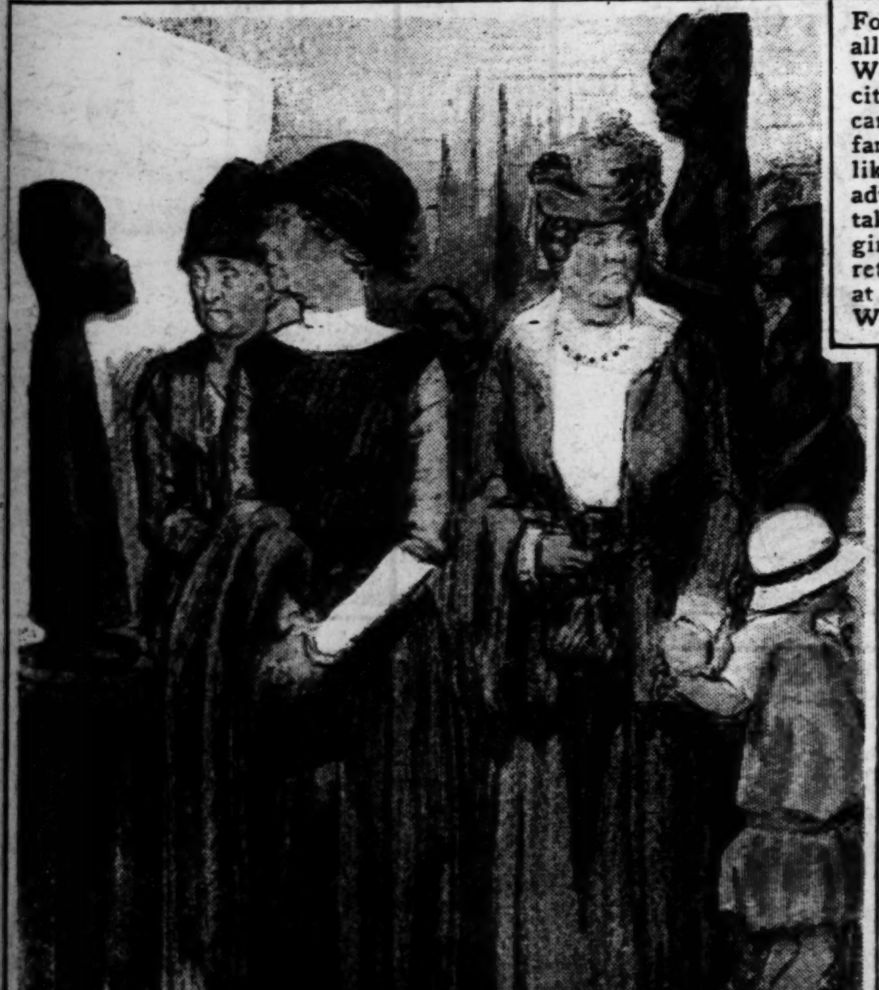
For no good reason at all except that Mr. Welkin is in the big city, where nobody cares, away from the family circle, he feels like being wickedly adventurous. He is taking it out on the girl behind the cigarette counter, who sees at a glance that Mr. Welkin is harmless.



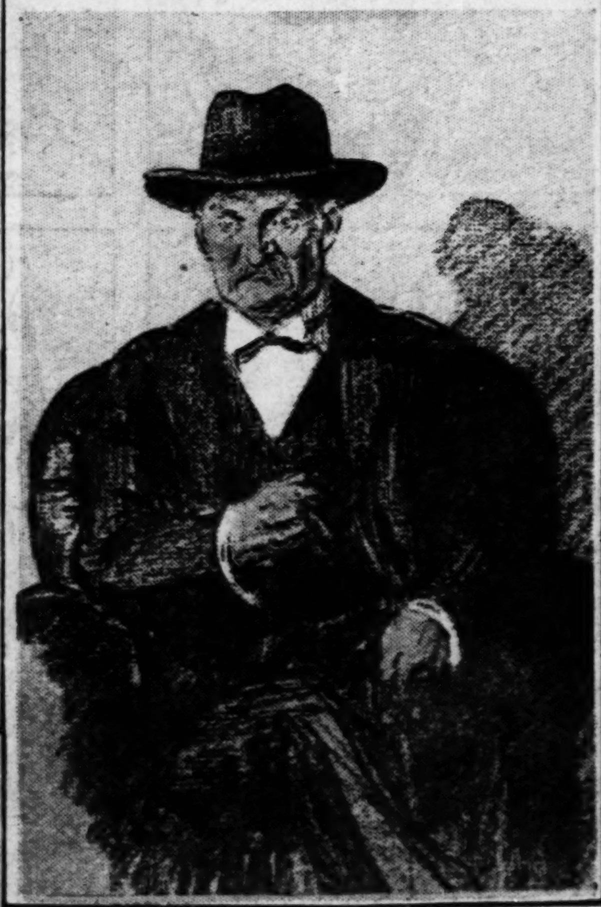
Getting ideas. Mrs. Orville Flood is doing over her house in East Gaget, and is open to suggestion. Here she is in the Dragon Room of the Hotel Wallop, and you'd be surprised the number of cute ideas Mrs. W. is storing away for her breakfast room and bathroom. The Dragon Room is done in old rose, burnt orange and kitten gray, so you can see what an attractive color scheme Mrs. W is planning.



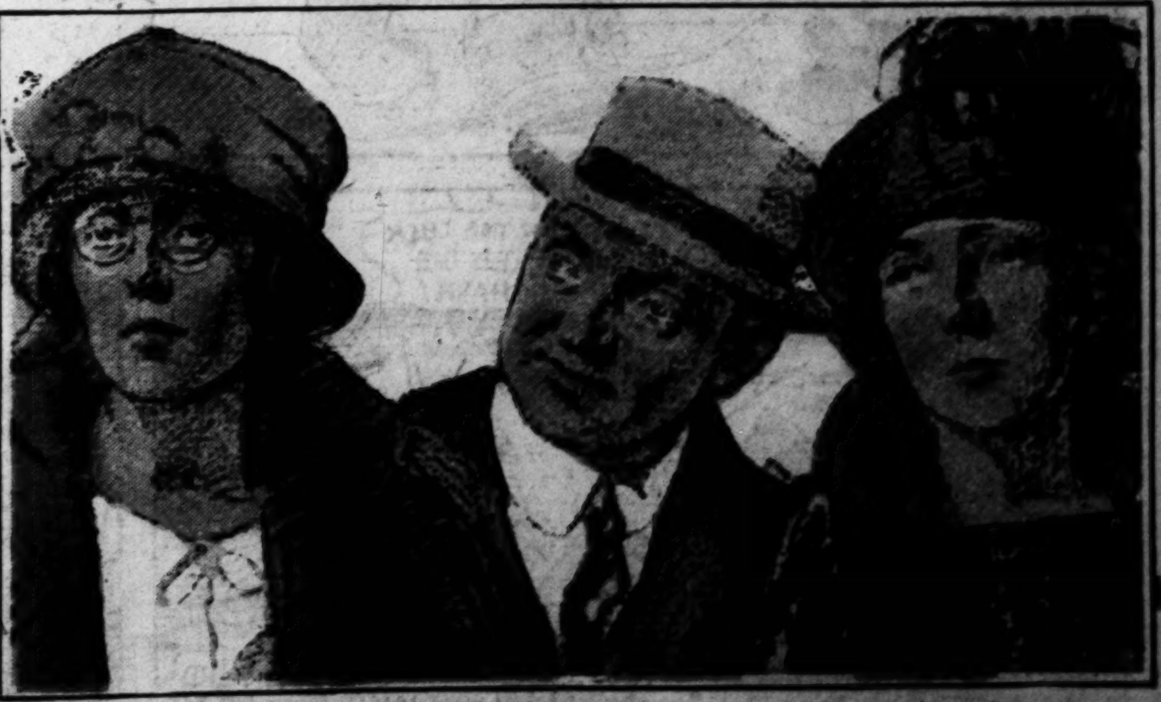
The window shoppers from the provinces. "Now, I ask you, Lottie," Mrs. Morose is saying, "is there a single thing in this window you'd take home with you?" "Not a single thing," answers Mrs. Doctor Corbett, "not if I were PAID to!"



Sight-seeing the Museum, little Clara, mamma, Aunt Josie and grandma have wandered into the African collection. The general verdict is that with so much to see one would have to spend weeks to do the Museum properly. One and all, they have decided to give it up and go shopping.



The Colonel from the provinces. Colonel Doublemint has a lot to say about the city as it is and as it was when Grant was President. Those were the days! Nothing like it now.



Sight-seers on a sight-seeing bus. The man with the megaphone is explaining that the bas-relief of General Clarence Wishbone, erected by his loyal fellow members of something or other, is one of the art masterpieces of the city, depicting, as it does, Commerce, Agriculture and Chastity bearing aloft a wreath of bay, while Orpheus, kneeling, offers a broken lyre to the recumbent General.
